Memo to the Media

This book has been prepared for members of the working media who will cover the Pitt football team during the 1991 season, as well as Pitt fans, friends and alumni. Additions to the contents of this book; changes in personnel, plans and policy; and supplemental information will be provided prior to and during the football season by the sports information department. If you desire additional information, please contact:

Sports Information Department, University of Pittsburgh, P.O. Box 7436, Pittsburgh, PA 15213. Phone: (412) 648-8240.

The office is located on the third floor of Pitt Stadium, via the Gate 2 entrance.

Interview Policy: If a media member wishes to interview a player or coach of the University of Pittsburgh football team, contact the sports information department in advance. Every attempt will be made to fulfill a request as efficiently and quickly as possible.

To interview Head Coach Paul Hackett, contact the sports information office. Coach Hackett will conduct a weekly press conference at 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. on Tuesdays in the Eiseman-Prussin Athletic Conference Room, located at Gate 2 of Pitt Stadium. Generally, there will be two or three players and an assistant coach available at the press conference.

Coach Hackett will also be available for out-of-town reporters on Mondays via a teleconference at 11:30 a.m. Please check with the sports information office for specific times and days. Player interviews will be set up only by the sports information department. Please allow at least one day's notice or more, if possible, for all interview requests. There will be no player interviews after Wednesday evening in game weeks, and players' phone numbers will not be released.

Postgame Interview Policy: The postgame press conference will be held in the George W. Stewart Auditorium, located inside Gate 5 of Pitt Stadium. Coach Hackett and players will be available for interviews at this time.

Game Tickets: In accordance with recommendations from the Associated Press Sports Editor's Association, complimentary tickets will not be available to the media. Those wishing to purchase tickets are urged to contact the sports information department, which will accept and place orders to help ensure the best possible seating.

Credentials: All requests for working press, photo, and broadcast credentials for Pitt's 1991 home games should be made in writing on company letterhead at least two weeks before the game in question. Direct all requests in writing to Larry Eldridge, assistant athletic director for public relations, University of Pittsburgh, P.O. Box 7436, Pittsburgh, PA 15213. All credentials that cannot be mailed will be left at the press will-call window outside Gate 11 at Pitt Stadium.

Because of the demand for credentials and the limited space in the press box, media organizations covering the visiting school on a regular basis will receive top priority. All other credentials for print media will be issued on the basis of circulation. Only local radio stations with a full-time sports director conducting a daily sports show will receive consideration for credentials.

Telephones: The Pitt Sports Information Office supplies an adequate number of telephones in the press box available for general use by visiting writers. Credential requests should indicate interest in the use of these phones. Personal phone lines at assigned seats can be ordered at individual seats by contacting Marilyn Fleischman at Bell of Pennsylvania at (412) 633-6907. The telephone number in the press box is (412) 648-9172.

Spotters/Runners: Aides can be provided at a fee payable to the individual hired at a rate commensurate with the duties involved. Please make requests known at least one week prior to the game.

Photographers: Field photographers must check in along the stadium wall inside Gate 3 prior to the game and must show proper identification and the correct game credential to receive sideline armbands. Speed cards will be available there.

NCAA rules limit shooting to outside the restraining line enclosing the playing field and outside the 30-yard line.

Locker Room Policy: Admission to the home and visiting locker rooms after a game is controlled by each school. The Pitt locker room is closed to the public and media before, during and after a game.

Pitt Radio Network Blankets Pennsylvania

The 1991-92 year will mark the third season that nationally recognized sports syndicator Host Communications, Inc., will produce, broadcast and network all 11 Pitt football games throughout Pennsylvania and beyond.

The Panthers will be heard in more than 30 markets in Pennsylvania including Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Johnstown/Altoona, Harrisburg, Erie, Scranton/WilkesBarre, Allentown and Lancaster/York. The flagship station in Pittsburgh for the Pitt Football Network is WTAE-AM.

The Pitt Network broadcast will begin 30 minutes prior to kickoff with the College Football Report hosted by Craig Way. The pregame show will continue with the Paul Hackett Show. After the game, the Pitt Network will take fans into the Panther Locker Room live for the Coca-Cola/Paul Hackett Postgame Report. Coach Hackett will provide listeners his analysis and observation of each game.

Pitt Broadcast Central is hosted by Craig Way. Listeners will constantly be updated throughout the broadcast on scores from around the country. In addition, the Pitt Network has the capacity to switch to other broadcasts of key games around the nation for up-to-the-minute reports.

For the 17th straight year, Bill Hillgrove will be the "Voice of the Panthers." Hillgrove's concise, accurate, and descriptive style truly paints the picture for members of the Pitt Family listening throughout Pennsylvania. Prior to taking over the play-by-play duties, Hillgrove served as the color analyst for Pitt broadcasts.

Hillgrove, the "Voice of the Panthers" for Pitt basketball games as well, will again be the host of the weekly Panther SportsLine Call-In Show every Thursday night, starting August 29 and continuing through March. Hillgrove is the sports director of WTAE-TV and is a 1962 graduate of Duquesne University, where he earned a journalism degree.

Head Coach Paul Hackett

Paul Hackett is much more than the head football coach at the University of Pittsburgh.

A complex, well-versed man, Hackett draws from a wide range of knowledge and experiences as part of his unyielding commitmemt to help Pitt's football players realize the absolute maximum — and then some — of their potential.

But while the overall enrichment of the players — socially, athletically and academically — is of paramount importance to him, the 1990 season provided Hackett with an opportunity to test his own powers of positive thinking and resiliency.

Nobody was more disappointed by Pitt's 3-7-1 record than Paul Hackett. But true to his educational upbringing, which spawned the belief that there are valuable lessons to be learned from any type of experience, the 44-year-old Hackett enters his second season with an optimistic assessment of the football program which he inherited near the end of the 1989 campaign.

"My feeling has always been that there are great lessons to be learned in athletics generally, particularly in football," Hackett says. "My feeling was that we needed to come out of the 1990 season with as many lessons learned as possible. We need to understand the pain of 1990 if we're going to improve as a football team."

The ability to impart to his players in 1991 those lessons learned in 1990 is something Hackett has shown a marked talent for throughout his coaching career. Family influence played a major role in the development of that trait.

"I come from a family of teachers," Hackett says. "And I've always seen myself as a teacher first. What subject I was going to teach wasn't really important. It just so happens I became fascinated with X's and O's.

"It is the opportunity to teach young men about themselves and each other that I enjoy. The most rewarding aspect is watching young men develop their skills and improve over three or four years."

— Paul Hackett

"It is the opportunity to teach young men about themselves and each other that I enjoy. The most rewarding aspect is watching young men develop their skills and improve over three or four years."

Hackett has always subscribed to the theory that no person can ever acquire too much knowledge.

"I like to challenge players," Hackett says. "It's very healthy to ask people to learn new things because it forces them to concentrate. Physically, there are only certain things people can do, but there are no limits to the brain. It shocks me what people can learn."

That philosophy has served Hackett well, and left many favorable impressions upon the people he's helped along the way, at all levels of coaching.

"Paul Hackett's forte is communication," says Paul McDonald, the former quarterback of the University of Southern California and the Cleveland Browns who was coached by Hackett at both stops. "He can take something off the blackboard, verbalize it, and get it into your head better than anyone. He is teaching all the time. On the field. Off the field. In meetings. On the plane. In the hotel. Walking out to the practice field. He loves it. In his blood, he wants to teach it 24 hours."

The desire to teach was instilled in Hackett at an early age. He spent most of his formative life in academic settings from Harvard to the University of Buffalo to King's College in London, and finally to California-Berkeley, where his late father was a professor of biochemistry.

Hackett enrolled at the University of California-Davis as a pre-med major, but later received his degree in history. On the football field, Hackett led the Far West Conference in passing, and his unique grasp of the game made quite an impression with his coach, Jim Sochor.

"He could have been a good college professor," Sochor says. "He's an erudite person. His family wanted him to go into medicine or dentistry. But he took those academic skills, a very fertile mind, and converted it all to football."

And in 1970 at the tender age of 23, a coaching career was born when Hackett began a two-year term as coach of the Cal-Davis freshman team. His first squad posted a 6-0 record. The next year was even better, as the team won all seven games while averaging 43.9 points per game. His reputation for offensive wizardry began to take shape.

At the University of California, where he was quarterback coach from 1972-75, the Bears' offense led the nation in total offense in 1975, gaining 5,044 yards, 2,522 rushing and 2,522 passing. Hackett tutored All-America quarterback Steve Bartkowski, the nation's leading passer in 1974 and the NFL's first draft pick (Atlanta Falcons) in 1975; the late Joe Roth, the Pac-8's total offense and passing leader in 1975.

Hackett next became an assistant coach to John Robinson for five years at the University of Southern California, a period in which the Trojans won a national championship (1979) and three Rose Bowls. Again, he helped in the development of two outstanding quarterbacks — Vince Evans and Paul McDonald. Evans was the Most Valuable Player of the 1977 Rose Bowl, while McDonald set 17 NCAA, Pac-10, and USC records, and wound up the 1979 season as the nation's third-leading passer. He also set an NCAA record for lowest career rate of interceptions (2.6%), with only 12 in 468 attempts, and a Pac-10 record for most consecutive passes (143) without an interception. Hackett's offensive schemes also involved the likes of Charles White, Marcus Allen and Anthony Munoz.

Professional football was the next stop for Hackett, as he was named quarterbacks coach for the Cleveland Browns under Sam Rutigliano. With Cleveland, Hackett coached Brian Sipe, and was reunited with Paul McDonald. The 1982 Browns were a playoff team.

In 1983, San Francisco 49ers Coach Bill Walsh summoned Hackett to the Bay Area to serve as his quarterbacks and receivers coach. There, Hackett was in on the early development of the 49ers' burgeoning dynasty, whose innovative offense would serve as a standard of excellence throughout the 1980s and into the current decade. In three seasons with the 49ers, Hackett helped instruct All-Pro quarterback Joe Montana, along with former Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, as the 49ers won Super Bowl XIX and went to the playoffs two other times.

"Paul Hackett demands an incredible amount from you as a player," Montana says. "But when he was with the 49ers, our players didn't mind giving a lot, so you know we had tremendous respect for him."

Former Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, who also played for Hackett with the 49ers, has been similarly influenced.

"I felt very comfortable within a week in learning the 49ers system," Cavanaugh said. "He gave me a lot at once but it made a lot of sense because of his approach. He's very energetic and upbeat, and he's one of the biggest reasons I'm considering coaching as a career when my playing days are over."

Hackett's final stop on the pro football circuit began in 1986, when he went to the Dallas Cowboys as pass coordinator. He worked with a pair of former Heisman Trophy winners — Herschel Walker and Pitt's own Tony Dorsett.

"Paul Hackett has a great rapport with the young kids coming out of high school today," Dorsett said. "He has a youthfulness about him. If you've ever been around Paul, then you're aware of how much he loves music, how he likes to go to concerts, and how he likes to go play some basketball. These are all the types of things which young adults can relate to. With his communication skills, his philosophy, and his approach to the job, when I first heard of the opening at Pitt, I thought Paul Hackett would be the ideal coach for the University of Pittsburgh."

When Hackett returned to the college ranks on March 14, 1989, as Pitt's offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach, he had no idea he would fulfill his goal to become a head coach just nine months later.

As he prepared for the 1989 season, Hackett's chief concern was how to construct an offense directed by a redshirt freshman quarterback, Alex Van Pelt, who had yet to take a single snap from scrimmage in game competition at Pitt. That year, the Panthers wound up setting a new single-season total offense record (422.3 yards per game), and Van Pelt broke Dan Marino's school record for passing yardage (2,881 yards) in one season.

Hackett was named Pitt's acting head coach on December 18, 1989, after replacing Mike Gottfried, who had held the position since December 12, 1985. Former University President Dr. Wesley W. Posvar announced Hackett's official hiring to the members of the Pitt football team in the locker room immediately prior to the Panthers' game against Texas A&M at the John Hancock Bowl in El Paso. Hackett's debut was a successful one, as Pitt won a thrilling 31-28 see-saw affair against the Aggies.

At the announcement of Hackett's hiring, Posvar said: "Paul Hackett's coaching philosophy, his leadership style, and his earnest and enthusiastic pursuit of success on the field are fully consistent with the University's uncompromising commitment to both athletic and academic excellence."

As the University of Pittsburgh continues its third century of challenges with new leadership and new ideas, its football coach will adhere to the timeless ideals and philosophies of teaching and education which are so much a part of his fabric.

"I believe our job as coaches is to create an atmosphere for young men to be successful on the field and in the classroom," Hackett says. "For most players, athletics and football are a temporary thing. I'm not going to get on young men for missing a practice if they need to study. But I will get on them for missing a study hall. I know where the priorities lie."

Hackett was born on July 5, 1947, in Burlington, Vermont. He spent most of his formative years living in Northern California, although his family continues to maintain an island retreat in New Hampshire. He and his wife Elizabeth have two sons: David (20) and Nathaniel (11).

Meyers has developed a number of prominent linemen for the National Football League during his collegiate coaching experiences, and he has also served as an assistant in those professional ranks. At Pitt, Meyers guided Pittsburgh Steelers 1989 first-round draft choice Tom Ricketts and All-America guard and Outland Trophy finalist Mark Stepnoski, a 1989 third-round draft selection of the Dallas Cowboys.

Additional linemen Meyers has helped along the way include All-Pro centers Mike Webster (Steelers) and Larry McCarren (Green Bay Packers), Notre Dame's Tom Thayer (Chicago Bears), and Missouri All-American John Clay (San Diego Chargers).

He will have his hands full this fall as the Panthers look to replace their two starters from a year ago — Craig Gob and Prentiss Wright.

Sunseri began coaching at Pitt in 1984 as a graduate assistant and was named defensive line coach in 1985. That year, Pitt's defense ranked in the Top 10 in the nation in rushing defense. Sunseri became linebacker coach in 1986 and has coached two Pitt All-Americans — Zeke Gadson and Jerry Olsavsky, who is now playing for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Sunseri was an All-America linebacker at Pitt in 1981, and was a key member of some of the finest defenses in college football history, including the top-ranked unit in '81. During his four years with the Panthers, the team had a 41-7 record, including victories in three of four bowl games, and three consecutive 11-1 records.

Blanc graduated from Slippery Rock in 1982, and earned a master's degree in physical education in 1984 at Ohio University. He is a certified paramedic, and works in that capacity (along with related administrative matters) in Bethel Park. He is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association.

Blanc began his training career as the head athletic trainer at New Lexington (OH) High School in 1983. A year later, Blanc began working for the Steelers on a part-time basis. In that capacity, Blanc worked at training camp and at home games in all aspects of sports medicine. He also was involved in the scouting department, giving physical examinations to several prospective draft choices.

Blanc and his wife Margie reside in Whitehall. The couple has a son, Jason (1½).

John Hatfield
Equipment Manager

John Hatfield begins his third year as equipment manager for the Pitt football team. His responsibilities include the purchasing, reconditioning, repairment and inventory of all football equipment, as well as assisting in general game operations, and supervising Pitt's corps of student managers.

A native of Canton, Ohio, Hatfield lettered in football, baseball and wrestling at Canton Lincoln High School. He graduated from the University of Maryland in 1970, as his college years included a three-year stint with the United States Army.

Hatfield was athletic equipment manager at Kent State University from 1979-85; at John Carroll University from 1986-87; and at the College of Wooster from 1987-89, before coming to Pitt.

During his playing career, IUP won three Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) championships and earned two berths in the Division II national championship playoffs.

After graduating, Gibbons served as IUP's tight end coach for the 1989 football team, which advanced to the Division II national semi-finals.

A native of Dunkirk, N.Y., Gibbons graduated from IUP in 1989 with a bachelor's degree in education.

Daniel Maginnis

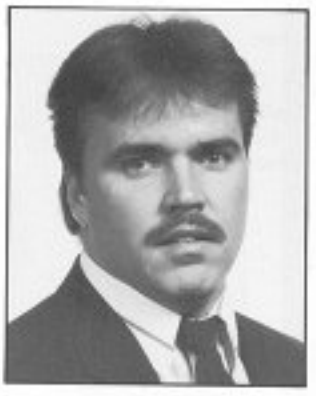
Dan Maginnis begins his second season as a graduate assistant coach and will work with Pitt's defensive backs.

Maginnis is an alumnus of the University of California-Davis, where he played strong safety for the football team. A three-year player, he earned a starting position his senior season.

Following his graduation in 1986, Maginnis became the defensive coordinator for the Cal-Davis junior varsity squad, and also assisted with the varsity defensive secondary. From 1987-88, he was the defensive backfield coach at California Lutheran University.

Originally from Yreka, Calif., Maginnis earned a bachelor's degree in agriculture management from Cal-Davis, and is near completion of his thesis for a master's degree in physical education from Chico State University.

Michael McCarthy



Mike McCarthy arrived at Pitt in June 1989 as a volunteer coach under then Offensive Coordinator Paul Hackett, and continues to work with the Panthers' quarterbacks and wide receivers.

Before coming to Pitt, McCarthy coached the outside linebackers at Fort Hays State from 1987-1988 as a graduate assistant.

A starting tight end for two years at Baker University in Kansas, he twice earned All-Conference honors and was a member of the 1986 NAIA Division II National Champion runner-up squad. He also played tight end for Scottsdale (AZ) Junior College.

McCarthy received a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Baker University in 1987 and a master's degree in sports administration at Fort Hays State University.

McCarthy lettered three times in football for Bishop Boyle High School. A Pittsburgh native, he is married to the former Christine Porvaznik. They are expecting their first child in October.

Running a major college football program requires a team effort behind the scenes. The Pitt support staff is experienced and their functions are quite varied. The Pitt football team's success is a strong example of the whole being greater than the sum of its parts; like the eleven players on the field, everyone carrying out duties properly helps Paul Hackett and his staff concentrate on everyone's goals — winning football games.

1991 Outlook

Pitt Football Coach Paul Hackett didn't have to ponder for too long following the 1990 season before he came up with an appropriate theme for the 1991 season: "Bouncing Back."

During the eight months following the 1990 season, which saw a plague of injuries and other assorted disappointments doom Pitt to a 3-7-1 record, Hackett and the Panthers have had their thoughts and goals focused squarely on reversing the tide in 1991.

"As a staff and as a program we are pulling together with quiet determination to prove that last year was a fluke," Hackett says.

This "quiet determination" and renewed commitment first surfaced in the weight room during the winter months. With new Strength and Conditioning Coach Tim Wilson setting the tone, the legendary Pitt Iron Works was crowded — and it was percolating; there was a vital sense of purpose in the air.

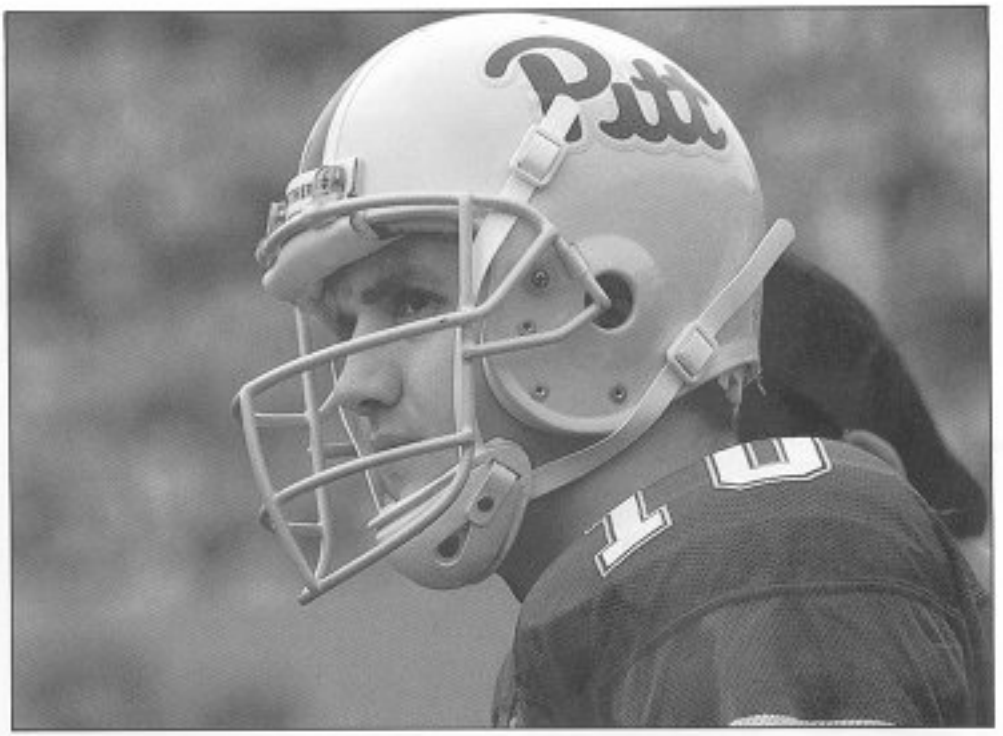
Not unrelated to the flow of offseason energy was the February announcement that the Big East had formed a football conference. For the first time in its history, Pitt's football program will now be competing for a conference championship.

"The Big East Football Conference is a very exciting development for us," Hackett says. "This really represents a whole new era for Pitt football, and as players and coaches, we want to stake a claim for the Big East championship right away. It is a tangible, identifiable goal — and we want to be ready for the challenge."

Hackett believes an upward surge of senior leadership will help the Panthers be ready for the challenge.

"There is no question we are expecting leadership from the senior class," he says. "Last year we had 12 seniors, and only six were starters. This year we have 20 seniors, including a number who have been contributing on the field since they were freshmen. Some of them have been nicked along the way, but they have an investment in this program, and they have also won. The fifth-year seniors have been part of two bowl teams.

"The seniors are the ones with the most at stake, and certainly the rest of the team will take cues from the leadership our seniors are able to provide."



With two solid seasons under his belt, quarterback Alex Van Pelt (above, right) will be looking for more answers in 1991. Running back Glenn Deveaux (right) is the Panthers' leading returning rusher from a year ago.

Offense

With 41 lettermen and 14 starters returning; a talented, seasoned offensive line; a group of tight ends that may rank among the best in the country; and a clutch, resourceful quarterback in his third season as a starter, Pitt's offense would appear to have a solid foundation.

The optimism in those areas is balanced somewhat by a severe lack of experienced depth in the backfield and at wide receiver. But Hackett is optimistic that the offensive inconsistencies of 1990 will be replaced by a smoother, more efficient attack.

Quarterback

One of the nation's premier quarterbacks, junior Alex Van Pelt appears poised for a great year. Van Pelt's experience — he started every game in each of his first two seasons — and his knowledge of the offense, are among his primary assets. He has a keen understanding of the game and is poised under pressure.

"Alex has many attributes as a quarterback," Hackett says. "He may be the best ball-handling quarterback in college football. He has great accuracy as a passer. He is fearless. He stands in the pocket under pressure as well as any quarterback I've ever coached. He knows who to throw to, and how to get the ball to the open man."

There is some impressive talent — but not any experience — behind Van Pelt. Redshirt freshman Joe Walton, whose forte is driving the ball vertically, "had a great spring and has a great future," Hackett says.

Junior Matt Getty has improved every year, and understands the offense well enough to be a valuable backup. Other returning quarterback veterans include Mike Heberle, an excellent athlete who may yet be tried at wide receiver, and Terry Feeney, a walk-on who has been a very valuable member of the team.

Hackett also will give long looks to a pair of incoming freshman aces: John Ryan of Cleveland's Boardman High School (alma mater of Bernie Kosar) and Ken Ferguson of Arlington, Texas. Ryan, a pure, dropback passer is a tremendous student of the game; Ferguson, a great athlete with a rapid release, has an uncanny ability to throw accurately on the run.

Running Backs

The departure of tailback Curvin Richards has left the door wide open for a new backfield star to emerge for the Panthers, who may rely more extensively on a one-back offense due to a severe lack of fullback depth.

Senior Glenn Deveaux will again play a prominent role in the backfield. Although Deveaux is a more natural tailback, Hackett envisions he will split time at both tailback and fullback. He did that last year, when he was Pitt's most consistent and durable back.

Also returning at tailback are sophomore Kevin Williams, a smart, tough, elusive back with breakaway speed, and Jermaine Williams, a dynamic talent who sat out last year but is expected to make a serious impact in 1991.

Senior Ronald Redmon, who was limited by a foot injury last year and is recovering from early summer surgery to repair his left Achilles' heel, may return in midseason to bolster the fullback corps. Deveaux, senior walk-on Carl Hagins, and promising freshman Vince Williams, who could also play some tailback, will be on hand from the start to challenge for playing time.

Tight Ends

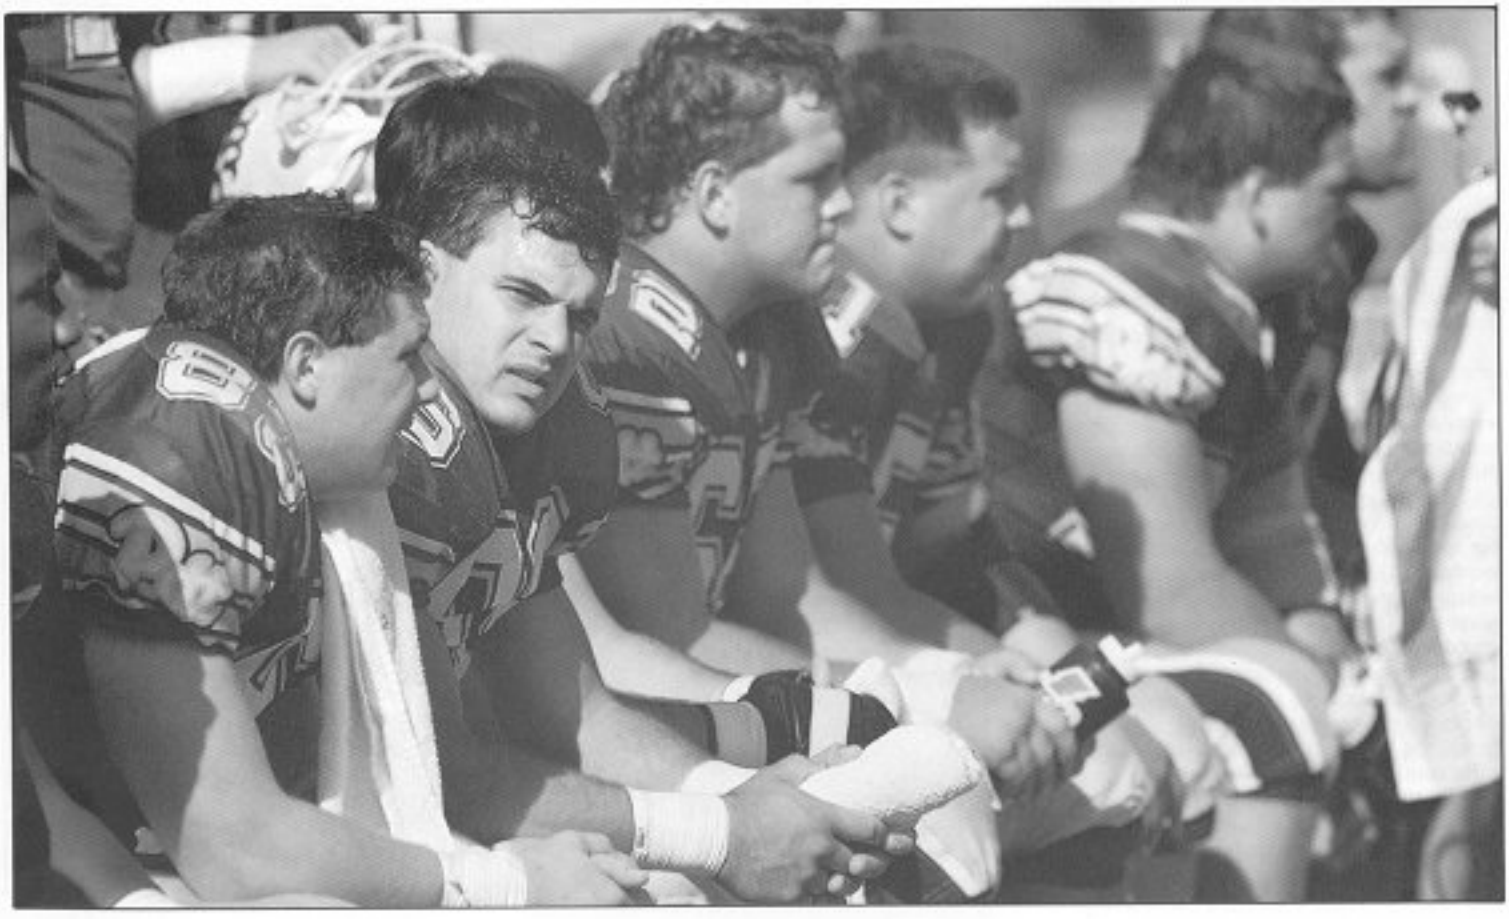
Talent, depth, and experience are the buzzwords at this position, which features the return of senior stalwarts Eric Seaman and Dave Moore along with the arrival of junior college All-American Rob Coons.

Seaman has been a productive tight end for three years, beginning in 1987 when he saw extensive playing time as a freshman. He is a reliable receiver and a superb run blocker. He is one of the hardest working players on the team and an outstanding leader.

Moore, who has also seen action at fullback during his career at Pitt, will be used as a motion man in a number of different ways—and in a variety of locations. An outstanding blocker and a clutch receiver with deceptive speed, Moore is a tackle-breaking runner who will play a major role in the success of the offense.

Coons is a superior athlete who is expected to make an immediate impact. He has exceptional receiving skills, has improved as a blocker, and should put considerable pressure on opposing secondaries.

Additional contributions could come from a trio of freshmen: Marcus Harper, an All-District tight end from Houston; Chad Skrocki, an All-State performer at Pittsburgh's Perry High School; and Raymond Belvin, an All-City performer from El Paso.



Wide Receivers

One of Pitt's offseason recruiting priorities was to add some speed to the receiving corps; mission accomplished. That development, and the expected contributions of several redshirt freshmen, may offset the absence of any real experienced depth. The Panthers lost both starting receivers from a year ago.

Senior Chris Bouyer and a pair of juniors, Clifford Moncrief and Junior Green, are returning veterans who will challenge for playing time.

Bill Davis, a burner with great strength who sat out last year while making the conversion from high school wishbone quarterback to college wide receiver, and Chad Askew, another 1990 redshirt who has converted from tight end to split end, will make serious bids for playing time.

So will two new recruits: freshman Dietrich Jells, a Parade All-American from Erie, Pennsylvania, who was the state 100-and 200-meter champion as a sophomore, and junior transfer Dave Nottoli, a lightning bolt from Glendale (Calif.) Junior College.

Offensive Line

Heading into the 1990 season, the offensive line was a rebuilding project—and a huge question mark. As the Panthers prepare for the 1991 season, the line is one of the unquestioned sources of strength and leadership on the Panther squad.

With five starters returning, the line is expected to be a cohesive, dynamic unit that should again protect the quarterback well (last year the line was responsible for only three sacks all year) and improve the Panthers' run production.

Miller, a smart technician, was Pitt's most productive lineman last year, earning the best film grades on the line. He has improved every season and Bill Meyers, Pitt's offensive coordinator and offensive line coach, expects Miller to have his best year in 1991.

Christy, a former linebacker and fullback, could be a dominant force this season. With his natural feel for the position and the experience he gained last year during his first season on the offensive line, he should take a giant step forward in his development and could earn postseason honors.

Gorajewski, a first-time starter last year, quickly grew into the left guard position and displayed outstanding pass protection skills. A tenacious, zealous competitor, he should be a solid contributor.

Sestili is coming off his best spring yet and could evolve into one of the premier centers in the East. He will again make all the calls for the line.

LiVorio is a solid, technically sound tackle whose experience is a plus.

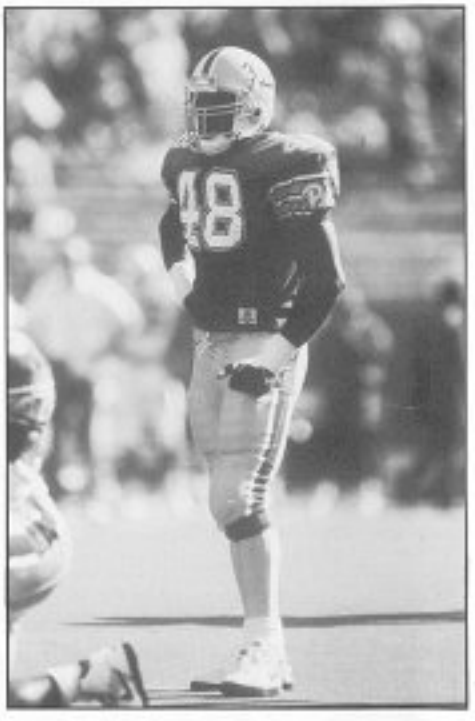
Behind the starters are a number of talented backups, including senior guard Dan Anderson, junior tackle Tony Delazio, and senior tackles Bill Hurst, and Mark Fely. Additional depth may be provided by sophomore tackle Lamont Liggett and a quartet of redshirt freshmen: center Lawson Mollica, guards Frank Huck and Fred Durr, and tackle Matt Bloom. Senior center Jim Royal is on hand to lend experience and flawless long-snapping, and 6-7, 280-pound incoming freshman tackle Rick Cardinali arrives with a bundle of talent.

Defense

The combination of new coaches, a new defensive system, and a flood of injuries on the defensive line and among the linebackers spelled disaster for the Pitt defense last year. Things may be different in 1991.

Virtually every segment of the Panthers' defense was forced to make adjustments because of injuries a year ago. There are still some medical question marks, but Hackett is hopeful that the "year-under-the-belt factor" will spark a major revival for the Pitt defense, which during the preceding decade annually ranked as one of the top units in the nation.

"We have our system in place now," Hackett says. "A year ago, the staff was new and we had a new system. This year, we feel the system will work in our favor. The players have an idea of what we are expecting. There won't be this vast newness upon us. But we're not deep, so we are going to have get some breaks with injuries."



Linebacker Ricardo McDonald is poised and ready for a stellar senior season.

Defensive Line

The most significant about-face on the defense could be visible on the line, where the Panthers boast two of the most physically imposing forces in the country.

Junior end Keith Hamilton, a 6-7, 280-pound pass rushing terror, spent the off-season preparing himself for his best season yet, probably bad news for Pitt opponents. Hamilton, The Sporting News Defensive Freshman of the Year in 1989, a sophomore All-American last year, and a 1991 preseason first-team All-American, has led Pitt in sacks the past two seasons. He can dominate.

So can Sean Gilbert, an immensely gifted junior end who will flank Hamilton on the right side. Gilbert had just begun to make a serious impact last year when he suffered a knee injury that caused him to miss five games. He came back late in the year and turned in his finest performance against Penn State. At 6-6, 300 pounds, Gilbert is quick, ferocious, and mighty hard to handle.

A welcome addition to the line will be Jeff "Big Daddy" Esters, a talented junior who will plug the nose tackle post — a trouble spot last year. Esters has fully recovered from a severe hand injury suffered in a dormitory accident in the winter of 1990, and his outstanding performance in spring practice has heightened optimism about the potential of this year's defensive line.

Another cause for optimism: depth. Senior Richard "Robocop" Allen is back at defensive end, where he has flourished in the past. Redshirt freshman Reuben Brown, a high school Parade All-American, appears ready to make a major contribution. And Tom Barndt, a converted offensive lineman, raised eyebrows and expectations with his spirited and fiery play at the nose tackle position in the spring.

Two other players to watch on the line: sophomore end Mike Kelly, a vastly improved prospect who made a mark in spring practice and will likely back up Gilbert, and junior Tim McNeill, a 6-3, 295-pound walk-on nose tackle who played alongside Sean Gilbert at Aliquippa High School.

Linebacker

Perhaps the team's biggest question mark — and one of the major keys to Pitt's success in 1991 — rests squarely in this area. If the Panthers can get all of their linebackers healthy—and keep them healthy—the defense could become an effective unit.

The main man is Ricardo McDonald, one of the finest linebackers in the country. A three-year starter on the outside, McDonald is an explosive player who is capable of dominating a game. He was Pitt's second-leading tackler last year, and finished second to Keith Hamilton with 7½ quarterback sacks.

If Nelson Walker and Curtis Bray, a pair of seniors who have made great contributions during their careers but who are both recovering from knee injuries, can return in good health, Pitt's outside linebacking will be in good hands. Bray and Walker are both talented, shrewd, and experienced; they would contribute valuable linebacking skills and some much-needed leadership.

Heath Snell, Shawn Abinet, and Ken Radinick are also poised to make significant contributions on the outside, along with Keith Little and incoming freshman Dell Seagraves.

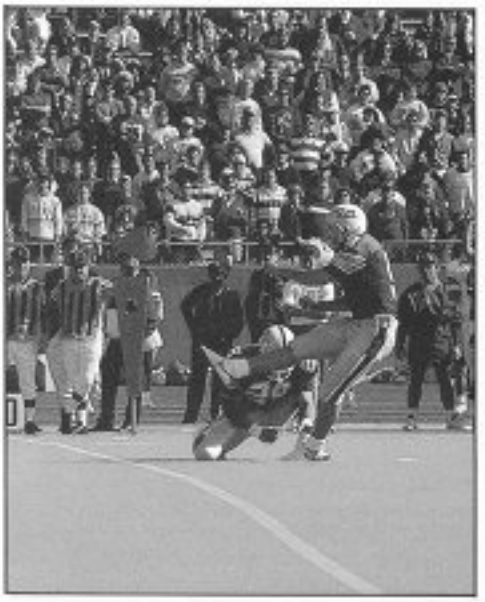
The inside linebacking picture is a bit more muddled. One thing seems clear: Sophomore Charles Williams, who impressed as a true freshman last year, will make an impact at one of the inside spots. Senior Michael Boykin, another knee casualty victim trying to make a comeback; junior Mark Shemanski; redshirt freshman Hayes Clark; and senior Donsville Savariau will all vie for playing time. So will Tom Tumulty, a highly regarded incoming freshman who was a Parade All-American last year at Penn Hills High School, alma mater of Bill Fralic.

Defensive Backs

There are probably more serious question marks in the defensive backfield than in any other area of the team. With three starters gone, the secondary's configuration will change completely. Secondary Coach Nick Rapone is hoping senior Steve Israel, a knee injury victim the past two seasons, can put in an injury-free campaign at cornerback. With his blinding speed, Israel could solidify one of the two cornerback positions. Senior Dave Coleman and sophomore Tinker Harris, who shared time at right cornerback last year, will provide reliable coverage assistance.

Junior Bobby Boykin, sophomore Doug Whaley, and junior Lex Perkins — all big hitters — will contend for the strong safety spot. Junior Vernon Lewis, a big-play specialist with great speed, will anchor the free safety spot, backed up by redshirt freshman Chris Hupko and incoming freshman Anthony Dorsett, Jr., son of the Panthers' former Heisman Trophy winner.

Eric Seaman has been a valuable member of Pitt's special teams in addition to his steady work as a blocker and pass receiver.



Placekicker Scott Kaplan has made all 44 of his extra-point conversions during his career at Pitt.

Special Teams

The departure of Special Teams Coach Scott O'Brien to the Cleveland Browns has resulted in a change in special teams coaching philosophy. Various assistant coaches will oversee specific special teams units, including Fred vonAppen (extra point and field goal rush units), Sal Sunseri (punting unit), Marvin Lewis (punt return unit), Chuck Jones (kickoff unit), Marty Galbraith (kickoff return unit), and Bill Meyers (extra point and field goal unit). Galbraith will also coach the placekickers and punters. There is almost an embarrassment of riches in the placekicking department, but the Panthers must replace All-America punter Brian Greenfield, who finished second in the country in punting last year.

Junior Scott Kaplan, the incumbent placekicker who led Pitt in scoring with 50 points in 1990, has not missed an extra point in his two seasons, hitting 44 straight (Mark Schubert holds the Pitt record with 60 consecutive PATs). Kaplan was also the number-one placekicker as a freshman in 1988, when he also led the team in scoring. He converted 69 percent of his field goal attempts last year (9 of 13), including a career-best 45-yarder against Oklahoma.

Kaplan will be pressed by redshirt freshman Ted D'Alessandro, junior Ed Frazier, who handled the placekicking in 1989 while Kaplan redshirted, and senior Don Silvestri, who will continue to handle kickoffs for the Panthers.

Kevin Leon, a transfer from Fullerton (Calif.) Junior College, is the heir apparent to Greenfield. Sophomore Leon Theodorou will also challenge for the punting position.

Steve Israel will play a prominent role as a returner, both on punts and kickoffs. Other possible return specialists include Dietrich Jells, Dave Nottoli, Tim Colicchio, Vince Williams, Junior Green, and Curtis Martin.

Game-by-Game Summaries

Game 1 Pitt 35 - Ohio University 3

PITTSBURGH (Sept. 1) — Pitt opened its 101st football season by defeating Ohio University, 35-3, at Pitt Stadium.

The Panther offense compiled 430 total yards, 228 in the first quarter. Pitt held a 28-3 edge at halftime.

Junior tailback Curvin Richards recorded the 12th 100-yard game of his career, rushing for 119 yards and a touchdown on just 15 carries. Richards gained 99 yards rushing in the first quarter and 110 yards by halftime.

Junior tailback Glenn Deveaux and redshirt sophomore fullback Derrick Lewis combined for 118 yards rushing and three touchdowns. Deveaux rushed for 59 yards which included a 25-yard scoring run. Lewis, who started for injured Ronald Redmon, scored on a pair of short TD runs and gained 49 yards on just nine carries.

Sophomore quarterback Alex Van Pelt completed 10-of-13 pass attempts for 151 yards and a touchdown in limited action. Senior backup Scott Stark relieved Van Pelt early in the second half. Stark passed for 36 yards, connecting on 4-of-7 passes.

Sophomore split end Olanda Truitt hauled in a game-high four receptions for 74 yards, including the first touchdown of his collegiate career, a 30-yarder from Van Pelt in the first quarter.

The Pitt defense, led by senior middle linebacker Craig Gob (seven tackles) and freshman inside linebacker Charles Williams (six tackles, one sack), held Ohio U. to 235 total yards and a second-quarter field goal. The Bobcat offense entered Panther territory just three times the entire game and its quarterbacks were sacked six times. Sophomore defensive end Sean Gilbert recovered a fumbled kickoff that led to a Pitt touchdown at the outset of the second half.

Game 2 Pitt 29 - Boston College 6

PITTSBURGH (Sept. 8) — Pitt defeated Boston College, 29-6, at Pitt Stadium for the first time since 1980 and, in the process, made several positive changes in the Panther record book.

The Panther defense controlled the game, forcing seven Eagle turnovers and allowing only 81 rushing yards. Pitt's big-play defense garnered six interceptions to tie a Pitt record set in 1977 against Boston College.

The senior safety tandem of Doug Hetzler and Louis Riddick grabbed four of the six interceptions (two apiece). Hetzler returned his second steal 15 yards for a third-quarter touchdown. Riddick led the Panthers in tackles with six solo stops.

Two Panther defenders, who were playing in only their second collegiate game, had big performances. Sophomore defensive back Vernon Lewis intercepted a pass and blocked a punt that resulted in a safety and sophomore defensive end Sean Gilbert registered 1.5 quarterback sacks.

Sophomore defensive end Keith Hamilton, the Panther sack leader in 1989, recorded his first sack of the season.

Senior punter Brian Greenfield booted his way into the Pitt record book with a towering 79-yard punt in the fourth quarter. The previous record was a 77-yard punt by Larry Swider versus Georgia Tech in 1977.

Junior tailback Curvin Richards and sophomore split end Olanda Truitt led the Pitt offense. Richards rushed for 117 yards, his 13th career 100-yard performance, and a touchdown. Truitt was Pitt's top receiver, catching five passes for 101 yards.

Game 3 Oklahoma 52 - Pitt 10

NORMAN, Okla. (Sept. 15) — The Oklahoma Sooners handed the Panthers their first loss of the 1990 season with a 52-10 victory at sweltering Owens Field.

The temperature during the game rose to higher than 100 degrees. Tailback Curvin Richards was one of Pitt's bright spots. Richards turned in his third consecutive 100-yard rushing performance of the year and the 14th of his collegiate career. Richards' 100 yards on 16 carries against the Sooners — the sixth 100-yard effort in his past seven games — moved him into third place on the Pitt all-time rushing list with 2,846 yards, passing Elliott Walker (2,748).

Quarterback Alex Van Pelt passed for 198 yards, completing 11-of-34 passes. Pitt's only touchdown came on a 37-yard bomb from Van Pelt to junior tight end Dave Moore, who was standing all alone in the end zone in the third quarter.

The Pitt defense, which had not yielded a touchdown in eight quarters, had difficulty containing Oklahoma's Option-I offense. The Sooners totaled 450 yards rushing as three of their running backs gained more than 100 yards on the ground.

Senior middle linebacker Craig Gob had his best game of the season (13 tackles, five solos) and defensive end Sean Gilbert added 10 tackles (five solos). Senior defensive end Jon Baker deflected two passes and had three solo tackles.

Game 4 Pitt 20 - Syracuse 20

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (Sept. 22) — The Panthers rallied for a come-from-behind tie in the fourth quarter, utilizing one of the most unusual scoring plays in college football — a defensive extra point.

After the Orangemen increased the Syracuse's lead to 20-10 at 13:13 mark with a touchdown pass and appeared to put the game out of Pitt's reach, senior free safety Doug Hetzler retrieved a loose ball — resulting from Mark Gunn's blocked extra-point attempt — and scampered 90 yards for a two-point defensive conversion to put Pitt in position to tie the game.

Senior inside linebacker Prentiss Wright recovered a Syracuse fumble on the Pitt 31-yard line with 3:41 remaining in the game. Redshirt sophomore quarterback Alex Van Pelt engineered a 69-yard Panther comeback drive that was climaxed by a Van Pelt-to-Olanda Truitt 25-yard touchdown pass with 1:30 left on the clock. Van Pelt tossed a 3-yard pass to redshirt junior fullback Ronald Redmon for the game-tying two-point conversion.

Van Pelt, who was named Jefferson-Pilot player of the game, completed 23-of-36 for 266 yards and two touchdowns. Truitt, a sophomore, had a career-best 129 yards receiving on nine catches.

The Panthers were without the services of two key players — junior tailback Curvin Richards (right ankle injury) and sophomore defensive end Sean Gilbert (sprained right knee).

The Pitt defense recorded seven sacks in the game. Gunn, who replaced Gilbert, was named ECAC Defensive Player of the Week for his performance. Gunn totaled seven tackles (four solos), registered three sacks and recovered a fumble.

Middle linebacker Craig Gob turned in his second consecutive double-digit tackle game with 12 stops. Defensive end Keith Hamilton registered two sacks.

Game 5 West Virginia 38 - Pitt 24

PITTSBURGH (Sept. 29) — Pitt fell behind early and lost to rival West Virginia, 38-24, at Pitt Stadium. The Mountaineers compiled 547 yards on total offense.

The West Virginia backfield, led by junior Michael Beasley's 197-yard performance, rushed for 378 yards. Senior quarterback Greg Jones passed for 169 yards and two touchdowns.

One highlight for the Panthers came late in the first quarter. With Pitt down 14-0, junior Ricky Turner raced for a 100-yard touchdown on a kickoff return. Turner also scored in the third quarter on an 18-yard TD pass from quarterback Alex Van Pelt.

Pitt tailback Curvin Richards sat out with an ankle sprain for the second straight game. In his place, Kevin Williams, a redshirt freshman tailback, rushed for 58 yards on 13 carries to lead the Pitt backfield.

Van Pelt, a West Virginia native, had his best game yet in the 1990 season, completing 22-of-33 passes for 276 yards and two touchdowns. Sophomore split end Olanda Truitt turned in another fine performance with seven receptions for 92 yards.

A trio of linebackers led the Panther defensive unit. Senior Craig Gob and Terrence Wheatley, a redshirt freshman, totaled 10 tackles apiece. Prentiss Wright grabbed his first pass interception of the season late in the second quarter, setting up a 31-yard Scott Kaplan field goal.

Game 6 Pitt 45 - Rutgers 21

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 13) — Pitt posted its first win in five weeks and notched its third straight Homecoming victory, defeating Rutgers 45-21. The Panthers maintained their dominance over the Scarlet Knights by recording their eighth victory without a defeat. Junior fullback Glenn Deveaux and sophomore split end Olanda Truitt led a Panther offense that compiled its highest offensive output since the season opener — 410 yards in net offense and six touchdowns. Deveaux crossed the goal line three times and Truitt scored twice.

Junior tailback Curvin Richards played for the first time in three weeks and rushed for a game-high 83 yards on 18 carries. Quarterback Alex Van Pelt posted his third straight 200-yard passing game, completing 15-of-32 for 238 yards and two touchdowns. One of Van Pelt's completions went to a new member of the Panther receiving corp, former Pitt quarterback Darnell Dickerson.

Defensively, junior linebacker Ricardo McDonald had a stellar performance and was named ECAC Co-Defensive Player of The Week. McDonald forced two fumbles and registered 3.5 sacks and six tackles.

The kicking duo of senior Brian Greenfield and redshirt sophomore Scott Kaplan continued their excellent seasons. Greenfield retained his position as the No. 2 punter in the nation with a 48-yard punting average in the game. Kaplan kicked a 35-yard field goal and six extra points, which raised his consecutive PAT mark to 40.

Rutgers quarterback Derek McCord entered the game in the second half and tossed three touchdown passes in the span of seven minutes, but it was too little, too late for the Scarlet Knights.

Game 7 Louisville 27 - Pitt 20

PITTSBURGH (Oct. 20) — Louisville notched its first win against Pitt in five meetings with a 27-20 victory at Pitt Stadium.

The Cardinals' defense held the Panther offense at bay for three quarters, allowing only two Scott Kaplan field goals and 194 total yards during that span. Pitt snapped out its offensive drought at the 11:36 mark of the final quarter as redshirt sophomore quarterback Alex Van Pelt connected with redshirt junior fullback Ronald Redmon on a five-yard scoring pass. Seven minutes later, the Van Pelt-to-Redmon connection netted a second touchdown. Van Pelt hooked up with junior Ricky Turner on a two-point conversion as the Panthers closed within a touchdown, 27-20. Pitt's time ran out as Louisville held on to the ball for the remainder of the game.

Junior tailback Curvin Richards to the starting lineup and rushed for 87 on 19 carries to lead Pitt. He also became only the third Panther in history to rush for 3,000 yards (along with Tony Dorsett and Craig Heyward). With 209 yards passing, Van Pelt moved into third place on Pitt's all-time career passing list with 4,400 career passing yards. On the receiving end, Redmon and junior Darnell Dickerson had big days. Redmon snagged six passes for 39 yards and two touchdowns, while Dickerson, starting just his second game at split end, had four receptions for 60 yards.

Defensively, the Panthers gave a solid effort; 13 of the Cardinals' 27 points resulted from turnovers. Senior free safety Doug Hetzler, who returned a punt for 40 yards and nearly broke it for a touchdown, and senior middle linebacker Craig Gob led Pitt with seven tackles each.

Game 8 Notre Dame 31 - Pitt 22

PITTSBURGH (Oct. 27) — For the second straight week, a fourth quarter rally by Pitt fell short and No. 2-ranked Notre Dame downed Pitt, 31-22, before an ESPN national television audience and a sellout crowd at Pitt Stadium.

The Panther offense gained 468 total yards to the Fighting Irish's 381 total offense. Quarterback Alex Van Pelt had a record-setting day for Pitt, completing 37 of 51 passes for 384 yards. Van Pelt, the ECAC Offensive Player of the Week, broke John Congemi's Panther single-game completion record (31, 1984 Fiesta Bowl) and tied the Pitt single-game record for attempts (Dave Havern, 1968, and Rick Trocano, 1978). Two Pitt receivers tallied personal career-highs. Junior split end Darnell Dickerson caught nine passes for 87 yards and a TD and junior tight end Dave Moore grabbed eight for 96 yards and a score.

The Panther defense held Notre Dame's Raghib "Rocket" Ismail to only eight total yards in the first half but in the second half Ismail exploded for 196 total yards and the game's biggest play, a 76-yard touchdown run midway through the fourth quarter that clinched ND's victory. Ismail's totals included 116 yards rushing, 84 receiving yards, and 34 return yards.

Senior inside linebacker Prentiss Wright led Pitt's defense with 10 total tackles and an interception. Sophomore defensive end Keith Hamilton totaled six tackles (two for losses) a fumble recovery, and a sack. Hamilton's sack gave him a team-high 8.5 for the season.

Senior free safety Doug Hetzler completed a two-point conversion pass to redshirt sophomore placekicker Scott Kaplan. Kaplan added an extra-point kick later in the game to keep his consecutive PAT streak alive at 42.

Game 9 Miami 45 - Pitt 0

MIAMI, Fla. (Nov. 3) — Pitt suffered its first shutout in five seasons in a 45-0 loss to Miami at the Orange Bowl. The Panthers were last shut out by Penn State in 1985 (31-0).

The Hurricanes compiled 585 total offensive yards while limiting the Panthers to their lowest output of the year, 183 total yards.

Sophomore split end Olanda Truitt moved into 10th place on Pitt's single-season receiving yardage list. Truitt caught three passes for 60 yards, giving him a total of 683 on the year.

The Miami passing machine was not to be stopped, compiling 402 passing yards. Hurricane quarterback Craig Erickson completed 25-of-35 pass attempts for 355 yards and two touchdowns.

The Pitt defense was led by senior middle linebacker Craig Gob who collected 12 tackles (seven solos). Senior free safety Doug Hetzler and junior linebacker Ricardo McDonald had six tackles apiece. Sophomore defensive end Keith Hamilton raised his team-leading sack total to 9.5 with a fourth quarter sack of Miami backup quarterback Gino Torretta.

Senior punter Brian Greenfield, who continued to lead the country in punting, booted a 61-yarder. Greenfield's season average to that point in the season was 47.6 yards per punt.

Game 10 Temple 28 - Pitt 18

PITTSBURGH (Nov. 10) — Pitt ended its home schedule with a 28-18 loss to Temple. It was Pitt's fourth straight loss.

Pitt began the game with an impressive 10-play, 66-yard drive that was climaxed by a one-yard touchdown plunge by fullback Lance Markel. Panther Head Coach Paul Hackett opted to go for two points but junior tight end Dave Moore was stopped short of the end zone.

The Owls held a 14-6 lead late in the third quarter when Pitt quarterback Alex Van Pelt scored on an 11-yard bootleg to close the gap. But, the Panthers once again failed on a two-point conversion, giving Temple a two-point edge.

After the Owls scored twice more to lead 28-12, Pitt tallied its final touchdown of the game with eight seconds left. Van Pelt tossed a six-yard scoring strike to sophomore split end Olanda Truitt, who caught five passes for 95 yards, including a spectacular 51-yarder that set up the final score.

Junior tailback Curvin Richards, who had been bothered by an ankle injury most of the season, rushed for 89 yards in his first start since the Oct. 20 contest with Louisville. Van Pelt threw for 193 yards (12-of-25) and three interceptions.

The Pitt defense contained the Owls for most of the game, but two long passes plus a few critical turnovers proved to be the difference. With Pitt leading, 6-0, Temple reserve quarterback Anthony Richardson appeared to be stopped, but scrambled away from several Pitt defenders and connected with flanker Rob Graf on a 51-yard pass, giving Temple the ball on the Pitt 15. Seven plays later, the Owls scored then took the lead after a successful PAT. Temple's second long pass play was a 62-yarder from Richardson to Rich Drayton in the third quarter that gave the Owls a first-and-goal on the Pitt three-yard line.

Panther junior outside linebacker Ricardo McDonald registered two sacks and eight total tackles (seven solos).

For the fourth straight week, senior punter Brian Greenfield kept his hold as the nation's top punter despite a 37.5 punting average in the game.

Game 11 Penn State 22 - Pitt 17

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (Nov. 24) — The Panthers concluded the 1990 season with a 22-17 loss to archrival Penn State at a sold out Beaver Stadium. Pitt finished with a 3-7-1 record. The loss was Pitt's fifth straight.

Pitt, though, did have some surprises for the Nittany Lions. With Pitt trailing 16-10 late in the game, junior Darnell Dickerson completed his first touchdown pass in three years on a 63-yard flea flicker to sophomore Olanda Truitt. Dickerson stepped back from the line of scrimmage from his split end position, caught a lateral from quarterback Alex Van Pelt, then hit Truitt with a perfect strike downfield. Earlier in the game, Dickerson was on the receiving end of a TD pass, hauling in an 18-yard strike from Van Pelt.

Quarterback Tony Sacca. Sacca gained 300 yards in total offense, including an unusual 113 yards rushing on six carries. Sacca connected with flanker David Daniels on a 16-yard pass for the game-winning touchdown at the 6:53 mark of the fourth quarter.

Van Pelt passed for 246 yards, completing 22-of-44 passes for a touchdown. Van Pelt continued his assault on the Panther record books as he ended the season with 2,427 passing yards, which ranks fourth all-time in Pitt single-season totals. His 5,308 total career passing yards ranks third in Pitt history behind Dan Marino (8,597) and John Congemi (6,467).

In what would prove to be his last game as a Panther, junior tailback Curvin Richards rushed for 34 yards against the Lions to finish the season with 682 yards. Richard finished his three-year career with 3,192 rushing yards, which is second in school history behind Tony Dorsett's 6,082.

Despite a subpar performance (34.7-yard average), senior punter Brian Greenfield set a Pitt single-season punting record and finished second in the nation with a season average of 45.6 yards per punt.

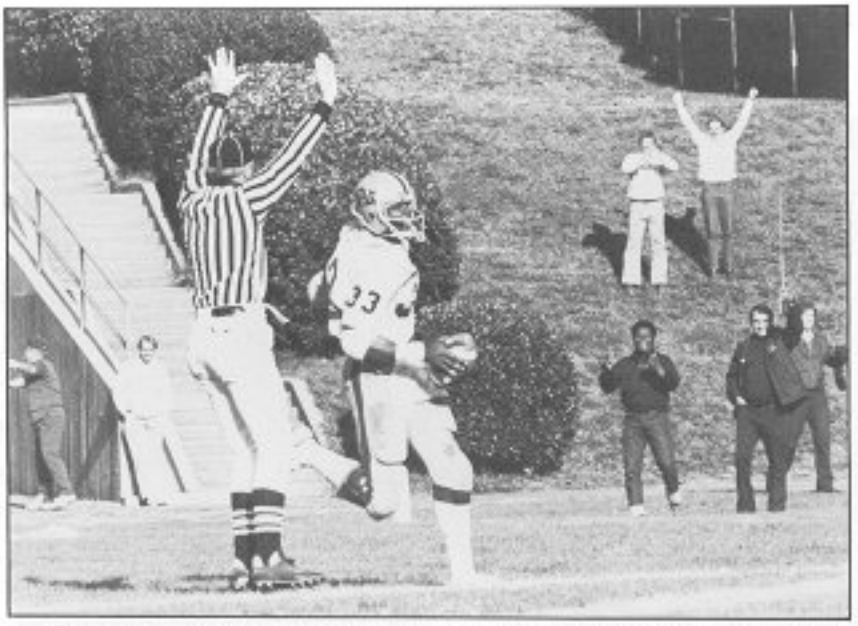
A Legacy of Success

". . . Pitt football is about more than its great players, its victories, its awards, and its championships. It is also about courage and character and unified commitment . . . "



October 23, 1976 — Pitt's Tony Dorsett became the leading rusher in the history of college football with this touchdown run against Navy in Annapolis, Md.

A simple accounting of the University of Pittsburgh's football accomplishments during its first century would lead to an unmistakable conclusion: Pitt has a football heritage rich with achievement and glory.

Its nine national championships rank Pitt sixth in NCAA annals. The football program has produced 81 first-team All-Americans, and ranks sixth among Division 1-A schools with 39 consensus All-Americans. Only 13 schools have more victories than Pitt's 551. Pitt players have won the Heisman Trophy, the Maxwell Award, the Walter Camp Award, the Outland Trophy, and the Lombardi Trophy.

Sixteen men associated with Pitt football—players and coaches alike—have been elected to the College Football Hall of Fame, and more are on the way. Nearly 200 former Panthers have played in the National Football League, while 10 men have coached in it.

Any listing of Pitt's gridiron immortals is a roll call of football greatness. The names Joe Thompson, Pop Warner, Jock Sutherland, Hube Wagner, Bob Peck, Tommy Davies, George McLaren, Joe Skladany, Herb Stein, Charles Hartwig, Gibby Welch, Ave Daniell, Marshall Goldberg, Bill Daddio, Joe Schmidt, Mike Ditka, Tony Dorsett, Hugh Green, Mark May, Russ Grimm, Dan Marino, Jimbo Covert, Bill Fralic, and Chris Doleman hardly scratch the surface.

But Pitt football is about more than its great players, its victories, its awards, and its championships. It is also about courage and character and unified commitment . . . from first-team All-Americans to fourth-team scrubs, in undefeated seasons and in years when the victory total could be counted on one finger.

While Jock Sutherland was coaching at Pitt, he once wrote an article for The Saturday Evening Post, in which he said:

"I honestly do not want to have my teams undefeated, untied, and unscored upon. [Our schedules] are deliberately arranged so that we won't win all of our games. Our idea is to play each fall the toughest set of opponents we can assemble on one schedule and then sock it to as many of them as we can.

"But at some point in the season, we want to have to face the situation of seeing whether we have what it takes to rebound after a defeat, and give perhaps a better club than the one that beat us the week before the whole works. We want to demonstrate to the players and to the spectators that tomorrow is another day . . . and that one or two defeats are only temporary setbacks which can be canceled at the next opportunity."

Anyone who understood Sutherland would know he truly meant that. He believed more than anything in developing character.

The strong character associated with Pitt football through the decades, both in good times and in bad, perhaps can be traced to the mettle of the city of Pittsburgh and the surrounding Western Pennsylvania region.

It is an area that grew up around the steel industry, a city that used to be lit up 24 hours a day, with the night sky glowing from furnaces that burned so fiercely they were sometimes described as "hell on earth."

The close-knit ethnic neighborhoods in the cities and towns of the region spawned a strong sense of family and commitment. The relentless work ethic learned in the mills was passed along from generation-to-generation. Pride and inner toughness came from overcoming adversity and persevering in the face of long odds.

Some of these things surely have played a role in the tradition of Pitt football, permeating the players and coaches so profoundly that the football program itself has reflected the region's own strength, power, and purpose.

And like the surrounding region, which has been forced to weather the death of the steel industry and other hard times, so too has Pitt football endured difficult periods. But also like Pittsburgh, which has been reborn into a thriving city teeming with new opportunities, so has Pitt football always bounced back from its periods of drought. It has to do with mental tenacity and the will to win.

"There is a drive, a desire to succeed that is instilled in virtually every player that comes out of the University of Pittsburgh," says Kansas City Chiefs Head Coach Marty Schottenheimer, an outstanding linebacker at Pitt in the early 1960s. "I've been around a lot of players, both as a player myself and as a coach, and I haven't seen that same trait from the players from any other school.

"I can't exactly put my finger on why it's there, because I'm sure every team and coach attempts to teach a desire to be the best, as well as instilling an attitude of mental toughness. But it seems the players coming out of Pitt all get those qualities, ones that help not only on the football field, but in most other challenging professions of life."

More than the victories and the honors, the bonds that are established in the quest to succeed sum up more than anything else the essence of Pitt football.

"I think the great thing about the heritage and tradition here is that people can come back . . . people have the University of Pittsburgh as their university for life," says new Head Coach Paul Hackett.

"I think it is important to gather around the players who have played here before, to make our young players who already are here, as well as the players we want to recruit to play here, understand that there is a family-style commitment to this football program, and to this University, and that what Pitt is about is something special.

"We intend to keep the great tradition here alive, and perhaps to take it to new heights."

Pitt football teams have been to the mountaintop more than once; both the climb and the view can be breathtaking. As Hackett leads the program into its first season of competition in the newly formed Big East Football Conference, he too has set the sights high.

Rating Systems

To settle countless arguments, Sports Illustrated in 1970 researched the first and only complete and wholly accurate list ever compiled of college football's mythical national champions. Every recognized authority that ever presumed to name a No. 1 is included:

Associated Press (1936-current); poll of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Park H. Davis Ratings (1889-1935); chosen by Davis, a player at Princeton in 1889 and a former coach at Wisconsin, Amherst and Lafayette, and first published in the 1934 Spaulding's Football Guide.

Dickinson System (1924-40); chosen by University of Illinois economics professor Frank G. Dickinson; based on system that awarded various point totals for wins over teams with winning or non-winning records.

Dunkel System (1929-current); a power index rating system devised by Dick Dunkel and syndicated to newspapers around the nation.

Football Writers Association of America (1954-current); chosen by a five-man committee representing membership.

Helms First Interstate Bank Athletic Foundation (1889-current); originally founded in 1936 as Helms Athletic Foundation and changed in early 1970s to Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation before current name was adopted in 1981.

Illustrated Football Annual (1924-41); an "azzi ratem" system published in this highly regarded magazine by William F. Boand.

Litkenhouse System (1934-current); a "difference-by-score" method syndicated by Fred Litkenhouse and his brother Edward.

National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame (1959-current); chosen annually by committee representing membership.

The Football Thesaurus (1927-58); system devised by Duke Houlgate and published in book of same title.

United Press International (1950-current); poll of 35 college coaches.

Williamson System (1932-63); system of syndicated power ratings chosen by Paul Williamson, a geologist and member of the Sugar Bowl committee.

Origins of Pitt Football

In 1889, a spindly, 130-pound lad named Burt Smyers graduated from Bucknell Academy and went on to Western University of Pennsylvania. That autumn, along with a senior named John D. Scott, Smyers gathered a small, curious, group of students together into the first organized football team at the University.

Only three members of what Smyers later called "our motley crew" had ever even seen a football contest before enlisting their services. Smyers installed himself as the quarterback. Scott, also a baseball pitcher, became a center. Frank Rhea and John McGrew were the guards; Harry Calvert and A.B. McGrew were the tackles. Calvert's brother, George, was an end, along with E. C. Shaler, an opera singer. Joe Griggs and Billy Gill were the halfbacks. The fullback was John Hansen.

That group played a game against Shadyside Academy, which it lost. "We had a long way to go before we could tear down any goal posts," Smyers recalled years later.

Pat Hartrich and Albert Marshall replaced the original ends for the first true "season" of play in 1890, and George Neale took Hansen's place at fullback.

"We started out with one football each fall and used it in every game and every practice," Smyers said. "We furnished our own uniforms and paid our own traveling expenses.

"Our equipment really was thrown together. In my own case, I had no money to spend recklessly, so I wrote home to mother and told her I needed a pair of football pants. She made them by cutting off the legs of an old grey pair and putting rubber elastic around the knees.

"The stockings were contributed by my sister. The girls wore heavier stockings than they do now. Football players also wore jackets, and I tried to describe in a letter to my mother that they were made of canvas. But the only canvas she had was from some old oat sacks around the barn. So she made me a vest of that with laces from an old corset, and I was all ready to play."

The uniforms were primitive, and it was a different game as well.

"Those were days of the flying wedge and every five-yard advance meant a first down," Smyers said. "We had four plays: end run, line buck,

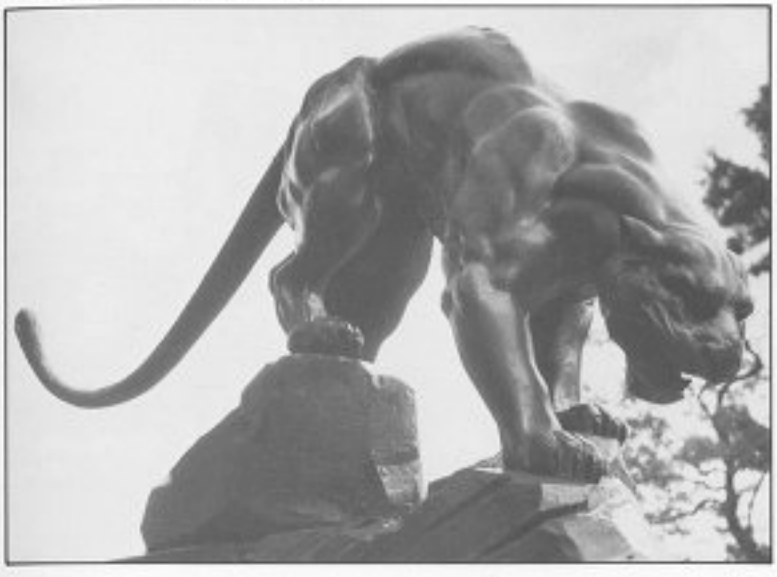
The Panther



The Panther (felis concolor) was adopted as the University of Pittsburgh's mascot at a meeting of student and alumni leaders in the early autumn of 1909. According to George M.P. Baird, '09, who made the suggestion, it was chosen for the following reasons: (1) the Panther was the most formidable creature once indigenous to the Pittsburgh region; (2) it had ancient, heraldic standing as a noble animal; (3) the happy accident of alliteration; (4) the close approximation of its hue to the old gold of the University's colors (old gold and blue), hence its easy adaptability in decoration; and (5) the fact that no other college or university then employed it as a symbol.

punt, and a lateral pass. We played our games at Expo Park and our crowds ranged from 50 to 100 people."

If the rules were somewhat sketchy, at least they left room for ingenuity. Once, according to Smyers, Pitt had reached an opponent's goal line but was having trouble getting over. Smyers whispered to his teammates to just pick him up bodily and throw him and the ball over together. Since he only weighed 131 pounds, it was relatively easy, and Pitt got its touchdown.

"I was Pitt's first forward pass," Smyers later would tell his grandchildren.

Many games in the early years involved high schools and athletic clubs; in fact, only 27 of the school's 56 games in the 1890s were intercollegiate.

The inaugural season's first game, on October 11, 1890, actually was something of a fluke. When a game scheduled between the Shadyside Academy and Allegheny Athletic Association was cancelled because Shadyside failed to show, Western's team was summoned to Exposition Park. Allegheny AA won the game, 38-0.

Western also began the first of many long-standing rivalries in 1890 when it lost, 32-0, to Washington and Jefferson. The game between Western and Washington & Jefferson the following year was a rough affair, with game

The two schools enjoyed a great rivalry and would meet 33 times before the series ended after the 1935 season.

Joe Trees, a talented 210-pound tackle, became Pitt's first subsidized athlete in 1891.

"We had played a few practice games with Indiana Normal (now Indiana University of Pennsylvania)," Smyers recalled, "and Trees was the biggest man on the Indiana team. I asked him if he'd like to come and play at Pitt. He said he would, but he didn't have any money.

"I arranged for the various classes at Pitt to take care of him. One class paid his tuition, another his room, and another his board."

Trees, who later made millions in oil, never forgot his alma mater, and maintained close ties with the University until his death in 1943. "Call on Joe" became a byword at Pitt, and he always came through for his alma mater. If the band wanted to make a trip to a big game but lacked funds, he would be there with his checkbook. He donated $100,000 to Trees Gymnasium, deeded the practice field to the school, gave $75,000 to the building of Alumni Hall, and bought $200,000 worth of stadium bonds.

After finishing 2-5 in 1891, WUP posted its first winning record in 1892, ending with a 4-2 mark. The following season Western hired Anson F. Harrold as its first true coach, but the team slipped to a 1-4 record.

The next four seasons saw a sucession of coaching changes and continuing struggles on the field, as Western posted a mark of 6-16 from 1884-97.

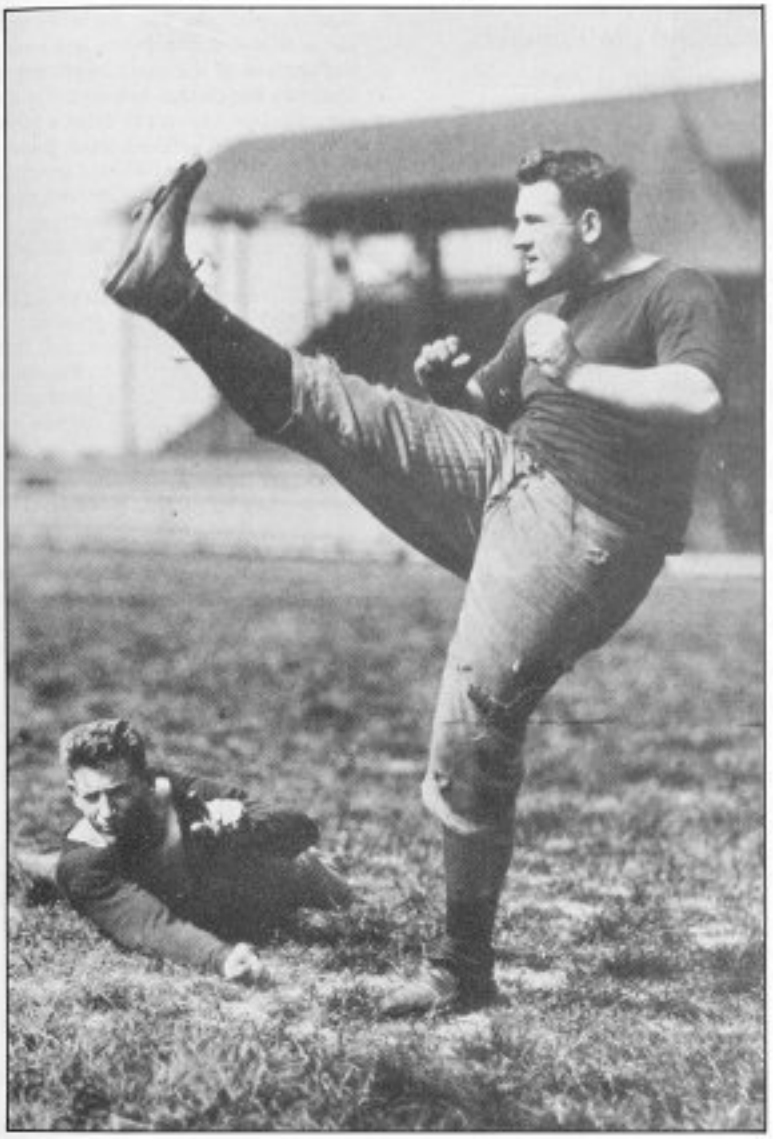
Dr. Fred Robinson, a former Penn State player took over as head coach in 1898 and guided the team to a 5-2-1 record, and followed that up the next year with a 3-1-1 mark.

Dr. M. Roy Jackson succeeded Robinson in 1900, and led WUP to a 5-4 record. Then Wilber D. Hockensmith coached the team in 1901, posting a 7-2-1 record.

Hockensmith also played in the late 1890s. The following are some of his recollections from the period around the turn of the century:

"In the fall of 1897, about 16 boys enrolled in the Western University of Pennsylvania who had played football in their hometowns or for preparatory schools. A student in the School of Law named Thomas Trenchard, who had graduated from Princeton, coached the varsity team. He had been quite famous as an end, and was known to players and fans as "Doggie" Trenchard. The varsity, in those days, was composed mostly of seniors and graduate students; only upperclassmen and postgraduates were considered physically strong enough to play football as it was played at that time.

Hube Wagner: An Early Hall of Famer



One of Pitt's great players in the early 1900s was Hube Wagner. Primarily an end, Wagner was so versatile he filled in at every position except quarterback. He arrived at Pitt from Monaca High School in 1910, and became a member of the great 1910 squad that went undefeated, untied, and unscored upon. A sensational, wild tackler and a powerful ball carrier, Wagner eventually was inducted into the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame.

Wagner, like many Pitt footballers through the decades, enjoyed a distinguished career in medicine. He was a member of the staffs of St. Francis, Magee, Eye and Ear, and West Penn Hospitals; he was chief of surgery at St. Francis; Chief of Surgery of United States Steel; and President of the Pennsylvania Medical Association. For 12 years he also served on the University's Board of Trustees.

The freshmen entering in 1897 organized a class team and began to play teams whenever they could be scheduled. Each player purchased his own nose guards, shin guards, shoes, and moleskin vests, which were then in vogue, and we all contributed to a fund to buy a football for the first game.

Interest in football remained high when Coach Trenchard issued a call for the 1898 varsity. We practiced on a cement-like clay field next to the Observatory above the school. The field was hardly large enough for a regulation-size playing field, and quite often in practice ball carriers ran over the side of the hill and were injured.

We played some of our games in the late 1890s at Recreational Park, but in 1901 we obtained the Schenley Oval for our games, introducing football to the Schenley district for the first time. The games were free to all who wished to attend."

The 1904 campaign began a string of eight consecutive winning seasons, including a 10-0 record under Arthur St. L. Mosse that year and a 10-2 mark in 1905; a 6-4 mark under E. R. Wingard in 1906, and 8-2 under scholarly John Moorhead, a Yale product, in 1907.

In 1908, Joe Thompson, a member of the undefeated 1904 squad and the captain of the 1905 team, took over as head coach.

(Thompson later would become one of the most decorated American soldiers in World War I, winning the French Croix de Guerre, the British Medal of Honor, the American Distinguished Service Medal, and the Congressional Medal of Honor.)

Thompson's first Pitt club in 1908 went 8-3, and the following season he guided the team to a 6-2-1 slate. Then in 1910, Pitt had a remarkable season, finishing unbeaten (10-0), untied, and unscored upon.

Thompson coached two more seasons (4-3-1 in 1911 and 3-6 in 1912) before giving way to Joe Duff in 1913. Duff guided Pitt to a 6-2-1 season in 1913 and 8-1 in 1914 before being replaced by Pop Warner in 1915.

"Each player purchased his own nose guards, shin guards, shoes, and moleskin vests, which were then in vogue, and we all contributed to a fund to buy a football for the first game."

Guy M. "Chalky" Williamson lettered at Pitt from 1913-15 and was noted for his punting and open field running ability.

The Pop Warner Era: National Glory Comes to Pitt

Pop Warner (above): A coach for the ages. George McLaren (right) played fullback at Pitt from 1915-18. During his career, he was never once thrown for a loss. He was a two-time All-American.

Glen Scobey "Pop" Warner coached at Pitt from 1915-23, and under his command the Panthers evolved into a national power. His teams were 59-12-4 (.787) and were recognized as national champions in 1915, 1916 (unanimously), and 1918 (unanimously).

Some of the greatest players in Pitt history, including Bob Peck, George McLaren, Tommy Davies, Herb Stein, Andy Hastings, Tiny Thornhill, H.C. "Doc" Carlson, Leonard Hilty, Dale Seis, Jack Sack, Pud Seidel, and Jock Sutherland played under Warner.

Warner, a stalwart, 200-pound guard at Cornell in the early 1890s, when Pitt's own football program was finding its legs, began his coaching career at Georgia in 1895. He returned to Cornell in 1897, and two years later took charge at the government school for Indians at Carlisle, where he was football coach, athletic director, baseball, track, and boxing coach through 1914 except for 1904, 1905, and 1906, when he was back at Cornell.

He left Pitt in 1924 for Stanford, where he remained through 1932. He returned east to coach Temple from 1933-38, after which he retired from active coaching. His nine-year record at Pitt was 59-12-4, and his overall career mark was 313-106-32.

Few coaches in the history of college football have influenced their players—and their peers—as significantly as Warner.

"His was a contemplative and deliberate mind," wrote Allison Danzig in The History of American Football. "It was behind the scenes, in the quiet of his study, that the genius of Warner, a tinkerer whose hobby was to take apart worn-out automobile engines and put them together again, found its expression. There he worked out the strategems, and devised the departures from orthodox football that won him recognition as one of the two most fertile and original minds football has known, the other's being Amos Alonzo Stagg.

"Warner was pre-eminently a creator, and his fame is secure as one of the trailblazers who led football out of the wilderness of massed, close-order, push-and-pull play into the more open game of speed, deception, and brains. His was one of the more intelligent and visionary minds that helped bring about the evolution of football from a mere physical test of unimaginative brute strength to a contest of skill in which the college youth was given the chance to show that there was something underneath his long hair besides a skull.

"There can be no questioning that Warner ranks among the greatest coaches football has known, and that he ranks second to none in the imagination, perception, and originality he brought to bear in moving eleven men upon a plain of turf."

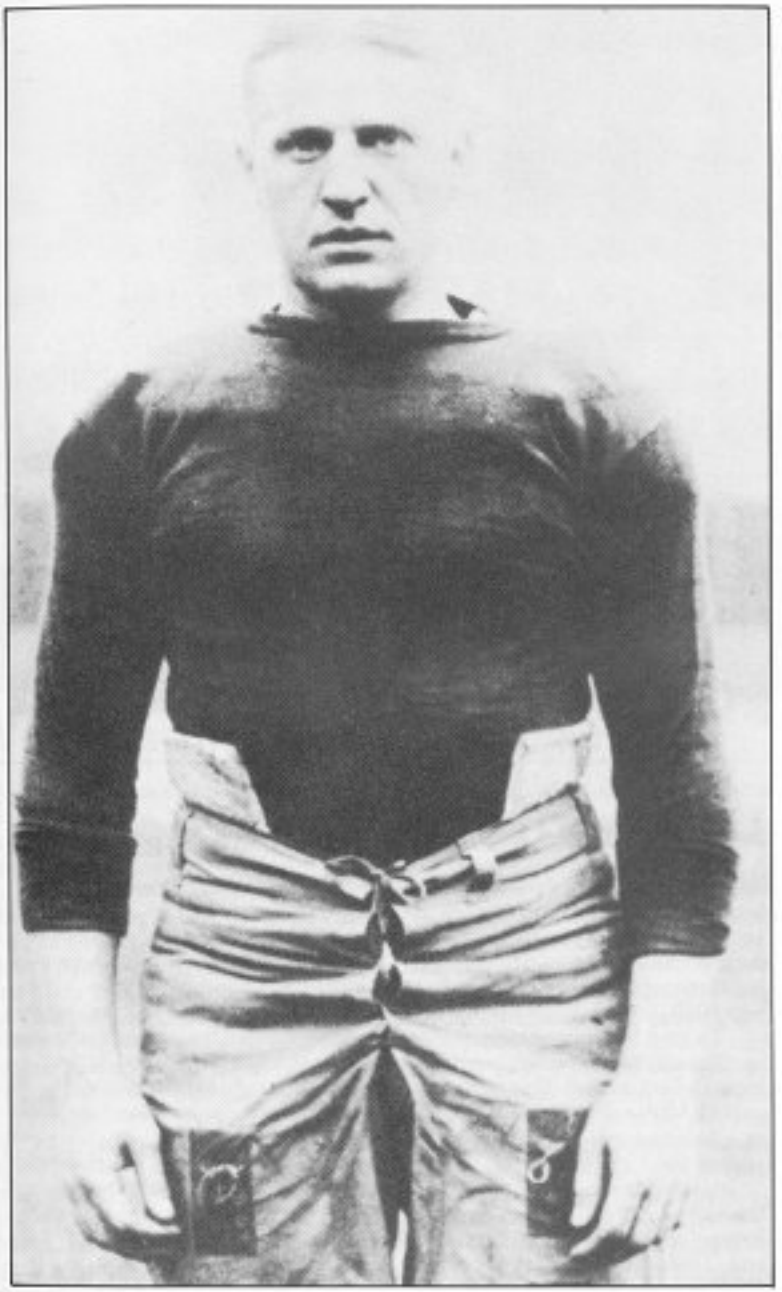
His teams operated from both the single wing and the double wing, inventions which sprang from his imagination. From those formations he used a bewildering set of spins, reverses, double reverses, fake reverses, runs from fake passes, and passes from fake runs.

Red Smith wrote in the New York Herald Tribune in 1954, "Pop Warner was a gruff old gent, kind and forthright and obstinate and honest. He was one of the few truly original minds in football coaching, and that made him a big man in his world. There is, however, a more important measure of a football coach than his contribution to and influence on the technique of the game. The quality of the man himself is revealed in the attitude of his former players after they have outgrown the awed hero worship of undergraduate days. After the boys who played for him had become men, Pop remained a hero to them."

That was certainly true of his Pitt players.

Doc Carlson, an All-America end under Warner and for 31 years a Hall of Fame basketball coach at Pitt, wrote of Warner in a letter dated March, 1953. "Over the years Glenn S. Warner proved himself to be most ingenious in football and in many of the harassing details of everyday life. From the repair of a newspaperman's eyeglasses to the invention of player equipment and the origin and development of football plays, Warner filled in many details to make a wonderful experience of association with him. Personality, originality, and the promotion of kindly human relationships are only part of the great trademarks of Glenn Scobey Warner. You couldn't tell any of his boys there was a finer gentleman, or a greater coach."

Bob Peck: A Standard for Greatness



Bob Peck, the center who "roved" and was one of the forerunners of the modern linebackers, became Pitt's first All-American in 1915 and repeated that honor 12 months later. "Stars may come and go," wrote Red Carlson, captain of the 1917 team, "but Bob will be everlastingly revered as the greatest of them all."

Sports Illustrated chose Peck as the center on its All-Century Team, which honored the top 11 men at their positions throughout the first 100 years of college football.

"It has never been easy for a lineman to achieve glory, as we are aware, for in football most of the romance thrives on dazzling runs and accurate passes," Sports Illustrated wrote. "But Peck taped his wrists, ankles, and headgear so there would be no mistaking him in a heap. Small but outrageously aggressive, Peck's yelling could often be heard high up in the stands when he made tackle after tackle and kept up the chatter and fierce mannerisms."

Last Year's Plunging Halfback Is Being Tried Out at Center for Pitt.

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 5.—The hard scrimmage this afternoon closed the first week of training for the University of Pittsburgh football squad. Most of the work of getting into condition is now concluded, and from now on it will be up to the coaches to create a fighting machine that will be able to smash its way through one of the heaviest schedules that has ever confronted a Blue and Gold team.

Duff sprang a big surprise this week when he shifted Bob Peck, a classy backfield performer on the last team, to the center position. With the arrival of Dutch Hockenmaith tomorrow, this will give Pitt a string of four center men—Shapira, Hockenmaith, Peck and Truxal.

Truxal is the only man who is new to Duff's system, but he seems to be possessed of the proper fighting spirit and will be on equal terms with the other candidates for the job. Shapira, last year's incumbent, seems to be in tip-top condition to put up a hot scrap to retain his honors and it will have to be a

World's Greatest 11

Pop Warner's unbeaten 1916 team, which was honored as national champion, was one of the greatest in college football history. A sportswriter from the New York Journal wrote this about the famous 1916 eleven: "Warner has taught . . . his pupils a combination of team play that establishes a new standard of efficiency in football . . . The great Pittsburgh gridiron machine is probably as smooth a running piece of machinery as ever was assembled . . . Warner's pupils have time and time again been termed the greatest squad of interferers of the age. The long, sweeping end runs in which Pittsburgh excels are nothing more nor less than a display . . . of a thorough course of instruction in the rudiments of the game . . . from one of the greatest masterminds of football."

Though most people associate "Doc" Carlson with Pitt basketball, he was also an All-America end for the Panthers under Coach Warner.

Doc Carlson: A Pitt Legend

Henry Clifford (Doc) Carlson was head basketball coach at Pitt for 31 years, amassing a record of 369 wins versus 247 losses while collecting National Championships in 1928 and 1930.

Carlson not only achieved great success on the hardwood, but on the football field as well. Doc Carlson gained All-America honors in 1917 as a standout end and captain of the undefeated 1917 squad.

In his athletic career at Pitt, Carlson gained four letters each in football, basketball and baseball, and is recognized as one of the finest athletes in the history of the school.

Carlson's great achievements were carried on into the classroom, where he received his M.D. degree in 1920 at the Pitt Medical School, leading to his nickname of "Doc."

He became Pitt's 6th basketball coach in 1922 and was beloved by the players and the students. For his accomplishments as a coach, he was named to The Basketball Hall of Fame.

Doc Carlson died at his summer home near Ligonier, Pa., on November 1, 1964 at the age of 70.

Carlson's second wife, Alice, still lives in the Pittsburgh area and attends as many Pitt sporting events as she can during the year.

Alice Carlson notes the differences between today's game and the one her late husband coached.

"When Doc coached, there were more passes and more plays," she said. "The games were lower scoring whereas today the scores are sometimes in triple figures."

Alice traveled to most of the team's away games when Doc was coaching.

"Doc was kind of strict with the boys," she remembers. "They weren't allowed to throw any papers on the floor of the train; they weren't allowed to smoke, and they had to keep their rooms tidy when they traveled. It was simple — if the boys did not listen to Doc, he would send them home."

Doc and Alice met while they both were watching the races at Rolling Rock. He always referred to Alice as his "girlfriend."

"We used to have so much fun together I guess it was just a pet name for me," she says.

Warner's First Loss a Controversy

Pop Warner won his first 29 games as head coach at Pitt, but his first loss, to the Cleveland Naval Reserves, was memorable for a number of reasons

Pitt, which in Warner's first three years had finished 8-0 in 1915, 8-0 in 1916, and 9-0 in 1917, was 4-0 in 1918 prior to facing The Naval Reserves, a team made up of stars from other colleges around the country, in the season finale. (World War I and a flu epidemic that year had abbreviated football schedules around the country.)

After playing Georgia Tech in a huge intersectional game on the Saturday before Thanksgiving and archrival Penn State five days later on Thanksgiving Thursday, Pitt traveled to Cleveland for this confrontation with highly regarded Naval Reserve Team. The contest was treated almost like a bowl game.

There was a sensational buildup, with a can-you-top-this fanfare attached to each team's prowess. But the game itself was dominated by controversy as a newspaper story from the following day indicated:

PITT LOSES FIRST GAME IN 4 YEARS BY NAVAL TEAM'S CROOKED WORK

"Pop Warner's Panthers were defeated by the Cleveland Naval Reserves here this afternoon, the final score standing 10-9. The Panthers were really not defeated, they were robbed of what should have been a football game—for want of a better name we will have to let it be called that. The officials of the game with one exception, the players—all of them ex-college stars—and the crowd were against the Pitt Panthers and they gave one of the greatest football teams in the country the rawest deal that was ever handed out to any visiting team in any city.

"The officials were hand-picked by the Clevelanders . . . the quarters, which were to have been of 15 minutes each, were cut short anywhere from five and a quarter minutes up. When Pitt went on to the field this afternoon the jury was already in the box and before the game the outcome was really arranged for the Clevelanders. The jury had the verdict before they had heard the evidence."

Warner was bluntly indignant about the entire affair. "We were robbed outright, and that is all there is to it," he said. "I can take a beating, when it is fairly administered, as well as anyone. But I never like to be cheated, and Pitt was certainly cheated at Cleveland. There was no attempt at fairness on the part of the offficials. We hadn't a chance in the world.

"The officials didn't want to be fair, and that charge is not difficult to prove. There were incidents at the Cleveland game that are impossible to describe in detail publicly. But there is plenty of evidence to show that it was a frameup against us right from the start.

"Why did Ray, the referee, declare the second period at an end when my team was on the Sailors' 1-yard line and five minutes left to play? Why did he make the teams play 26 minutes in the final period to allow the Sailors to score? The local timekeeper claimed his watch was broken. The whole thing looks fishy enough to be crooked. That last period was a disgrace. The crowd knew we were playing overtime just to let Cleveland score."

Pitt Athletic Director Chris Miller agreed. "It was barefaced robbery, nothing less. When the officials informed us that the timekeeper's watch was broken, we had Jim Marks of Kiski time the periods. His watch recorded nine minutes and 45 seconds of the 15-minute second period when Ray suddenly blew his whistle just as Pitt was about to score a touchdown from the one-yard line. And in the last period, when the Pitt players were exhausted, the referee made them play 26 minutes of actual playing time in order to give the sailors a chance to make their touchdown."

Warner also claimed that the Reserves hand-picked the officials, and that the Cleveland coach had tried to persuade the only official Warner had insisted on officiating from even coming to the game.

But when all was said and done, Pitt was stuck with its first loss in the Warner era.

"We were robbed outright, and that is all there is to it. I can take a beating, when it is fairly administered, as well as anyone. But I never like to be cheated, and Pitt was certainly cheated at Cleveland."

PITT DEFEATS PENN STATE

McLaren, Pitt, Smashing Way Through Right Tackle in State Game

Pitt's "Early" Dream Backfield"

Pitt's Dream Backfield of 1938, featuring Marshall Goldberg, Dick Cassiano, Curly Stebbins, and John Chickerneo, rightfully is hailed as one of college football's best ever. But in 1918, Pitt had unveiled an earlier version Dream Backfield of George McLaren, Katy Easterday, and Tommy Davies.

McLaren, an All-American every year he played, also was one of the greatest defensive backs of all time. Davies, a magical, mercurial halfback, was one of college football's early legends. Easterday, an all-purpose dynamo, probably never was given proper credit because he was playing with other stars in Pitt's backfield.

In 1918, though, Robert Maxwell of the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger picked all three—Easterday at left halfback, Davies at right halfback and McLaren at fullback—on his first-team All-America squad.

McLaren was a fearless, overpowering runner, whose line plunges were so fierce that Warner ordered Pitt's trainers to put extra padding in his headgear. Incredibly, he was never thrown for a loss in his entire four-year career at Pitt.

McLaren was compared to Pitt's earlier fullback great, Tex Richards, who had great bullish strength. McLaren was a little faster.

Wrote one sportswriter of the day: "He gets a fast start and gathers speed as he approaches the line, and then, head foremost, as if catapulted from a gun, he plunges into the opposing defense. But the first impact never halts him; it is generally the secondary defense that brings him down."

"George McLaren was the greatest plunging and defensive back of the season," wrote New York sportswriter Tom Thorp in 1918. "Few plays proved too difficult for McLaren to diagnose almost before they got under way. McLaren's sterling brand of game on offense did not suffer in comparison with his sensational defensive play."

Many observers felt that Easterday was Warner's best all-around player on that team. He was a "fast, aggressive, brilliant open field runner and line plunging back," wrote one admiring scribe. "On defense, he is the hardest kind of a secondary man to draw out of position."

Yale's Walter Camp noticed Easterday when he came to Pittsburgh to view the famous 1918 showdown against Georgia Tech. "His catching of forward passes is the best I have seen in years," Camp said. "Nine players out of ten would have given up when they saw the ball so far away, but Easterday kept right at it and won out. Every catch was a difficult one. But you mustn't forget that Davies is a very good passer."

Davies was much more than that.

He was a Walter Camp All-American in his freshman season, and twice again before he graduated. The wondrous 150-pound halfback led Pitt in rushing three times, and in all-purpose yards four times. Pop Warner thought so highly of Davies that when he was asked late in his life to pick an all-time squad of the players he had coached, he selected Davies to his first-team backfield. Jim Thorpe and Ernie Nevers were the other members of the backfield on that mythical "All-Warner" team.

In one memorable game against Penn in 1920, Davies threw a three-yard touchdown pass, returned a kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown, scored twice more on a pair of 30-yard runs, and returned an interception 60 yards.

Dick Jemison, of the Atlanta Constitution, wrote: "Tommy Davies runs with a peculiar twisting, driving motion, spins like a top, sidesteps prettily, and uses his head for considerably more than just a resting place for a hat."

"Davies seemed to be one of the hardest men to down that ever trod a gridiron," was another account in the New York Post. "His knack of rolling tacklers off by a simple sideways movement of the hips was a treat to behold."

Pitt Convinces a Nation

In 1918, Pitt and Georgia Tech met at Forbes Field in a hotly anticipated showdown between two of the nation's football juggernauts. The Panthers hadn't lost a game since 1914, and Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado was the pride of the South. The game was seen by 30,900, the largest crowd yet to see a football game in Pennsylvania.

Georgia Tech, coached by the legendary John Heisman, entered the game averaging nearly 90 points a game, having shut out Furman 118-0, and scoring more than 120 points in two other games. As for the Panthers, they were up to the challenge.

It was a raw, cold day, with an icy wind blowing across a muddy gridiron. In the morning there was a light snow flurry, making the southerners feel that perhaps they were in Alaska. They were shivering on the sideline. They were overmatched on the field; Pitt won 32-0.

The Panthers' sledgehammer running attack that had flattened opponents for three years failed against Heisman's Golden Tornado, and Warner had to devise something else. So he went to the air. He added a pass to his famous reverse play, with Katy Easterday handing the ball to Tommy Davies, who, instead of running, would pass back to Easterday—who made some great running fingertip catches.

The Panthers completed 6 of 13 passes for 126 yards, and compiled 142 yards rushing and had 126 yards on kick returns; Georgia Tech managed only 87 yards rushing, didn't complete any of its five passes, and had 10 kick return yards.

As the Pittsburgh Press put it the next day, "It wasn't long until Georgia Tech's alleged tornado simmered down to a zephyr and there was nothing stirring except the Pitt typhoon, which soon tied the jump shift claimers into a double bow-knot with fringe on both ends."

"The vaunted jump shift that ripped the lines of smaller Southern colleges to splinters for the past several seasons and enabled the Georgians to pile up scores that caused the football world to wonder, was a dismal failure," wrote the New York Post. "Throughout the game the Golden Tornado gained just four first downs, and just about enough ground to afford a comfortable grave for their football aspirations."

Davies scored two touchdowns (on punt returns of 50 and 55 yards), passed to Easterday for two more (one of 20 yards, one of 35), and McLaren scored on a three-yard run that was set up by a 34-yard "triple pass" play from McLaren to Easterday to Davies that went to the Tech 5.

Davies' performance in particular impressed the New York Post, which wrote: "Davies brought the crowd thundering to its feet when he caught one of Joe Guyon's twisting, swirling, spiral punts and raced 55 yards to plant the ball behind the posts. In his journey he hurled off five would-be tacklers and criss-crossed the gridiron at least twice.

"Davies was a demon on defense; his great speed and tackling ability was responsible for breaking up Tech's sweeping end runs. The defense would spill the interference and then Davies would catapult that lithe frame of his into the runner and he would stop instantly—sometimes quicker than that. There may have been other backs in the past that have been better, but there is none in America now who is his equal, much less his superior."

Georgia Tech, coached by the legendary John Heisman, entered the game averaging nearly 90 points a game . . . As for the Panthers, they were up to the challenge . . . Pitt won 32-0.

Nationally known sportscaster Ray Scott, who is from Johnstown, Pennsylvania, broadcast Pitt football games during the 1950s, and was ABC's last-minute replacement for Bill Stern on the January 1, 1956 Sugar Bowl game between Pitt and Georgia Tech.

Pitt First on the Air

Harold W. Arlin of KDKA radio announced the first college football game ever broadcast on radio, the Pitt-West Virginia game of 1921.

In 1921 Pitt was involved in the first college football game ever broadcast on radio. The site was Pittsburgh's Field, Pitt's home prior to the construction of Pitt Stadium, and the opponent was West Virginia. The game was broadcast over KDKA, the nation's first radio station, which had made its official debut in November of 1920 with the Harding-Cox presidential election returns. The action was called by Harold W. Arlin, radio's first fulltime announcer.

Led by All-Americans Tom Davies and Herb Stein, Pitt defeated the Mountaineers 21-13. Arlin sat in the stands at Forbes Field, talking into a makeshift microphone lined with felt to filter out the noises from the field. Most of the radio sets at that time—and there weren't many—were homemade contraptions, fashioned from a Mother's Oats box with galena wire wrapped around.

The late Ed Conway was the radio voice of Pitt football from 1970-73.

Red Donley broadcast Pitt games for WWSW during the 1960s.

There was a mishap in Arlin's second football broadcast that year, Pitt-Nebraska at Forbes Field. He went a bit overboard when describing a Cornhusker touchdown. "I became so excited that my voice blew the station right off the air," Arlin said. "I had no idea this had happened and kept right on talking. As a result, they installed a switch that told us if we were on the air or off."

The next morning's paper commented on KDKA's modulation mishap: " 'Nebraska is over for a touchdown!' the announcer shrieked into the microphone. Then silence. Listeners shook their earphones and tinkered with their crystal sets. Five minutes passed and as mysteriously as it had stopped, the broadcast began again. Just one of the hazards as radio cuts its teeth on broadcasting college football. Harold Arlin was to blame for the silence. The game's excitement and radio's still unperfected state were the dual causes of the mishap."

Over the years, Pitt football games have been broadcast by WWSW and WCAE (now WTAE).

Woody Wolf, a former football coach and official, broadcast Pitt games during the 1930s.

Ray Scott, who later gained national prominence as a play-by-play announcer for NFL games on CBS, broadcast Pitt games during the 1950s and 1960s. His brother, Harold, also announced Panther games.

Other notable announcers to call Pitt games at various times were Bob Prince, who broadcast Pittsburgh Pirates baseball for 27 years, and Joe Tucker, longtime voice of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Warner's Football Wisdom

The off-tackle and reverses, as well as precision plays, reached full maturity with the 1916 team, regarded as one of college football's best ever. Pop used both the single and double wing attacks. He probably was the first to use an unbalanced line.

In his book, Football for Coaches and Players, Warner wrote scornfully of the shift as "a rhythmic fancy movement such as is necessary for the success of a Russian toe dancer . . . I firmly believe in dispensing with the Pavlova stuff and getting right down to the business at hand—of gaining ground with the least possible fuss and feathers.

"I think passing should be illegal. Something should be done to curtail the wild, promiscuous, glorified football that some teams (now) indulge in. They will throw long forward passes and figure on a percentage basis that if one of these connects, they will fluke a touchdown and win the game. That's what I'm against. I think a game of football should be strictly on a merit basis."

Jock Sutherland: A Football Man

The legacy of John Bain "Jock" Sutherland is perhaps best summed up this way: He was a football man.

Sutherland, a native of Scotland who, according to legend, played in the first football game he ever saw, is Pitt football's all-time crown jewel. Both as an All-America guard for the Panthers during a brilliant four-year playing career under Pop Warner, and later as a Hall of Fame coach whose dominating teams were knighted as national champions five times, he set impeccable standards of excellence at Pitt.

Sutherland became a larger than life figure not only at Pitt, but throughout the college football world.

When he died unexpectedly of a brain tumor in 1948, the city of Pittsburgh and the sporting world mourned the loss of one of the truly great men in sports.

"Jock, above all, was a leader," said the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette in an editorial upon his death. "This impressed you at once on first meeting him. Character, restraint, and sincerity were written in his bearing.

"There is nothing anybody can say about the passing of Jock Sutherland that isn't felt in the heart of every man and woman in Pittsburgh. In any list of the district's assets, he was close to the top."

Johnny Sutherland was one of seven children born to Mary Burns Sutherland, a descendent of the poet, Robert Burns. When his father, Archibald, suffered a fatal internal rupture trying to save the life of a fellow worker pinned under a fallen girder, Mary Sutherland sent young Johnny to America to join relatives here and escape from a life of certain poverty in Scotland.

When he arrived in America, the 16-year-old Sutherland was determined to educate himself and get ahead. After working his way through several prep schools, including one job as a night policeman in the Pittsburgh suburb of Sewickley, he entered Pitt's School of Dentistry in 1914.

During his early years in America, Sutherland focused his sturdy, 6-4, 210-pound frame on soccer, the game most popular in his native Scotland.

But when Joe Duff, the Pitt football coach in 1914, got one look at this tall, strapping Scot, he convinced him to try his hand at football.

By the second game of the season, "Jock," as he came to be known, became a starting guard. He flourished at the game. Like a bridge player who understands the system behind the play, Sutherland sensed the reasons for the moves on the gridiron, and he developed into one of the greatest guards in Pitt history. He became an All-American under Pop Warner, who succeeded Duff as head coach in 1915.

During his four years as a player, Sutherland only tasted defeat once; the Panthers were undefeated in his final three seasons, and were recognized as national champions in 1915 and 1916. The taste he acquired for victory as a player would carry over into his brilliant coaching career.

After a tour in the Army, during which he coached several camp teams, he accepted an offer in 1919 to become the head coach at Lafayette College. He spent five years at Lafayette, producing an eastern championship team in 1921, and defeating Pitt twice in a row.

When Pop Warner left Pitt for Stanford in 1924, Sutherland returned to his alma mater as head coach, where he remained through the 1938 season.

"I told you that our boys like to keep that ball and carry it somewhere. Other teams may like to throw the ball around. That's all right."

There was a touch of grandeur to Sutherland. Tall, strong, ruggedly handsome, with a formidable jaw and piercing blue eyes, "Jock Sutherland," wrote Look Magazine's Tim Cohane, "had a strength of mind, body, and purpose as unshakable and craggy as the hills enveloping his native Coupar Angus."

He was a commanding, almost majestic figure, an austere man of few words with a reserve not even his players could break down. To those who did not know him, he could seem forbidding. As a result, he earned a few unflattering nicknames over the years, including "the Great Stone Face," and the "dour Scot."

"But in his relaxed hours," wrote New York sportswriter Joe Williams, "which were not infrequent, there could not have been a more companionable man. His soft, pleasing voice rolled with the thistle of his native Scotland. He had wit and wisdom and a certain grace."

None of his players ever dreamed of addressing Sutherland, either during their playing days or in later years, as anything but "Doctor." The fierce devotion and respect they had for him lasted a lifetime.

Sutherland was a stern taskmaster. He sometimes would set the pace for his players by striding up the long steep hill leading to Pitt Stadium and insisting that his players do the same. He admonished those who hitched a ride from a passing car, in his Scottish burr, to "get off that cur." The penalty for those he caught riding up the hill: extra laps.

Sutherland never criticized a player publicly, and was privately considerate of them, especially in bad times. He was their champion, who fought tirelessly for them, who encouraged them and who rejoiced proudly in every advance each made both during their college days and long afterward.

"Although he was a driver, an exacting teacher, a stern disciplinarian, Sutherland's players knew he was interested in their futures," Cohane wrote. "He steered many of them into the professions. They knew also that he was inwardly warm, sympathetic to their problems, always their defender. When they lost, they had a feeling they had betrayed him."

That didn't happen often. In his 15 years as coach at Pitt, the Panthers compiled a brilliant 111-20-12 record. Four times, playing a rugged schedule, his teams were undefeated. Five times they were invited to the Rose Bowl. Five times they were recognized as national champions.

Pitt played Notre Dame six times from 1932-1937, and the Panthers claimed victory five times. After a decisive 21-6 loss to Pitt in 1937, Irish Coach Elmer Layden decided 'no mas' and reasoned Notre Dame would be better off not playing the Panthers. "I'm through with Pittsburgh," Layden said. "We haven't got a chance. They not only knock our ears back, but we are no good the next week. I'm calling off the Pittsburgh series."

Notre Dame was just one of the powerful teams Pitt faced in those years. Sutherland insisted on playing the most formidable schedule possible, and as a result he generally resisted pointing his team for any one game. For the most part, as far as the Pitt players were concerned, one opponent was just like another. They were taught to have a high regard for all of their opponents and to go—as Jock put it—helter-skelter from whistle-to-whistle.

He managed to keep his players at a high level all season by coaching them in a calm, professional manner. Locker room histrionics had no place in his system. There were no known "Win one for the Gipper" pep talks from Sutherland.

Before a game he would tell his players what he wanted them to do. At halftime he would inform them if they had failed to do that. If they were losing at halftime, he wouldn't whip them into a fury by screaming at them, pleading with them, or shedding tears over the calamity about to befall the old alma mater.

Consequently, Sutherland's teams didn't rush out of the locker room in a lather. He simply didn't believe in furious football—the fighting, crying, hysterical kind of football. He wanted his players to fight hard all the way. But he didn't want them to play with their heads whirling and tears of rage in their eyes. That wasn't his kind of football. His teams were known for their slamming, hammering, power football. But the force they exerted was a precision that called for clear, cold thinking rather than emotion.

Sutherland was a genius of defensive football, and his teams were always powerfully arrayed on that side of the ball.

Under his command, Pitt shut out its opponents 79 times in 15 seasons.

"His teams were hard to score on, even when you beat him, as Bernie Bierman, with two of the greatest teams in Minnesota history, found out," Grantland Rice wrote. "As great a coach as Bierman was, he needed the better material to beat Jock. They all needed better material to beat Jock. No one with inferior material ever drew a decision over Scotland's greatest football son."

Probably no football coach ever constructed a running attack with more precision, power, and sheen than Jock Sutherland. His teams were power teams, the backs running with fury behind devastating blocking.

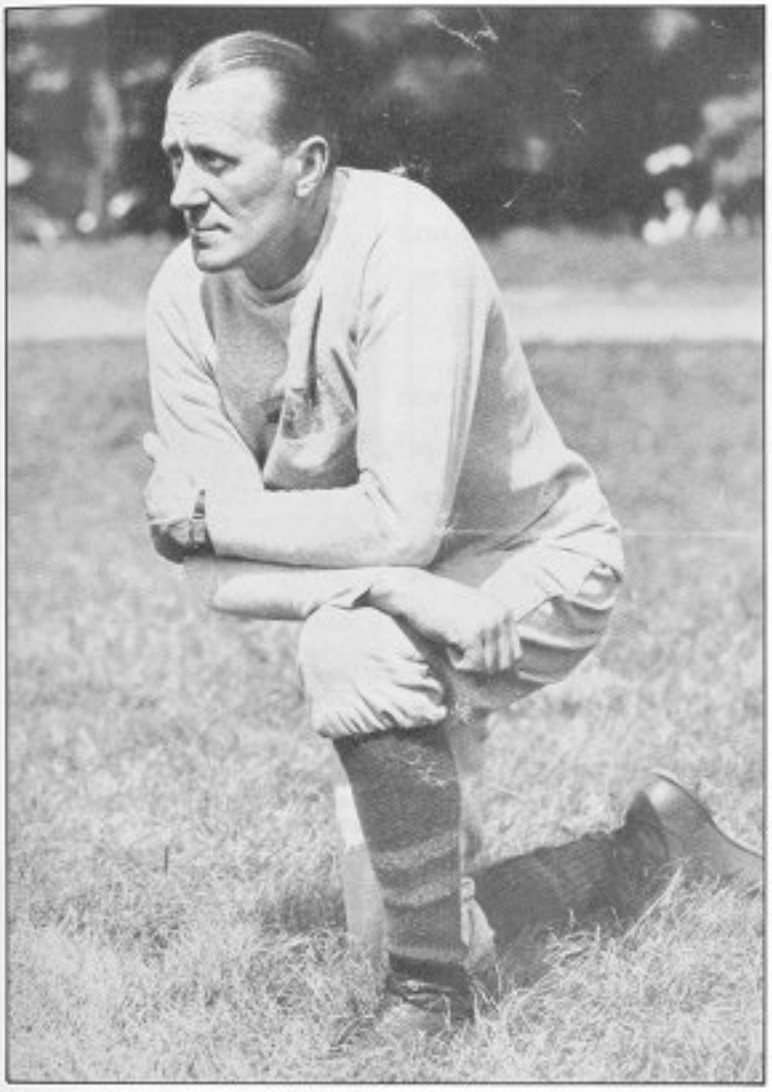
Pitt would begin by attacking the flanks and off tackle by sweeps, cutbacks, and reverses. After the defensive line would widen to compensate, Sutherland then would attack inside tackle and up the middle.

In some ways, Sutherland wanted the center to be the best man on his team. "The running game," he said, "which is, or should be, the better part of football, depends on split-second accuracy and timing from the center. If the ball gets to the runner a tenth of a second too soon—or too late—the running play may be spoiled. So in looking over my talent I pick a man for center who is never rattled or hurried or upset by anything."

"Sutherland rehearsed every play as if it were an investment in millions," wrote Tim Cohane. "He would trace the blocking routes with a stick until the pulling linemen ran them to the inch and split second. No other coach came closer to reducing the running game to a pure science."

As another sportswriter of the time put it, "There was no chi-chi in Sutherland football." He scorned frills and

A Football Man's Football Man



"There was something awe-inspiring about the doctor both as a man and as a coach," wrote Arthur Daley in the New York Times. "He was grim and unsmiling, with his laughter more in his eyes than his lips. He was dignity personified . . . Even his fellow coaches gave him a most respectful, 'Hello, Doctor.' He commanded that respect by his demeanor and by his record. It took an awfully long while to discover that there was warmth and approachability beneath that stern and forbidding outer shell. Perhaps he had fewer close friends than most men, but the few he had worshipped him."

Sutherland never married, perhaps because he was wed to the game of football. "I don't think a football coach—one like me, anyway—should be married," he once said. "Living the game as I live it would be too tough on my partner."

fancy stuff. The essence of his attack, which was dubbed the Sutherland Scythe, was the unsubtle, power-animated off-tackle play from the single wing he had learned under Warner. He also introduced the double-wing formation, with which Warner had experimented when Sutherland was a player. (Warner initially had been dissatisfied with the double wing, but Sutherland recognized possibilities in it which Warner, and others, would later also recognize.)

Deception to Sutherland was never as important as execution. He built his teams with scrupulous devotion to fundamentals. He was fanatical in his insistence that his players be well-grounded in the basics of blocking and tackling. Once each player knew his job, the off-tackle play was virtually unstoppable.

Sutherland's naked reverse, in which the wingback reversed without even one blocker, worked time and time again because the execution would trick smart defenses. The deceptive key was the wingback's fake block on the defensive tackle; he threw his shoulder into him and then reversed away from him. The ball, well hidden, would be handed to him by the tailback at the off-tackle hole.

"The Pittsburgh deep reverse became one of the most dreaded juggernauts let loose on the gridiron, terrifying the opposition with the weight of the blocking thrown in front of the ball carrier," wrote Allison Danzig in The History of American Football.

"Jock had the finest running attack football has known," wrote Grantland Rice, "and this doesn't bar Knute Rockne, Lou Little, Percy Haughton, Hurry Up Yost, Howard Jones, Pop Warner, and anyone you can mention. Jock's great Pitt teams rumbled and blasted out their yardage in the single-wing, unbalanced line attack. When Jock had the horses, which was his custom, the Panthers' attack was something to behold."

What annoyed Sutherland's coaching rivals was that they knew exactly what he was doing, and when, and still couldn't prevent it. As one observer put it, "The Pitt cyclone formed in a huddle, twisted toward the target in a predictable path, yet there still was no sure defense."

As Sutherland said, "We get the odds in our favor by having two linemen on the side away from the play pull out and run interference. That gives us three men and the ball carrier. When the nearest two secondary defensive men come into the picture, four to two means we're going to gain ground."

Pitt's devotion to the ground attack under Sutherland was well known. "Our boys like to keep that ball and carry it somewhere," Sutherland was fond of saying. "Other teams may like to throw the ball around. That's all right. But when it's in the air, it is anybody's ball. Along the ground, it's ours."

Nevertheless, when he had a good passer, such as Warren Heller from 1930-32, Sutherland used the pass often. Even when he lacked a good passer he could spring an effective passing attack quickly. In 1938, for instance, SMU packed its defense to stop the dreaded Pitt running attack, and Sutherland countered by going to the air almost exclusively for a 34-7 victory.

"After the past season I cannot praise the great old grid game too highly. In my four years at Pitt I have never seen a team which won with less swagger afterward or lost with less resulting censure of each other."

The Dream Backfield

Marshall Goldberg (this page) was Pitt's most publicized and popular back until Tony Dorsett came along in 1973. An electrifying runner and a galvanic blocker at Pitt from 1936-38, Goldberg was first-team All-American in 1937 as a halfback and in 1938 as a fullback. In 1938 he finished second to TCU's Davey O'Brien in the balloting for the Heisman Trophy.

The glory years of Pitt under Jock Sutherland in the 1930s featured tremendous backfield play, climaxing in 1938 with the marvelous "Dream Backfield".

The formation of the "Dream Backfield," which was intact as a starting unit for that one season only—1938—evolved this way:

In 1935, Frank Patrick was a triple-threat fullback, and shared the job with fellow sophomore Bill Stapulis; they were interchangable for the next three years. The right halfback was junior Bobby LaRue, the climax man in Pitt's dreaded deep reverse, and, according to one scribe, "the neatest, most elusive runner Jock Sutherland ever had."

In 1936, a pair of flashy sophomore halfbacks joined Patrick, Stapulis, and LaRue in the Panther backfield: Marshall Goldberg, a compact sophomore firebrand from Elkins, West Virginia, and Harold "Curly" Stebbins, a rangy all-purpose back from Williamsport, Pennsylvania. John Chickerneo, another young sophomore from Warren, Ohio, also entered the picture that year as an understudy quarterback behind John Michelosen.

Goldberg—who was named All-America at left halfback—Stebbins, Stapulis and Patrick were joined by a new sophomore phenom in 1937, Dick Cassiano. With such a deep and gifted stable of running backs, and with the clever Michelosen and Chickerneo sharing the quarterbacking job, Sutherland had an embarrassment of backfield riches. In fact, although the quartet of Goldberg, Stebbins, Cassiano, and Chickerneo would be dubbed the "Dream Backfield" the following season and would earn more fame as a unit, Pitt's 1937 backfield wrecking crew was much deeper at every position, and helped the Panthers win a national championship.

The unselfish Goldberg, who had led Pitt in rushing in 1936 (886 yards) and in 1937 (698 yards), readily complied, relinquishing his starting left halfback post to the talented, fuzzy-haired comet, Cassiano. With Chickerneo operating as the No. 1 quarterback, and Stebbins entrenched at right halfback, the Dream Backfield was in place.

The dazzling quartet became the blade of the Sutherland Scythe, earning kudos not only as the best backfield in the country, but as one of the best ever to play the game.

Fordham Coach Jimmy Crowley, one of the legendary Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, claimed the Dream Backfield was even more formidable than the immortal Irish executioners of 1924.

Crowley, who helped write football history at Notre Dame with fellow Four Horsemen Harry Stuhldreher, Elmer Layden, and Don Miller, said he never saw a backfield with the all-around capabilities of Marshall Goldberg, Curly Stebbins, John Chickerneo, and Dick Cassiano.

"The Notre Dame backs of 1924 were as fast as Goldberg, Stebbins, Cassiano, and Chickerneo," said Crowley after Pitt's 21-13 victory over Crowley's Fordham team in 1938. "We had superior passing and more skillful kicking by Layden. But we lacked the physical advantages . . . and consequently the power . . . of the four phenomenal Panthers."

In 1938, with Patrick, Stapulis, and Michelosen gone, Sutherland felt he had to make room in the starting backfield for Cassiano, the brilliant junior from Albany, New York. Since "Dandy Dick" was a natural left halfback, and because Sutherland wanted him on the field, he asked Goldberg to switch to fullback for his senior season.

"It is extremely doubtful that any backfield ever matched them for sheer power," wrote New York sportswriter Harry Grayson. "All are highly proficient and can run in either direction.

"Goldberg, who weighs 184 pounds and stands 5 feet 10½, would be the best guard or end on the Pitt varsity were he not a back. Goldberg is the hardest runner of the four, and is of good speed, although he and Chickerneo are not as rapid as Curly Stebbins, and Cassiano is the speediest of the quartet.

"Strictly a team man, Goldberg sacrificed the running position of left halfback this fall to block, and his teammates love him for it. He kicks well enough and throws a short pass with deadly accuracy.

"Chickerneo, who calls the plays, is the ideal blocker . . . would rather throw a good one than score a touchdown. It doesn't pay an end to fool Chick, for the next time the Panther quarterback will swipe him right up into the bleacher seats. Chick, who scales 188 pounds and is 6 feet 1 inch tall, kicks good enough and throws a nice, long pass.

"Stebbins weighs 192 pounds and stands 6-1. He runs like a thief and can pass uncommonly well when called upon.

"Cassiano, the smallest of the lot at 172 pounds and standing 5-10, has blazing speed, drive, and bounce, and while he plays the key position of left halfback, he has a fullback's instinct of picking up that extra yard."

The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, one of football's most famous backfields, held a reunion here yesterday. It was 30 years after they had closed their regular college career by beating Carnegie Tech, 40-19, in Forbes Field in 1924.

The Fighting Irish, of course, went on to trample Stanford, 27-10, in the Rose Bowl as a fitting climax to an unbeaten season.

Last night Quarterback Harry Stuhldreher, now a local steel company executive; Halfback Jim Crowley, in business in Ithaca, N. Y.; Halfback Don Miller, a Cleveland lawyer, and Fullback Elmer Layden, an official of a transportation firm in Chicago, were guests at the annual Big Six banquet in the Twin Coaches where 1,000 grid enthusiasts gathered.

Goldberg Only One Missing

Also present were three of Pitt's famous Dream Backfield of 1938, the fourth, Fullback Marshall Goldberg, being unable to get away from his work in Chicago. But Halfbacks Dick Cassiano and Curly Stebbins, now local businessmen, and Quarterback Johnny Chickerneo, successful grid coach of Sharon High, rubbed shoulders with the famous quartet from South Bend.

All but Crowley, a late arrival, greeted the local press at a luncheon in Bob Prince's Cameo Centre restaurant and swapped grid stories, new and old.

It developed that Center Adam Walsh, en route to the Rose Bowl, had dubbed the Irish line as the Seven Mules, writing that name on the railroad car which took the squad to Pasadena. The Four Horsemen tag had been given to the backfield earlier in the season by the late Grantland Rice, famous sports scribe.

Played Here First in 1922

Stuhldreher pointed out that the Horsemen played together as sophomores here for the first time in 1922. Layden was hurt and didn't get into the 1924 game. While the quartet has been together numerous times in recent years they had never met in this city since their last game against Carnegie Tech.

Each member of the two famous backfields made short talks at the luncheon. Stuhldreher was quick to deny an assertion that Chickerneo, a blocking back in the single wing, never carried the ball.

Chickerneo Fooled Them

"I was coaching Wisconsin and we had the scouting information that when Chick went back in punt formation he was sure to do only one thing, that was kick," Harry recalled. "So what happens but Johnny takes off and runs 72 yards for a TD. I think that was the only time he was a ball-carrier in his career and it had to be against us." I don't think he has caught his breath yet."

Chickerneo promptly added his bit.

"No, I ran one other time against Southern Methodist," he asserted. "That was because Cassiano threw a block and that was something so unexpected that I just had to take advantage of it."

Johnny Michelosen, the newly named head coach at Pitt, sat in with the former greats. It happened that his first coaching job was as backfield mentor of the Dream Backfield.

The Pitt-Fordham Series

Football games of the 1930s, like the wars of that period, were fierce struggles of strength and will waged over small patches of earth. Force drove headlong against force. Gains often came in feet and inches.

It was an age of sixty-minute men, players who blocked on offense, tackled on defense . . . and who were expected to stand up and take it all the time. Pain was part of the plan, as pads slammed into unprotected faces, as two or more men charged into an opponent and drove him into the ground.

"If you want to make All-America, you can do it against this [Fordham] team."

— Jock Sutherland, talking to Pitt team before its 1936 game at the Polo Grounds

Deception—the fancy faking and decoying that are so much a part of the game today—was only a small part of the design back then. The idea generally was to gang-bludgeon your opponents until they reeled back all the way into their own end zone—and beyond.

Contrasted with today's game of computerized scouting reports, situation substitution, blitzkrieg passing attacks, and quick, concealed ground strikes, it was dull, unimaginative sport. But it was a more perfect expression of football's hard-core fundamental elements, blocking and tackling. It was a tougher game played by a hardier breed of players. Stripped down to the raw business of 11 men throwing all of their speed and might into a manuever of great precision, the game then had a more basic appeal than today's sophisticated version.

This hard-leather helmet brand of football came to a resounding climax in a snippet of a series between Pitt and Fordham, who played seven times from 1935-41. The first three games of the series were titanic struggles which, amazingly, all ended in scoreless ties.

That famous trilogy initially matched the most dominating running attack of the era—perhaps the strongest ever—Pitt's Sutherland Scythe, against the best defensive line of the day, Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite.

Both Pitt and Fordham were 4-1 entering their first duel, which was played before 38,000 at the Polo Grounds in New York in 1935. It was a grueling, cold-hearted tug-of-war played on a wet field.

"Between the 20-yard lines, the field was soggy," wrote sportswriter/broadcaster Myron Cope. "It may have been soggy inside the 20s, but neither team penetrated that far to find out."

There were moments when the frustration and the force of the body collisions nearly unleashed angry passion on both sides. It was probably the roughest of the first three games, but in the end, the scoreboard read Pitt 0, Fordham 0.

The New York crowd, jubilant over a moral victory against the favored Panthers, surged onto the field after the game and tore down the goalposts.

The following season Pitt returned to New York and brought essentially the same squad, with one important addition: sophomore sensation Marshall Goldberg at left halfback.

Fordham came into the game undefeated. Pitt was 4-1, but the Panthers a week earlier had trounced powerful Notre Dame 26-0, with Goldberg gaining 177 yards.

In the locker room before the Fordham game, Sutherland gave for him what was an impassioned pep talk. He told his players he wanted the team to "look good in the big city." He reminded the players, "If you want to make All-America you can do it against this team."

For two quarters the teams waged a bruising war that led nowhere. Bobby LaRue fielded the second half kickoff for Pitt, raced upfield behind a funnel of blockers, emerging in the clear near midfield. Only one Fordham man stood in his way.

"My God, with the New York press in the stands," said LaRue, "there was my chance to make All-America. I threw the guy a fake, a very nice hip fake that by all rights he was supposed to take. But he didn't. He was too dumb."

That's the way it went for Pitt. A mixup in blocking signals on fourth down at the Fordham 3-yard line late in the third quarter sabotaged another golden scoring opportunity. The game ground on to its scoreless conclusion.

In 1937, Sutherland took his strongest team to New York to try to break this ongoing stalemate. The Panthers were loaded at every position, and had amazing depth. Quarterback Ben Kish, for instance, who would go on to play pro football for 10 years, was third string behind John Michelosen and John Chickerneo. Bill Daddio, an All-America end, shared his position with Frank Souchak.

In this game, Pitt actually crossed the Fordham goal line. On a halfback reverse play that had been custom designed for Fordham, Goldberg took a pitch from Stebbins at the Fordham 5 and charged into the end zone for an apparent touchdown.

"The tension that had been drawn taut through two and a half games snapped with a roar from 50,000 voices," wrote Jack Newcombe in Saga Magazine. "Like the baseball crowd that sits in cold terror through a no hit, no-run game, the Pitt-Fordham fans had squirmed and sweated, anticipated and dreaded this moment."

But the emotion changed suddenly when the crowd saw a penalty flag and a holding call against Pitt tackle Tony Matisi that negated the touchdown.

Pitt had other chances. Stebbins ran brilliantly throughout the game, but a hand injury kept causing him to lose control of the ball. Five fumbles by Stebbins plus three others by Pitt made a total of eight for the Panthers, six of which were recovered by Fordham.

When time ran out in the fourth quarter, the scoreboard displayed a now familiar sight: Pitt 0, Fordham 0.

When Crowley crossed the field to shake Sutherland's hand, he remembered telling Jock, "I would rather have been beaten 27-20 than have this happen again."

So the two teams had to wait yet another year to snap their three-year deadlock. For the 68,918 fans that packed Pitt Stadium for the Fordham game in 1938, it was worth the wait. (Actually, the announced crowd that day was 75,000, but Frank Carver, then the Pitt publicity man, later admitted that the figure was exaggerated; the actual count of 68,918 still stands as the Pitt Stadium attendance record, though.)

Adding to the carryover drama of the three previous scoreless ties, Pitt and Fordham both entered the 1938 game unbeaten. Pitt was ranked as the number one team in the country; Fordham was ranked third. SMU Coach Marty Bell, whose Mustangs had fallen to Pitt 34-7 the previous week, had said the Panthers were the finest team he had ever seen.

Bill Daddio broke the most famous scoring drought with a first-quarter field goal to give Pitt an early 3-0 lead. Fordham rallied and took a 13-3 lead into the fourth quarter.

But the gallant Panthers exploded for 21 points in a stirring fourth quarter to defeat the Rams 24-13.

A key play in Pitt's magnificent comeback came in the fading minutes of the third quarter, when the Panthers faced a fourth-and-one situation on the Fordham 28. Goldberg slammed over tackles for a first down, and Pitt went on to score to slice the deficit to 13-10.

Perhaps the key play of the game was a beautiful halfback reverse pulled by Cassiano and Stebbins. Cassiano took a lateral and faked around the right end; Stebbins took a handoff from Cassiano and dashed around the other end, carrying it to the Fordham 9.

"Pitt gave an almost terrifying display of sheer, smooth power," wrote Frank Graham in the New York Sun. "Fordham is big and strong and superbly coached, but it went down with a crash when the Panthers pulled the switch."

"I knew the Panthers were great," said Crowley, "but now I have a better understanding of their greatness."

The Game According to Sutherland

(From The Saturday Evening Post)

"When I travel the football circuit, there is scarcely an institution I visit that does not have old football scores painted all over the campus. There is one huge smokestack I can see in my mind's eye covered from top to bottom with commemorative figures of this sort. There is nothing like this at Pitt. Our students do not take their football so seriously as all that, bless them. They know it is only a game.

"Most athletic departments have huge trophy cases full of stuffed footballs, baseballs, and basketballs painted in the colors of the defeated teams and neatly lettered to show when and by how large a score the home boys acquired them. The idea of such a trophy room never entered anyone's mind at Pitt. We give the ball when we win it to one of the seniors. Then we all solemnly autograph it for him. And likely enough two weeks later his kid brother is playing with it in the street. That is all old footballs are good for in our humble opinion. Even when we beat one of the better teams, we feel no impulse to begin dating all of our history from that event.

"You know—this may lose me my union card—but I honestly do not want to have my teams undefeated, untied, and unscored upon. (Our schedules) are deliberately arranged so that we won't win all of our games. Our idea is to play each fall the toughest set of opponents we can assemble on one schedule and then sock it to as many of them as we can.

"But, at some point in the season, we want to have to face the situation of seeing whether we have what it takes to rebound after a defeat, and give perhaps a better club than the one that beat us the week before the whole works. We want to demonstrate to the players and to the spectators that tomorrow is always another day for a socker, and that one or two defeats are only temporary setbacks which can be canceled at the next opportunity.

"I look at it this way. If we complete a lot of forward passes against you, we can't claim all the credit. Your men simply failed to recognize what was going on. The same thing holds good for trick plays and fakes; if your men play their positions properly and sanely, our tricks will avail us nothing. As for laterals, we feel that the defense does not have a chance if the laterals are executed right. But when we turn on the power of our running attack, you have a fifty-fifty chance, and so do we. But if all of our blockers do their part correctly, the play is a touchdown. And it is an earned touchdown. You had a chance to stop it, but you weren't so good as we were. We socked it to you."

A Measure of Greatness

During one shining nine-year period during the 1930s (1930-38), Pitt lost only 10 games, playing grueling intersectional schedules that featured many of the national powers of the day. The Panthers' record during this glorious stretch was 70-10-7. Pitt turned out 16 All-Americans, including three repeaters. The two-time All-Americans were Joe "Mugsy" Skladany, Marshall Goldberg, and Bill Daddio. The others were Jess Quatse, Warren Heller, Doc Hartwig, George Shotwell, Izzy Weinstock, Art Detzel, Ave Daniell, Bill Glassford, Frank Souchak, and Tony Matisi.

"I want my teams to direct their plays at the other team's strong points. If we aren't good enough to sock it to 'em where they are strong, we don't deserve to win."

Perhaps the most divisive issue in the 203-year history of the University of Pittsburgh surrounded the events leading to and following Jock Sutherland's resignation as head football coach in 1939.

In his book, Pitt: The Story of the University of Pittsburgh, Robert Alberts devoted an entire chapter to the saga, labeling it "the most discussed controversy in the history of the University."

At the root of the problem, at least in the beginning, was a widening split between Sutherland, Pitt's popular and fabulously successful coach, whom the Saturday Evening Post had called "a national hero," and several University administrators, specifically Chancellor John Bowman and Athletic Director Don Harrison.

Despite annually unleashing truly dominant teams that ruled college football in the mid-1930s, Sutherland eventually began to sense a change in the wind. He complained in writing in February of 1937 to the Executive Committee of the Athletic Council that he was being permitted no voice in the scheduling of games, he had too few assistant coaches who were paid too little, he had no scout, and he had only one recruiter.

Complicating the situation was a desire on the part of Bowman and Board of Trustees chairman John Weber to position Pitt in the Western Conference (now called the Big Ten), which was looking for a replacement for the University of Chicago. Another big problem was a personality conflict between Harrison and Sutherland.

In the wake of Sutherland's complaints, Harrison resigned. But that didn't solve some of the larger problems.

Harrison was succeeded by James Hagan, a star player for some of Sutherland's teams in the late 1920s. Although he had been a subsidized player at Pitt, Hagan soon implemented a new policy sanctioned by Bowman—which became known as the Hagan Plan—that effectively eliminated grants based on athletic ability. Students with athletic ability, however, could be given paid work "on the same basis such help is given to other University undergraduates whose resources limit their chances of completing their education."

Sutherland had not been consulted nor did he see the Hagan Plan before it was released.

Weber, who had never participated in intercollegiate athletics, tried to allay widespread fears among supporters of the Pitt football program that the new policy would prove harmful to its health. "We think we will get enough good athletes without such plans [for recruiting]," he said. "We think we can handle our usual type of football sched-

Ode to a Scotsman

Famed sportswriter Grantland Rice was one of Jock Sutherland's many admirers in the fourth estate. Sutherland's sudden death in 1948 moved Rice to write the following:

"There's a fog now over Scotland, and mist on Pittsburgh's field;
There's no valiant hand to flash the sword or hold the guiding shield;
There's a big, braw fellow missing from the golden land of fame
— For Jock Sutherland has left us — and the game is not the same.

We hear the roaring chorus — and we get the age-old thrill;
But when a pal has left us, there's a gap that none can fill,
There's a shadow on the thistle and the Panthers' growl is low
— As the bagpipes send their message to the friend we used to know.

The laurel fades — the olive dies — the cheers are silent now,
No more the chaplet from lost years adorns the master's brow.
But here's to Jock, through fog and mist, beyond the final score,
— As we turn down an empty glass to one we'll see no more."

ule without recruiting. We will have good teams and we will be able to compete with teams that will attract crowds to Pitt Stadium."

He couldn't have been more wrong.

"The Hagan Plan was supplanted in February 1938 by a totally uncompromising set of regulations called the Code for Conduct of Athletics, Code Bowman for short," Alberts wrote. "Henceforth, there would be no athletic scholarships at all, no loans or remissions of tuition based on athletic skill, and no financial aid . . . with the purpose of subsidizing the athlete or of promoting athletic success.

"Thus the one loophole that had made the Hagan plan bearable to alumni was closed: the new code specifically prohibited alumni and other friends of Pitt athletics from giving private assistance [jobs] to worthy athletes. The Athletic Council of the Alumni Association was to be dissolved and replaced by a faculty committee. Bowman now had greater control over a program he had called 'a thorn in the side of the administration.'

This naturally created a bitter outroar from a large segment of the alumni, who saw the handwriting on the wall: the Pitt football program was being de-emphasised.

Sutherland saw it too, of course, and on March 4, 1939, he typed a letter of resignation to Bowman. In the letter, he stated, "Frankly, the future athletic course is so indefinite and vague that I have concluded it will be for the best interests of all concerned if I ask you to accept my resignation . . . I know from our conversations that you have no desire to have me stay on under conditions which cause me great worry and unhappiness . . .

"The present system of athletic administration has resulted in conditions which, for me, are intolerable . . . I make this decision with genuine regret because I have been associated with the University as a student and as a member of the faculty for twenty-five years."

Bowman accepted Sutherland's resignation, which shocked and stunned the University community and the entire sports world. There were protests and students threatened strikes, but the decision was irrevocable.

"Some fifteen hundred alumni and varsity lettermen gave Sutherland a farewell testimonial at the William Penn Hotel," wrote Alberts. "Telegrams were read and tributes delivered. When the program went on radio, Floyd Rose, master of ceremonies, introduced the affair to a coast-to-coast radio audience as the celebration of a calamity. In his address Sutherland made his only public allusion to Bowman during these days: He said that he could see 'no place in this city of dynamic poetry of noise, strong muscles, and great courage' for the verse of daffodils, pink sunsets, and milky moonlight mixed with anemic idealism."

What Sutherland referred to was Bowman's unrealistic conception of Pitt's athletic respectability, which centered around Bowman's desire to establish relations with the Big Ten.

"Then, as now," wrote Harry T. Paxton in a 1948 Saturday Evening Post story on Pitt's long climb back to football prominence, "the Big Ten was about the toughest league in the country, despite a conference code prescribing limitations on recruiting and subsidization. Yet Pitt, operating under a far stricter code, began scheduling three and four Big Ten schools a year, with the hope of eventually being admitted to the conference itself.

"The inevitable happened. In 1938, Jock Sutherland's last year, Pitt still had enough left to win eight of its 10 games and finish eighth in the Associated Press ranking of football teams. In 1939, Chuck Bowser, whom Jimmy Hagan hired for the hopeless task of succeeding Jock, had a 5-4 record. From then until 1948, Pitt never had another winning record. The Panthers' claws had been pulled. The old man-power flow was down to a trickle. Pitt had hundreds of scholarships and jobs for needy students, and a few of them found their way into the hands of boys with some football experience, but it was all very unofficial and low pressure."

Nevertheless, the schedules remained very high pressure, with Pitt sending undermanned squads onto the field against the best football teams in the country.

As Sutherland would put it years later, "It was all right with me if they wanted to de-emphasize the team, but not unless they de-emphasized the schedule, too."

That, in the final analysis, was the rub.

Steve Petro, a longtime coach and administrator in the Pitt Athletic Department (currently an Assistant to the Athletic Director), won a first-string berth in the training period prior to the 1937 Rose Bowl, and thus became the first player ever to start his initial varsity contest in the Rose Bowl.

Pitt's New Deal in Football Begins Spring Drills

The March 31, 1939 Pittsburgh Post-Gazette heralded the start of the post-Sutherland era at Pitt. The Panthers' new coach, Charley Bowser, welcomed 43 players for the opening day of spring practice.

The 1940s and early 1950s were not a glorious era of success on the field for Pitt. The University suffered the same kinds of problems as many other "big-time" schools during the war years: decline in attendance, funding shortages, transportation problems, game cancellations, the discontinuance of athletic scholarships, and reductions in recruiting.

"Some of the more fortunate colleges escaped the dragnet of trouble by using service trainees to play football," wrote Jack Henry in Hail To Pitt, "but Pitt was among those forced to survive with 17-year-old freshmen and 4-F's. An added blow was that when the Pearl Harbor tragedy occurred, Pitt had not yet recovered from the malady known as the post-Sutherland blues."

After nearly a quarter century of coaching stability in the hands of Sutherland and, before him, Pop Warner, the head coaching position turned into a revolving door.

During the 16 years from 1939-1954—the years between the reigns of Sutherland and John Michelosen—seven coaches came and went:

Charlie Bowser (1939-1942); Clark Shaughnessy (1943-1945); Wes Fesler (1946); Walt Milligan (1947-1949); Len Casanova (1950); Tom Hamilton (1951); and Red Dawson (1952-54).

The Panthers' record during that 16-year stretch was 57-84-3. There were only four winning seasons, no bowl games . . . plenty of frustration. (By comparison, Pitt's record in the previous 16 years was 114-24-12, with five national championships, five Rose Bowl invitations, All-Americans galore, and the respect of the college football world.)

Yet if the '40s and early '50s represented a comparatively bleak period on the field in Pitt's football history, it also was a different kind of proving ground for the gallant young men who strove against long odds to try to reclaim Pitt's place among football's elite.

They weren't always successful, but according to Nick Bolkovac, a talented tackle and Pitt's captain in 1950, there were some different rewards for the players on those teams.

"The men of the Sutherland era, those of the Johnny Michelosen and Johnny Majors teams, and the players

Pitt First in the Air

Pitt football was flying high in the 1930s, both figuratively and literally. Pitt was college football's air travel pioneer, becoming the first college grid squad to travel in an airplane for its 1939 game against the University of Washington.

The total traveling party of 41 (35 players, 3 coaches, 1 trainer, 1 doctor, and 1 manager) used two DC-3s. They departed on Wednesday morning with stops in Chicago, Madison, and an overnight stay in Minneapolis. They continued the trip on Thursday, with stops in Fargo, Billings, and an overnight stay in Missoula, Montana. Friday had a stop in Spokane before a 6:30 p.m. arrival in Seattle.

The team's departure after the game was delayed by bad weather from Sunday until Monday. TWA had not yet flown over the Rockies, and the pilots flew visually over the route of Seattle to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Albuquerque, Amarillo, Kansas City, Columbus, and Pittsburgh, arriving at 3:00 a.m. Tuesday.

Chester Smith, a sportswriter who had covered the game for a Pittsburgh newspaper, left Seattle by train following the game on Saturday and beat the team back to Pittsburgh.

Pitt later was credited with being the first team to travel by jet—booking space in the rear of a jet plane going to Los Angeles in 1959.

of the modern era have their own pockets of camaraderie," says Bolkovac, whose 23-yard interception return for a touchdown helped Pitt beat Penn State 7-0 to hand the Nittany Lions their only loss of the 1949 season. "Their accomplishments in each of their periods form a basis of understanding which bind them together.

"But those of us in the '40s suffered with the limited support the University gave us, we survived the politics, but more importantly we understood that mental and physical toughness were requisites for survival.

"We knew that intestinal fortitude and pride were required to overcome adversity and to enable us to stand toe-to-toe and to do battle with the best the country had to offer. We knew how the deck was stacked, but it did not deter us. Adversity was a companion we accepted as a teacher. It taught us what we were made of and what we could be. We knew who we were and what we were. We were Pitt!

"It was that determination to defeat adversity that enabled us to garner many unexpected victories and many near victories. And I believe what gave us our strength to persevere, what gave us the determination to stand up to the best, was the Pitt spirit and tradition. That tradition may have been tarnished slightly during our era, but it was never trampled upon. In many ways, it may have been Pitt's finest hour."

Pitt certainly also had its share of stars during that era. Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones was a wonderful running back in the early 1940s. He almost single-handedly helped Pitt upset a great Fordham team in 1941 with a performance that ranks among Pitt's greatest.

"It was the most amazing individual performance I have ever seen," said Fordham Head Coach Jimmy Crowley of Jones's effort, which included 106 yards rushing, returning an interception 30 yards for a touchdown, pinpoint passing, and continually coming through in the clutch when the Panthers needed him.

"Special Delivery" Jones was special on defense too; in 1941 he set Pitt records that still stand for most interception yardage in one game (132 vs. Nebraska) and in a season 224.

There were other standouts. Ralph Fife, an All-America guard in 1941; Jimmy Joe Robinson, Pitt's first black player and a game-breaking running back in the mid-1940s; Bill McPeak, an outstanding end and Pitt's 1948 captain; Lou "Bimbo" Cecconi, who led Pitt in rushing in 1947, 1948, and 1949 and captained the Panthers as a senior in '49; Carl DePasqua, a top back and premier punter in the late 1940s; halfback Billy Reynolds, whose 748 yards rushing in 1952 was the highest figure in between Marshall Goldberg's 886 yards in 1936 and Tony Dorsett's 1,686 in 1973; quarterback Bob Bestwick, who became the first Pitt quarterback to pass for more than 1,000 yards (1,165) in 1951; Bernie Barkouskie, an All-America guard in the late 1940s; Eldred Kraemer, an All-America tackle in 1952; and Joe Schmidt, the Panthers' All-America linebacker who played from 1950-52.

Against Fordham in 1941, Pitt's Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones (above) had 106 yards rushing, returned an interception 30 yards for a touchdown, and was the key to Pitt's 13-0 upset win. That same season he had 132 yards in interception returns against Nebraska.

Joe Schmidt: Football at the Boiling Point

Few players in the illustrious history of Pitt football have played the game with the fire and intensity that Joe Schmidt displayed during his brilliant career in the early 1950s.

Although Pitt's success as a team was handicapped during Schmidt's career by the fact that in his four years he played for four different head coaches, he established himself—both at Pitt and later during a sterling career with the Detroit Lions—as one of the finest linebackers the game has known.

At Pitt, Joe began as a fullback and a guard, but as a sophomore Len Casanova switched him to linebacker, where he became an All-American. At Pitt he displayed the skills of anticipation, split-second defensive instincts, and deadly tackling that made him an eight-time All-Pro with the Lions.

Schmidt was destined to be a football player from an early age.

"Joe began playing rough, tough football against full-grown men on the sandlots of Western Pennsyvania when he was only 14," wrote Myron Cope in The Saturday Evening Post. "Joe was a tackle on the St. Clair Veterans, a team that was otherwise made up of men who had served in World War II. He was a big boy then, weighing 175 pounds, but he didn't have a whisker on his chin. When the St. Clair Veterans visited the Western State Penitentiary to play a team of convicts, he had to lie about his age to get inside the prison walls."

Joe's older brother John, who had played for a Carnegie Tech team that went to the Sugar Bowl, coached the St. Clair Veterans.

It was watching John play in games against the Panthers that helped persuade Joe to attend Pitt.

His college career was rife with injuries. As a freshman, he broke two ribs. In his sophomore season he broke his wrist in spring practice and separated his shoulder in the fall. As a junior, he badly wrenched his knee in the preseason. As a senior in 1952, he tore knee cartilage in the opening game against Iowa, and then came back two weeks later against Notre Dame, in which he received a concussion and hemorrhage that put him in the hospital for 10 days.

But when he was on the field, he was a force to behold.

He played the game at the boiling point. Head down, he would charge straight into thundering linemen. They would meet him head on . . . with a crashing of helmets and a thudding of shoulder pads. Schmidt would split the would-be blockers like wooden soldiers and blast a ball carrier into the next county.

He personally—sometimes almost single-handedly—led Pitt to some tremendous victories during his career—a 21-7 victory over Miami in 1951, a 13-7 win over Penn State in 1951, a 21-14 win over Ohio State in 1952, and the memorable 1952 victory against Notre Dame, when Schmidt's pregame address to his teammates (along with his 60-yard return of an interception) helped spirit the underdog Panthers to a 22-19 decision against the Fighting Irish in South Bend.

Following his playing career with Detroit in the NFL, which earned him a spot in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Schmidt served briefly as an assistant coach for the Lions, and then as head coach from 1967-1972, leading Detroit to its only playoff appearance in the 1970s.

One of the storied rivalries in Pitt's football history has been the Panthers' series with Notre Dame. From Pitt's 12-0 upset of Notre Dame's "Team of the Century" in 1932 to the 1958 thriller when Bill Kaliden's touchdown with 11 seconds left gave Pitt a 29-26 win; from Marshall Goldberg's brilliant 177-yard performance as a sophomore in Pitt's 26-0 win in 1936, to Tony Dorsett's record-setting 303-yard rushing effort in the Panthers' 34-20 victory in 1975; from the valiant, Hube Wagner-led 0-0 tie in 1911 to Joe Schmidt's fiery pregame locker room address that inspired the Panthers to a 22-19 upset of the Fighting Irish in 1952, Pitt and Notre Dame have played many pulsating games over the past 80 years.

The series began with three taut games played in 1909, 1911, and 1912.

Notre Dame (which was nicknamed the Catholics at the time) won the inaugural contest in 1909, 6-0. The game was played in Pittsburgh in front of 6,000 fans, 1,000 of whom had traveled from Indiana to see Notre Dame's first football game in the East. Notre Dame and its fans found they had their hands full with Joe Thompson's fired up Panther squad.

The game was, according to the Pittsburgh Press, "full of surprises and some of the most spectacular football ever witnessed in this city, both of the old style and open variety."

It took some chicanery on the part of Notre Dame to decide the outcome. "With the ball in the center of the field," wrote one reporter afterward, "Notre Dame right end Joe Collins feigned an injury and fell down in apparent agony about 20 yards from the two teams. Notre Dame lined up as usual, apparently not noticing their injured end (O, the wily rascals!) and Pitt, watching the ball, did not notice the trick. Don Hamilton suddenly threw a pass and Collins jumped up and caught the ball, running for a 30-yard gain. On the next play Hamilton faked a kick but instead passed to Matthews for the touchdown.

The two teams met again in 1911, and played a classic, thrilling 0-0 tie. Pitt, coming off a pair of losses, entered the game 2-2. Notre Dame, 4-0, coming off an 80-0 win against Loyola of Chicago, and featuring a lad named Knute Rockne playing end, was favored by as many as 18 points.

But as the Pittsburgh Press reported at the time, "The University of Pittsburgh football team came back with a vengeance yesterday. Although crippled by having captain Jack Lindsay, one of the cleverest and steadiest players, and Auggie Blair, a stonewall lineman, on the sidelines, the Blue and Gold played the much-touted Notre Dame University team a 0-0 game."

Pitt's great end, Hube Wagner, "was in every play" and his tackling was spectacular. Ross Feightner blocked three kicks and played "one of the greatest games ever seen."

"The result of the game was a virtual victory for the Gold and Blue," wrote the Pittsburgh Post. "Coach Thompson's men, during the greater part of the game, played rings around their rivals, out-punting them, out-tackling them, and out-generalling them throughout the better part of the four, long hard-played periods. At no time during the present season have Thompson's men shown anything like the aggressiveness and dash in both defense and attack which they employed against the Indiana eleven yesterday."

Notre Dame won the 1912 contest, but not by the score most had expected. From the Pittsburgh Press account: "Coming here heralded as the greatest team in the entire west, and making no attempt to conceal their belief that a score of at least 30 would be rolled up, the Catholic footballers were glad to get away with a 3-0 victory."

Wagner was again a demon for Pitt. According to one newspaper account he "played football that would have done credit to any man that has ever shone at the great college game in the country. He saved the game by daring tackles, gained every time he carried the ball, and his kicking was as good as anything ever seen at Forbes Field."

At the finish, Notre Dame Coach John Marks remarked, "that man is one of the greatest players I ever saw perform. Talk about an All-American. He should be handed a position without a contest."

The two teams would not meet again until 1930, when Notre Dame prevailed 35-19. The Irish won again in 1931, this time by a 25-12 count, and when Notre Dame's famed "Team of the Century" invaded Pitt Stadium in 1932, some probably wondered if Pitt would ever defeat the Fighting Irish.

But beat them Pitt did! The Panthers shut out the mighty Notre Dame juggernaut 12-0, one of eight shutouts in Pitt's 8-1-2 national championship season.

That victory began a string of success against Notre Dame that saw the Panthers win five of six games from 1932-37. Notre Dame was shut out four times during that span and could manage only 15 points.

In 1937, before a capacity crowd at Notre Dame Stadium, Pitt defeated the Fighting Irish at their own patented comeback game, scoring three touchdowns in the fourth quarter for a crushing 21-6 decision.

Goldberg lit the fire for Pitt, firing a long pass to Fabian Hoffman and then powering to the Notre Dame 1 to set up the go-ahead score. Curly Stebbins climaxed a 66-yard touchdown march with a 26-yard reverse for a score. And an interception by Stebbins set up a 21-yard touchdown run by Frank Patrick.

The Irish were held to 97 yards and just three first downs.

The series was interrupted for five years before resuming with a 41-0 victory by Notre Dame in 1943. That win began a string of eight consecutive victories—most of them lopsided—for the Fighting Irish.

Notre Dame's streak ended in 1952 when the Panthers, inspired by a pregame speech by All-American Joe Schmidt, defeated the Fighting Irish 22-19.

Pitt was coming off a 49-20 loss to Oklahoma—Schmidt missed that game with an injury—and undefeated Notre Dame was next. Before the game, Schmidt kindly asked Head Coach Red Dawson to leave the room for a minute or two. Alone with the players, Schmidt stirred their blood.

"Look, we're from Western Pennsylvania," he said. "Notre Dame has guys from Western Pennsylvania. They think they are better than we are. They've brainwashed themselves. But we can beat them. Damn it, let's go out and win this ballgame."

And Pitt did, 22-19, fueled in part by a 78-yard touchdown run by Billy Reynolds and a 60-yard interception return by Schmidt.

In 1958, Pitt and Notre Dame played an unforgettable game at Pitt Stadium. The Panthers spurted ahead 15-0 on a pair of second-quarter touchdowns by wingback Dick Haley (and a two-point conversion).

Notre Dame quarterback George Izo brought the Fighting Irish back with a pair of touchdown passes before the first half ended, making it 15-14. Izo sneaked over for a TD in the third quarter, to make it 20-14, but Pitt quarterback Ivan Toncic scored on a 10-yard run and Pitt opened the fourth quarter clinging to a 22-20 lead.

A 72-yard pass from Izo to Red Mack set up a one-yard touchdown run by Izo to put Notre Dame back on top, 26-22.

But with 6:09 left in the game, Pitt began a magnificent drive on its own 27-yard line. Senior Bill Kaliden, replacing the injured Ivan Toncic at quarterback, spirited the Panthers down the field.

With just 11 seconds left and faced with a fourth-and-goal in front of the massed Notre Dame defenders, Kaliden sprinted wide to his right and lunged into the end zone for the winning touchdown. The goal posts came tumbling down, and Pitt had one of its most dramatic victories ever.

Many more dramatics were provided by Pitt All-American Tony Dorsett in the mid-1970s.

"When I was being recruited by Notre Dame," he said, "I heard that one of their assistant coaches had called me a skinny little kid who was too small for big-time football. That was always an incentive for me."

Incentive enough to set an NCAA record for most yards rushing gained by one back against one school.

He rushed for 209 yards against Notre Dame as a freshman in a 31-10 loss to the Fighting Irish in 1973, becoming the first back to crack the 200-yard barrier against the Irish. Although Notre Dame limited him to just 61 yards in its 14-10 win over Pitt in 1974, the following year Dorsett exploded for 303 yards, the most ever in one game against the Irish. He also caught three passes for 71 more yards, for a total of 374 yards on the day.

"Outlined against a bright blue November sky last Saturday," wrote Marino Parascenzo in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, "the Four Horsemen rode again. This time their name was Tony Dorsett."

It was hardly hyperbole. NCAA researcher Steve Boda had dug back into the record books and discovered that 51 years earlier, on October 18, 1924—the day sportswriter Grantland Rice gave the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame their famous nickname—the Fighting Irish quartet of Harry Stuhldreher, Don Miller, Jim Crowley, and Elmer Layden had combined for 310 yards rushing and receiving in a 13-7 win over Army.

In a nationally televised 1976 season opener at Notre Dame, the Irish were determined not to let Dorsett run wild again.

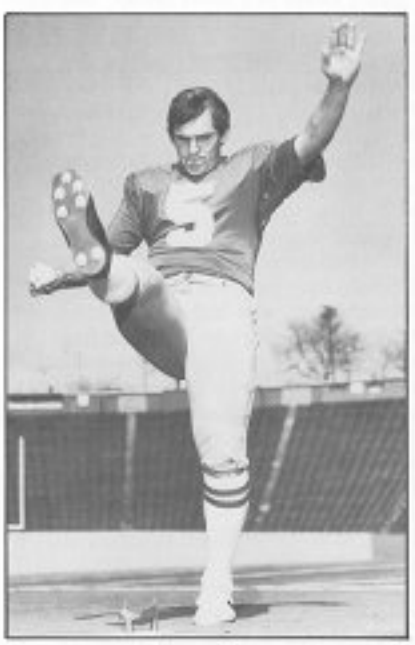
On the bus ride to the stadium, Dorsett noticed a few dummies of himself hanging from trees. One of the dorms had a large tombstone with his number 33 painted on it. The inscription read, 'Here lies Tony Dorsett, buried under a sea of Notre Dame tacklers.'

The Notre Dame coaches must have felt Dorsett couldn't run very well in grass, and there were rumors that they got their grounds crew into the act. "The grass must have been a foot high," Dorsett would later joke.

Notre Dame took the opening kickoff and drove for a touchdown. On Pitt's first offensive play from scrimmage Dorsett broke loose for a 61-yard run to set up a Pitt touchdown, and the Panthers went on to crush Notre Dame 31-10. Dorsett wound up with 181 yards in the tall grass, giving him a total of 754 yards in his four games against the Irish—the most ever gained by one back against Notre Dame.

The Fighting Irish won the next three games between the two schools, and then Pitt won three in a row, including a 10-9 thriller at Notre Dame Stadium in 1986, when freshman Jeff Van Horne kicked a 29-yard field goal in the closing minutes of play, and a 30-22 win at Pitt Stadium in 1987, when the Panthers exploded to a 27-0 halftime lead and held on to thwart a dynamic second-half Irish rally.

Notre Dame has won the past three games, 30-20 in 1988, 45-7 in 1989, and 31-22 last year.



Pitt's 31-10 win at South Bend in 1976 is Notre Dame's worst loss at home since 1963 when Navy, quarterbacked by Roger Staubach, defeated the Irish by that same margin.

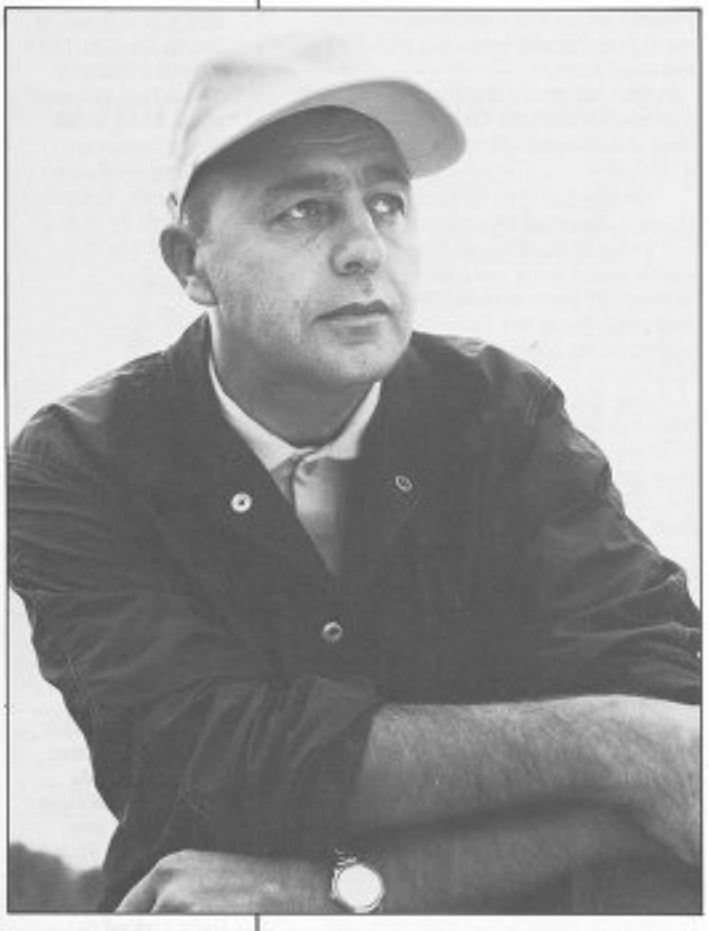
Michelosen To The Rescue



The halfback-fullback tandem of Paul Martha (near right) and Rick Leeson (far right) starred for Pitt teams of the early 1960s.

To breathe renewed vigor into its once-proud football program, Pitt in 1955 reached back into its past and named John Michelosen head coach.

In the 24-year stretch from 1915-1938, Pitt had only two head coaches. But in the 16-year period from 1939-1954, no fewer than eight men were summoned to the helm. Charlie Bowser, a former Pitt center in the early 1920s, replaced Jock Sutherland in 1939, but stepped aside three years later after back-to-back 3-6 logs in 1941 and 1942.

Amid tremendous fanfare, Clark Shaughnessy took over for Bowser. Shaughnessy, who had guided Stanford to a perfect season in 1940 and later achieved fame as an offensive genius in the NFL, stayed only three years at Pitt, compiling a 10-17 record.

Wes Fesler, a combination All-America end and matinee idol from Ohio State, gave it a shot for one season (1946), but returned to coach his alma mater in 1947. A former Pitt guard, Mike Milligan, stepped up from an assistant's post to replace Fesler. After a rocky beginning, he had a pair of satisfactory 6-3 seasons in 1948 and 1949, then left in a dispute over his contract longevity.

Len Casanova of Santa Clara fame took over in 1950. From the beginning his wife yearned to return to the west coast, and when Pittsburgh received a record snowfall in 1950, her pleading picked up momentum. A 1-8 record and a job offer from Oregon persuaded Casanova to leave.

Tom Hamilton, who had been named athletic director in 1949, took over the coaching for one year, then brought in Lowell "Red" Dawson in 1952. When Dawson became ill in 1954, Hamilton again handled both jobs.

In 1955, Pitt reached back into its past and selected John Michelosen to breathe renewed vigor into its ailing football program.

Since his playing days as a quarterback and captain under Jock Sutherland in the mid-1930s, Michelosen had become, in some ways, almost an extension of the good Doctor.

After Michelosen graduated in 1938, Sutherland made him his backfield coach at Pitt. When Sutherland resigned after the 1938 season, he and Michelosen walked away together. Sutherland became a head coach in the NFL, where Michelosen continued his apprenticeship under his mentor, first with the Brooklyn Dodgers, and then with the Pittsburgh Steelers. When Sutherland died unexpectedly in 1948, the Steelers by right of succession promoted the 32-year-old Michelosen to head coach.

Michelosen, a strong, silent figure who embodied much of Sutherland's football philosophy, returned to Pitt in 1952 as the top defensive coach after being dismissed by the Steelers. In 1955, after incorporating some of the old single-wing blocking principles into Pitt's split-T offense—as well as inspiring his men to play a lethal brand of defense—Michelosen guided the Panthers to a 7-4 record and and a berth in the Sugar Bowl—Pitt's first bowl game in 19 years.

Proving that was no fluke, Pitt finished 7-3-1 the following season, and earned an invitation to the Gator Bowl.

Pitt lost both bowl games—both against Georgia Tech—but the football program was back on firm ground, playing solid, fundamental football—on both sides of the ball.

"When you played under John Michelosen," said Joe Walton, an All-American end for the Panthers in the mid 1950s, "you knew how to block and tackle. We were a strong running football team, and we played good, tough defense. He was a master of teaching fundamentals."

In 1955, Pitt had held Syracuse's great Jim Brown to just 38 yards rushing. Penn State's Lenny Moore could manage only 10 yards in 13 carries against the Panthers that year. The following season, Pitt again stopped Brown, holding him to 52 yards. Notre Dame's Paul Hornung, the Heisman Trophy winner, had to struggle to manage 59 yards.

"Slowly but surely," wrote the Owl, Pitt's student yearbook, "Coach Johnny Michelosen's Panthers are showing the nation that a team unversed in theatrics and sleight-of-hand magic tricks can play winning football. For the second consecutive year Pitt finished in the upper echelon of football powers—and did it with a relentless, hard-driving ground attack and a sturdy defense."

It was true. That was the way the Panthers played under Michelosen, whose passionate devotion to the game's fundamental elements mirrored that of Sutherland.

"They didn't depend upon tricks of any sort to win ball games," continued The Owl. "They used talented material coached to perfection in the fundamentals—and it worked better than any razzle-dazzle that numerous coaches have used at Pitt since Jock Sutherland left in 1938."

Pitt dipped to 4-6 in 1957 before posting three consecutive winning seasons, including a 4-3-3 mark in 1960. The '60 campaign was an odd one that included three identical 7-7 ties and a pair of one-point losses. The Panthers opened the season with an 8-7 loss at UCLA, tied Michigan State 7-7, and then fell 15-14 at Oklahoma. Convincing victories over Miami and West Virginia and another tie against TCU evened the Panthers' record at 2-2-2. Pitt then clipped Ernie Davis-led, number-one ranked Syracuse 10-0 at Archbold Stadium, and beat Notre Dame 20-13 at South Bend. But the season's third 7-7 tie—against Army, and a closing 14-3 loss to Penn State erased any bowl hopes. Still, only five points separated Pitt from 4-3-3 to 9-1.

The freshman class of 1960, which included future All-American Paul Martha, was rich with talent, and came of age in 1963, when the Panthers posted a 9-1 record — Pitt's best mark in 25 years — and finished the season ranked third in the country.

Pitt may have lost to Georgia Tech in the 1956 Sugar Bowl, but the Panthers, who significantly outgained Bobby Dodd's Rambling Wreck, left some calling cards — especially bruising defensive end John Paluck. "They outmanned us, they outpowered us," said Georgia Tech halfback George Volkert. "When those Pitt guys hit you, you knew you were hit." The fullback said, "I get hit by this end, this Paluck, and when I'm pulling myself off the ground he's staring me in the face. He tells me, 'Look, fella, I'm Mean John, and if you come my way again, I'm really gonna hit you hard,' Mean John's a good name for that guy."

Pitt lost to Georgia Tech 7-0 in the 1956 Sugar Bowl. A controversial pass interference call against Pitt's Bob Grier set up the game's only touchdown.

In 1955, Pitt held Syracuse's Jim Brown to 28 yards rushing, and Penn State's Lenny Moore to a mere 10.

Quarterback Fred Mazurek pleased Pitt fans with a slashing, daring style of play throughout the 1963 season.

But things began to unravel the following season, when Pitt fell to 3-5-2, and Michelosen was fired in the wake of a 3-7 record in 1965.

Nevertheless, Michelosen had restored a measure of respect and stability to the Pitt program. Although it would be nearly a decade more before Pitt would come all the way back under Johnny Majors, Michelosen gave Pitt 11 solid years of wise leadership.

It was surely no accident that Joe Walton, Mike Ditka, and Marty Schottenheimer, who all played under Michelosen, later went on to become head coaches in the NFL.

The "No Bowl" Team

Imagine a major college football team finishing 9-1 and ranked third in the nation—and not appearing in a postseason bowl game.

That is exactly what happened to Pitt's 1963 squad, which won all but one of its 10 games against a tough schedule.

The Panthers featured All-America halfback Paul Martha, fullback Rick Leeson, and quarterback Freddie Mazurek in a talented backfield, along with an outstanding line anchored by tackles John Maczuzak and All-American Ernie Borghetti.

Pitt opened the year by defeating UCLA in Los Angeles, and then beat Washington, California, and West Virginia to run its record to 4-0.

The following week Pitt lost 24-12 at Navy, which was quarterbacked by eventual Heisman Trophy winner Roger Staubach.

The Panthers bounced back the next week by beating Syracuse, and then finished the season with successive victories over Notre Dame, Army, Miami, and Penn State.

But despite its sterling 9-1 record, there was no bowl game for the Panthers. In fact, on watches the Pitt players received after the season, the inscription read, "9-1, The No-Bowl Team."

Why?

It wasn't for lack of interest by the bowl scouts. Late in the season scouts from the Gator, Sun, Liberty, Sugar, and Orange Bowls were all interested in Pitt.

After Pitt's 28-0 win over Army in the eighth game of the season, Gator Bowl representative Harold Mason said, "The Penn State game . . . I think that's the key to Pitt's season."

Pitt wound up beating the Nittany Lions 23-22—but not on the day the game was originally scheduled to be played. The game had been scheduled for Nov. 23, but it was postponed until Dec. 7 because of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22. Kennedy's death wound up hurting Pitt's bowl chances.

Pitt officials themselves had scratched off the possibility of playing in the Sugar Bowl, because of the prevailing prejudicial treatment against blacks at that time. Pitt, which had two black players on its team, wouldn't tolerate the bias.

"I don't think anybody had any reservations about that decision," said end Al Grigaliunas, the team captain.

The Liberty Bowl, Gator, and Sun Bowl were shunned by Athletic Director Frank Carver, because he was aiming high. He wanted Pitt to play in the Cotton Bowl, or the Orange Bowl, possibly for the national title.

As late as the eighth week of the season Pitt was the best bet to meet Big Eight champion Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

"The Orange Bowl had promised Frank Carver that if Pitt beat Penn State, Pitt would get the invitation to the Orange Bowl," said Roy McHugh, the retired Pittsburgh Press sports writer who covered Pitt in 1963. "Banking on that, Carver turned down the Gator Bowl, and maybe some other bowls, too. But Kennedy's assassination forced postponement of the Pitt-Penn State game and the Orange Bowl [not wanting to take the chance that Pitt might lose to Penn State after being chosen] picked Auburn. The key was the postponement of the game. It left Pitt high and dry."

The Cotton Bowl was high on Pitt, but it was higher on Navy. Like Pitt, Navy had a 9-1 record, but the Midshipmen owned a victory over the Panthers. Cotton Bowl officials thus opted for a natural matchup: the No. 1 Texas Longhorns vs. the No. 2 Midshipmen for the national championship. (Texas won, 28-6.)

After the Penn State game, Pitt was offered a Sun Bowl bid, but turned it down.

"No, I don't think we were that disappointed," said Martha, now the President of the Pittsburgh Civic Arena Corporation. "It was getting late in the season, and it was getting cold in Pittsburgh. And bowl games in 1963 weren't quite as big as they are today. They didn't have the lure."

"Perhaps another reason why the '63 Panthers weren't crushed about staying home was that football wasn't the main reason they were in school," wrote Mike Bires of the Beaver County Times. "Those players gave true meaning to the term student athlete."

Martha, Mazurek Ignite Romp With Long Runs For TDs

By CHESTER L. SMITH, Sports Editor

In the first quarter at the Stadium yesterday, Paul Martha peeked downfield from beneath his dark blue helmet, liked what he saw, acted accordingly—and an afternoon of disaster had begun for Army.

Martha was looking for an alley—an alley with just a patch of daylight in it—and it was there. Down this alley the senior left halfback rolled. Pitt was off on a four-touchdown binge and the Black Knights were headed for their first shutout since the Navy game of 1957.

The 28-0 score, which was completely justified by the fashion in which the Jungle Cats manhandled the Cadets, delighted all but a small segment of the 47,947 who turned out on a bleak but otherwise ideal afternoon.

It was the worst defeat Army has suffered in the slightly less than two-year reign of Coach Paul Dietzel.

The chief mourners were the 1300 members of the First Regiment, who had to sit glumly by and watch the Army absorb its second defeat of the season while Pitt was stampeding on toward Penn State and Miami with but a single licking posted against seven victories.

The inhabitants of the big saucer were sniffing at the finish, thinking they might detect a distinct odor of tropical flowers in the air or perhaps the swish of palm trees. Pitt at this stage being highly eligible for more than one bowl.

Pitt Whipped Us Up Front, Dietzel Says

By ROY McHUGH

Nobody had to ask any questions.

In the hallway outside the Army locker room, Paul Dietzel was ready with a simple explanation for the 28-0 loss to Pitt.

"They just whipped us real good up front," Dietzel said.

So at least the Cadets knew what had hit them.

"It was a real old-fashioned lacing in my book," Dietzel continued. "Look, I've been whipped before, but I don't have to like it."

The Legend of Mike Ditka

One of the legendary figures in Pitt football history is Mike Ditka, who played under John Michelosen from 1958-60.

"Iron Mike" was a fierce tight end and defensive lineman for the Panthers, whose immense athletic skills and competitive drive earned him All-America honors at Pitt. He led the Panthers in receiving for three straight years.

Ditka then went on, of course, to earn All-Pro honors as a tight end in the NFL, and was eventually selected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame. He was a member of the Chicago Bears' 1963 NFL championship team and the Dallas Cowboys' Super Bowl VI champions. He also worked as an assistant coach for the Cowboys for nine seasons, and was part of another Dallas Super Bowl championship squad.

He is now in his tenth season as head coach of the Bears, a team he rebuilt into a power. The Bears won Super Bowl XX under Ditka and he has taken the Bears to the NFC Championship Game three times.

But it was at Pitt that Ditka first earned fame for his competitive fury and relentless will to win.

"You'd see him in the huddle, or on the sidelines waiting to get back onto the field, and you knew just by looking at him he was ready," remembers Foge Fazio, a teammate of Ditka's who later served as Pitt's head coach in the mid-1980s. "He was always ready. He was like a prize fighter in the ring. He just couldn't wait for that bell to ring and get back out there."

Ernie Hefferle, who coached the ends under Michelosen during Ditka's Pitt career, said this about Ditka: "He was the damnedest player I ever came across; you get one in a lifetime if you're lucky. He used to forearm our own guys in practice. He used to complain that our practices weren't tough enough. He wanted more hitting. All he wanted to do was hit, hit, hit."

Ditka was a three-sport athlete at Pitt. He was a baseball outfielder and was a forward on the Panther basketball team. As Jim O'Brien put it in Hail to Pitt, Ditka was an enforcer in basketball, "saving his best boardwork for the annual grudge games against West Virginia."

Bob Timmons coached Ditka in both football and basketball at Pitt. "He'll hit the first guy he sees," said Timmons. That was in both sports.

Ditka was also the intramural wrestling champion at Pitt. Rex Peery, the Panthers' legendary wrestling coach, was convinced Ditka could have been an NCAA wrestling champion had he wrestled on the varsity.

Ditka was a tenacious, incendiary competitor. He was not diplomatic. He once punched two Pitt guards in the same game during huddles because he didn't think they were putting out.

Wrote O'Brien in Hail to Pitt: "In Ditka's senior season, he went after teammate Chuck Reinhold at halftime. Reinhold, a well-mannered, scholarly type, was a safety from Mt. Lebanon. He did something wrong near the end of the first half of the game with Michigan State, permitting Herb Adderly to escape his grasp and go for a touchdown.

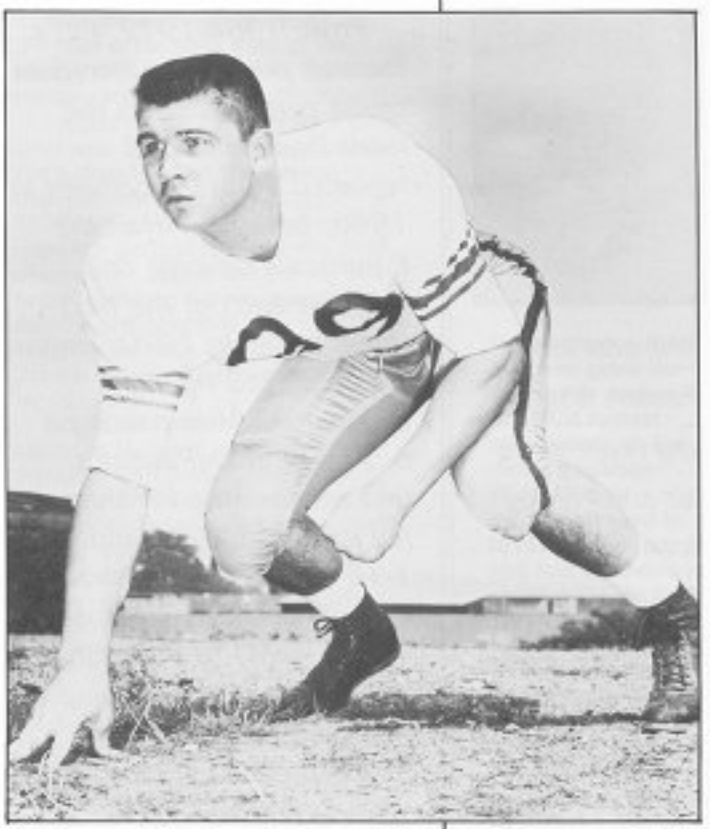
"Not long afterward, as the Pitt squad clattered into the dressing room, Reinhold hollered, 'Let's get 'em in the second half.'

"Ditka cried out, 'If you hadn't given up that touchdown in the first half we wouldn't be in the fix we're in!' With that, he went for Reinhold. It took about six teammates to restrain Ditka."

"His last game against Penn State will always stand out in my mind," said Lou Cecconi, a former star running back for the Panthers who was an assistant coach at Pitt during Ditka's playing days. "He went in to block a punt and then played the whole game with a dislocated shoulder."

Ditka was a marauding defensive end, and claimed he may have even been better on that side of the ball.

"In the pros, Mike just played offense," said Fred Cox, a teammate of Ditka's at Pitt who went on to a 15-year career of his own as a placekicker with the Minnesota Vikings. "That was always a mystery to me, because he was so fiery, so intense, that he almost had to be a defender. He would have made one of the best linebackers ever to come near the NFL if he had been played there by the Bears."



Ditka was a tenacious, incendiary competitor. He was not diplomatic. He once punched two Pitt guards in the same game during huddles because he didn't think they were putting out.

"The attitude of a defensive player is a little bit more aggressive, and that helped me on offense," Ditka says. "That aggressive attitude helps the way you approach blocking and catching the ball and running over people . . . and everything else. Catching the ball means very little if you don't enjoy running with it afterward. It becomes a competitive one-on-one challenge that you really don't want just one person to bring you down."

Ditka's aggressive nature as a player always earmarked him as a leader. He captained Pitt as a senior. He captained the East in the East-West postseason all-star game. He captained the college all-stars against the NFL champions. He later captained the Bears' offensive unit.

Ditka, a native of Aliquippa, has never forgotten his Pitt roots. In 1990, he made a contribution to the University for the establishment of a $100,000 endowed scholarship fund. The fund provides valuable assistance to both male and female varsity athletes at Pitt from the Beaver Valley area who have distinguished themselves in athletic competition and in their academic pursuits.

"He would have been one of the best linebackers ever to come near the NFL if he had been played there by the Bears."

The Major Change in Pitt Football

"All year long I haven't waved my finger in the air and I haven't worn a No. 1 button. But after the (Sugar Bowl) game I told the team it was No. 1 and they all agreed with me."

— Majors, January 1, 1977

From 1964-1972, Pitt's football program suffered its worst period ever on the field. Dave Hart had replaced John Michelosen in 1966, but under Hart the Panthers won only one game in each of the next three years. In 1970, Hart was replaced by Carl DePasqua. After posting a 5-5 mark in DePasqua's first season, the Panthers fell to 3-8 in 1971 and 1-10 in 1972. Nine straight losing seasons, eight losses in nine years to Penn State, and frustration at playing against a stacked deck finally moved Chancellor Wesley Posvar to make two moves.

Then President Wesley Posvar (left) and former Athletic Director Cas Myslinski (right) hired Majors in 1972. He had been coach at Iowa State.

The first was to acknowledge that the so-called Big Four Agreement, which in theory was intended to regulate the amount of scholarship support (and other related football support elements) that Penn State, West Virginia, and Syracuse could provide their football programs, had become untenable. Pitt had, in effect, been straitjacketing its team, putting it behind a competitive eight ball. Enough, decided Posvar, was enough.

"The competitive advantage had been frozen artificially in favor of the other schools we were playing," Dr. Posvar said. "We unfroze the advantage."

The second move was to hire Johnny Majors as head coach.

Majors, the former Tennessee All-American and Heisman Trophy runner-up, had just previously led hapless Iowa State out of the wilderness and onto the football map with two consecutive bowl appearances. (The Cyclones had never before in their history been to a bowl game.)

"Johnny Majors was absolutely the right man at the right time for the job," Dr. Posvar said. "We had examined the deficiencies of the program, and we concluded it wasn't a matter of resources, it was a matter of people.

"Majors had all of the qualities we wanted. He was a strong leader and he was an attractive personality, which we needed in our program. He had the ability to win, and to handle winning well. Just as importantly, he had the ability to help his teams learn from losses, and turn them into victories the next time."

Added Athletic Director Cas Myslinski, "We couldn't have done any better than Majors."

Majors sized up his challenge quickly. After arming himself with a crack coaching staff that included Jackie Sherrill, he began recruiting the blue-chip talent that would provide the impetus for a national championship in 1976 and dominance of Eastern football into the early 1980s.

Tailback Tony Dorsett was the plum of Majors' legendary first recruiting class that also included quarterback Robert Haygood, tight end Jim Corbett, placekicker Carson Long, linebackers Cecil Johnson and Arnie Weatherington, and defensive linemen Al Romano, Gary Burley, and Don Parrish.

Another part of the Majors formula for success was hard work.

"I'll never forget he started a winter conditioning program that none of us were ready for," recalls Billy Daniels, who along with wingback Bruce Murphy, fullback Dave Janasek, linebacker Kelcy Daviston, and tackle Glenn Hyde were among the best of the carryover players Majors inherited from the DePasqua era. "I remember a lot of players dropped out."

But those who stayed found it worth their while.

"I worked some of my early Iowa State and Tennessee teams hard," Majors says, "but I never had a team work as hard as my first Pitt team. We had a saying, 'Those who stay will play. And those who stay, will be champions.'"

After posting a 6-5-1 record in his first season in 1973, including a berth in the Fiesta Bowl (Pitt's first bowl game in 17 years), Majors and his staff again hit the recruiting trail hard. They came up with another jackpot, including quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, running back Elliott Walker, defensive lineman Randy Holloway, wide receiver Karl Farmer, and defensive back Bob Jury—all of whom eventually played pro football.

In 1974, Pitt finished 7-4, and the following season wound up 8-4, climaxing the campaign with a 35-19 victory over Kansas in the Sun Bowl.

The rebuilding job was now complete; the stage was set for 1976.

Dorsett, who would be honored as Pitt's first Heisman Trophy winner at the conclusion of the regular season, led the way on offense in 1976, rushing for 2,150 yards. But the Panthers had a full arsenal of offensive weapons, including Walker, a dynamic fullback; dangerous receivers in tight end Corbett, split end Gordon Jones, and flanker Willie Taylor; an effective offensive line featuring captain John Pelusi at center, tackle John Hanhauser, and guards Tom Brzoza and Matt Carroll; and a pair of talented quarterbacks in Haygood and Cavanaugh.

Beginning with a convincing victory at Notre Dame in the season opener, Pitt stormed through its 1976 schedule, climaxing the regular season with a 24-7 victory over Penn State at Three Rivers Stadium.

Dorsett set the tone for the season on Pitt's very first offensive play from scrimmage against the Irish. Notre Dame had taken the opening kickoff and driven the length of the field for a touchdown. The capacity crowd at Notre Dame Stadium was still in an uproar when the Panthers broke from their huddle for the first play of the ensuing series.

Dorsett exploded for a 61-yard run to set up a touchdown that tied the game, and the rout was on. Dorsett finished with 181 yards rushing as Pitt crushed the Fighting Irish, 31-10.

There would be plenty of hurdles to clear throughout the season.

Haygood, the No. 1 signal caller at the beginning of the season, went down with a knee injury against Georgia Tech in the second game, and was lost for the rest of the year. No problem.

Cavanaugh was more than a capable answer.

"We had gone into the season believing either one was capable of leading us," Majors recalled. "I knew Matt could carry the load."

If anybody else had questions about that, Cavanaugh answered them in the fourth game of the year, when he completed 14 of 17 passes and riddled Duke for 339 yards and five touchdowns in a 44-31 victory.

But then the next week against Louisville Cavanaugh fractured an ankle, and Majors had to call on Tom Yewcic, a walk-on quarterback who once had ranked ninth on the depth chart.

Yewcic, though, filled in capably, and held the offense together until Cavanaugh returned in four weeks later against Army. Dorsett continued to run wild, and broke the NCAA's career rushing record held by Ohio State's Archie Griffin on a spectacular 32-yard touchdown run against Navy.

And throughout the season the defense did its part. Romano, Parrish, and Holloway, who led the team with 16 quarterback sacks, set the tone up front. Weatherington, a fierce competitor and lethal hitter, anchored the linebackers. Jury, a safety, and monster back Jeff Delaney combined for 16 interceptions to rank among the NCAA leaders.

"We just felt we could beat anybody," said Cavanaugh. "We felt as each week went on that we were better and better, that we couldn't be beaten, that we won't be beaten, and that feeling just perpetuated the whole team. We never once doubted that we could win any game."

After the Panthers defeated archrival Penn State 24-7 in the final regular-season game at Three Rivers Stadium—Pitt's first win over the Nittany Lions since 1965—they were 11-0 and sitting atop the two wire service polls. Pitt had moved into the number-one spot in both the AP and UPI polls in the ninth week of the season, after Purdue's upset of the previous top-ranked team, Michigan.

Ahead for the Panthers lay a showdown with Georgia in the Sugar Bowl, and a chance to win the national championship.

Georgia was a fitting opponent to close this glorious four-year era. Four years earlier, Majors and Dorsett had begun their long journey toward a national championship by unexpectedly tying the Bulldogs in Athens, with Dorsett opening his career by rushing for 101 yards.

Now, the Panthers were ready to claim the big prize: a national championship. With Dorsett rushing for a Sugar Bowl-record 202 yards, Pitt demolished Georgia 27-3 with a display of total team football that left the nation—and Georgia Head Coach Vince Dooley—in awe.

"The 1976 Pitt team was the most complete college football team I've ever seen," Dooley would say later. "I knew they were good. But, until after they had manhandled us in the Sugar Bowl, I didn't know how good."

Majors left Pitt after the 1976 season, returning to his alma mater, Tennessee, where he rebuilt the Volunteer program. But there were no hard feelings at Pitt.

"We had mixed emotions about it, but everyone, including the underclassmen, seemed to understand," said Dorsett. "Coach Majors had resurrected Pitt football. He had done everything he could, and it was understandable that he wanted to return home. The important thing was, he wasn't leaving a sinking ship. He had left [new coach] Jackie Sherrill with a full cupboard."

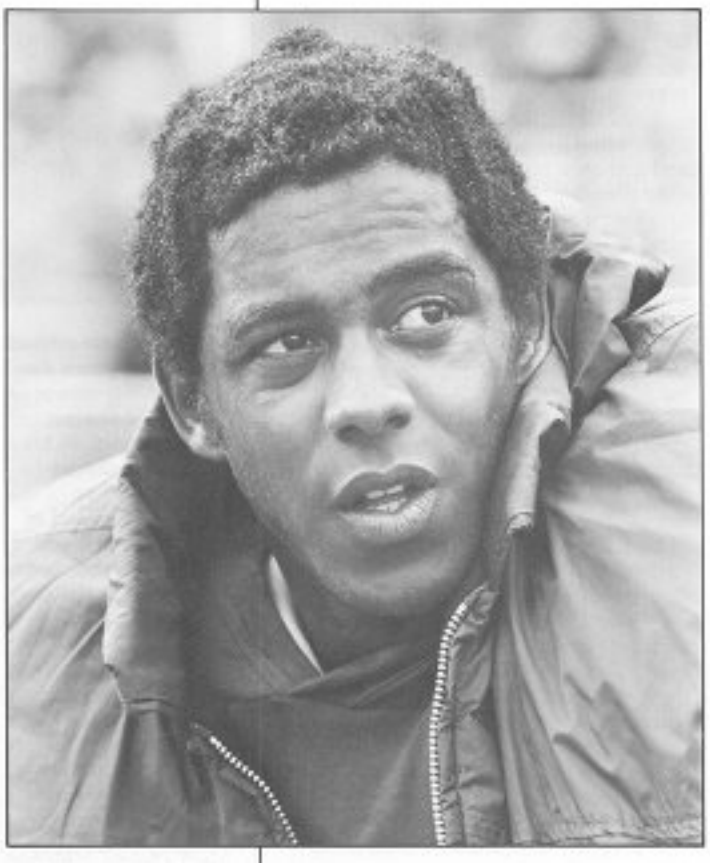
Tony Dorsett: Heisman Trophy Winner



"Tony Dorsett really exemplifies what the Heisman Trophy is all about: the great player who has the qualities which rally a team about him."

— Pat Livingston
The Pittsburgh Press

In 1973, a skinny freshman tailback from Hopewell High School in Aliquippa, Pennsylvania, named Tony Dorsett, began a career at Pitt that would lead to a national championship, the Heisman Trophy, and individual acclaim as the greatest running back in the history of college football.

Having finished fourth in the Heisman balloting as a junior in 1975, Dorsett became Pitt's first Heisman Trophy winner in 1976. He earned 701 of a possible 842 first-place votes for an overall total of 2,357 points, finishing far ahead of second-place Ricky Bell of USC (1,346 points).

The 5-11, 192-pound Dorsett was a magical optical illusion, blending his 4.3 speed, supernatural acceleration, and Houdini-like escape artistry with open field cutting so superbly executed it tended to escape detection by the naked eye.

As teammate Al Romano once put it, "I hate to practice against him. Trying to tackle him is like trying to catch a fly."

One revealing measure of his greatness occurred late in his senior season against Penn State. At halftime, with the game tied 7-7, Head Coach Johnny Majors decided to switch Dorsett, who despite scoring one touchdown had pretty much been held in check by the Nittany Lions in the first half, from tailback to fullback.

In his fabulous four-year career at Pitt, Dorsett set or tied 18 collegiate rushing records—more than any other player in the history of college football. He established the NCAA's all-time career rushing record with 6,082 yards. (His overall total at Pitt, including his yardage from three bowl games, was 6,526.)

He was the first major-college back to compile four 1,000-yard seasons. He became the first freshman consensus All-American since 1944, and was the first sophomore ever named to the Playboy All-America team.

Pitt had finished 1-10 in 1972, the year before Dorsett entered Pitt. As a freshman in 1973, Dorsett burst on the college scene with 101 yards rushing against Georgia in Pitt's opening game. In the 1973 regular season he went on to rush for 1,586 yards—the most ever by a college freshman—while recording the first 1,000-yard season in Pitt history. He helped lead Pitt to a 6-5-1 record and a berth in the Fiesta Bowl.

In only his 15th game, early in his sophomore season, he broke Marshall Goldberg's Pitt career rushing record of 1,957 yards. He rushed for 1,004 yards as a sophomore.

As a junior in 1975, he rushed for 1,544 yards in the regular season, including a memorable 303-yard performance against Notre Dame.

In the final seven games of his senior season, as Pitt was charging toward the national championship, he averaged 215 yards rushing per game en route to leading the nation in rushing with 1,948 yards.

Dorsett wound up rushing for 173 yards and scoring a touchdown in the second half as Pitt coasted to a 24-7 win. Dorsett finished with 224 yards rushing, and his two touchdowns enabled him to break a 30-year old record set by Glenn Davis of Army. Dorsett scored 356 points in his four seasons, 2 more than Davis, the 1946 Heisman Trophy winner, had in his four campaigns as a Cadet.

"I didn't think they could run up the gut like that on us," said Penn State Head Coach Joe Paterno. "I didn't think I'd see Dorsett at fullback. We just weren't ready for the unbalanced stuff."

Asked to describe Dorsett in more detail, Paterno simply said, "How many ways can you say great?"

Pitt Head Coach Johnny Majors said it differently.

"I could coach another 100 years and never get the opportunity to coach another back like Dorsett," he said. "I consider it an honor to be his college coach."

With Dorsett setting a Sugar Bowl record by rushing for 202 yards, Pitt went on to crush Georgia 27-3 to become the first Eastern team since Syracuse in 1959 to win the national championship.

"We had accomplished our mission," Dorsett said. "I think back to those college days often, and I can't help but smile. I've never had more fun in my life. We were a part of history. We helped save Pitt football."

And this season, 18 years from the day Tony Dorsett began his Pitt career on a hot September afternoon in Athens, Georgia, his son — Anthony Dorsett Jr., begins his career with the Panthers.

Sherrill's Panthers: Beasts of the East

The Sporting News in 1987 selected the 25 greatest college football teams of all time. The 1980/81 Pitt teams—selected as a tandem entry—ranked 12th. Pitt's 1976 national championship squad was tabbed the 17th best team in history.

In The Sporting News' tribute to the 1980 and 1981 Panthers, writer Phil Axelrod recalled a poignant moment just prior to the start of the 1980 season:

"Jackie Sherrill was in a mischievous mood when he pitted college football's most overpowering defense against one of its most explosive offenses on that sultry September afternoon in 1980.

"A sharp blast from his whistle halted practice and sent players scurrying into a huddle at midfield. Sherrill walked to the 1-yard line, put down a ball, and smiled. 'First-team offense, first-team defense,' he barked. 'Get out there.'

"Hugh Green, Rickey Jackson, and the rest of the Panthers' defensive crew strapped on their helmets and sauntered into position. Stoically, Dan Marino, Mark May, and Russ Grimm led the offense into position for battle.

" 'I knew it would be a war,' Sherrill recalled. 'There was a lot of talent on that field. A lot of pride, too.'

"Marino took the snap from center, spun to his right and planted the ball into the midsection of 230-pound fullback Randy McMillan. The lines collided with a thunderous crash and McMillan lunged toward the goal line, grinding his torso through a maze of tangled shoulder pads.

"The offensive players shot their arms skyward to signal a touchdown. The defense stomped up and down in celebration.

" 'We stuffed it,' remembered linebacker Sal Sunseri. 'No way did they make it. They thought they made it.'

"After a brief scuffle, Sherrill's directive clarified matters. Obediently, Marino and Co. tramped off to run laps as the howling defenders sprinted to the locker room.

"That was the final play of the final scrimmage of fall camp. It was also the first, and last, time Sherrill pitted his first-team offense against his starting defense. 'I didn't do it again because I didn't want them to hurt each other,' he said. 'They really went after each other.' "

The collection of talent Pitt had in the early 1980s was almost unfathomable. Wrote Axelrod:

"The names roll off the tongue, a litany of All-America and All-Pro talent. Hugh Green, Rickey Jackson, Dan Marino, Russ Grimm, Jimbo Covert, Carlton Williamson, Bill Maas, Bill Fralic, Mark May, Sal Sunseri.

" 'That was the best football team ever assembled, talent-wise,' Sherrill said of his 1980 squad. 'They get a lot better when you sit back and look at what they've done. Never, ever, has a team produced that many great players.'

"Nineteen players from that team, including first-round picks Green, McMillan, and May, signed NFL contracts straight out of college. Faced with the loss of 15 starters, including nine on defense, the 1981 Panthers nevertheless compiled the school's third straight 11-1 record and fielded the nation's No. 1-ranked defense for the second consecutive year.

" 'I have never seen a college defense like that,' Foge Fazio, then the Panthers' defensive coordinator, said of those Pitt squads. 'It was an attacking defense. They shut people down and took the ball away from them.'

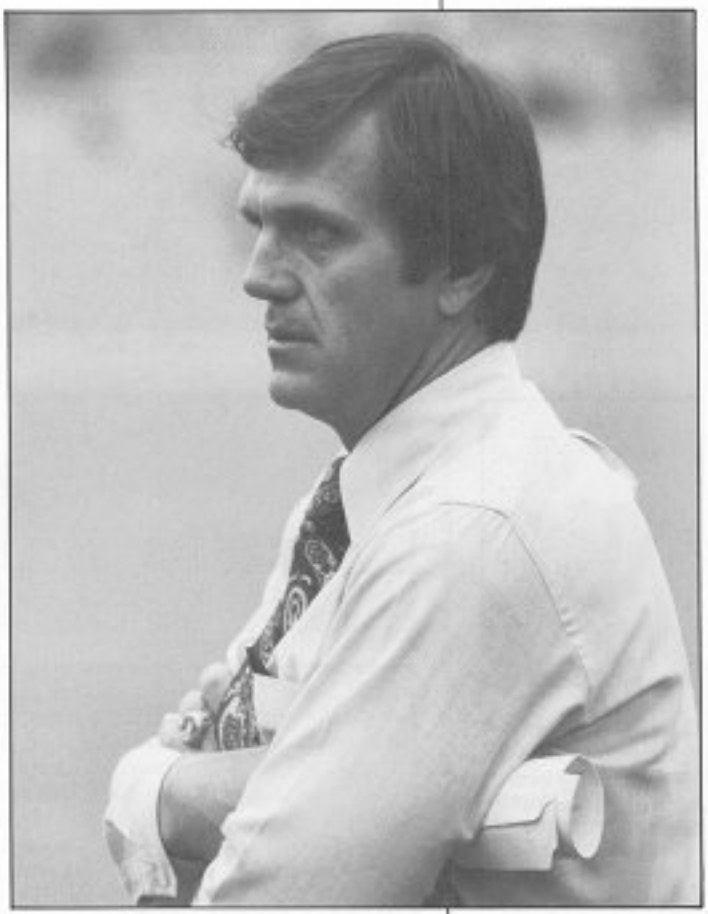
"Green and Jackson, the defensive ends in 1980, were quiet assassins. Linemates Greg Meisner, Bill Neill, and Jerry Boyarsky howled like wild animals as they lined up over the ball. The middle three linemen in '81—Dave Puzzuoli, J.C. Pelusi, and Maas—were known as the "Pac-Men."

" 'The huddles were wild,' Sunseri said. 'We knew what we had. We knew we had the No. 1 defense in the country. We dominated teams.

"We knew there was not a tackle in the country faster than Meisner. There was nobody from a technique standpoint better than Neill. There was not a better nose guard than Boyarsky. And when you looked outside, my God, there was Hugh Green on one side, and there was Rickey Jackson on the other.

"What I had to do was clog up the middle and bounce people to the outside to the All-Pros."

All five starters in Pitt's defensive front in 1980—Green, Jackson, Boyarsky, Meisner, and Neill—went on to become starters in the NFL as rookies, but that 1980 defense had some additional TNT behind them, including Sunseri, a first-team All-American, and safety Carlton Williamson, who would start for the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers in 1981.



From September 29, 1979 to November 21, 1981, Pitt's football teams won 31 of 32 games, earned two Lambert-Meadowlands Trophies as the best team in the East, and recorded victories in the Fiesta and Gator Bowls.

Key components for the Pitt defenses of 1980-81 were Sal Sunseri (66), Tom Flynn (5) and Dave Puzzuoli (63).

Though the defense attracted much of the acclaim, the offense had a formidable arsenal of explosive talent.

Marino and fellow quarterback Rick Trocano, running backs McMillan and Bryan Thomas, and receivers Julius Dawkins and Dwight Collins gave the Panthers great strength at the skill positions. But it was an immensely gifted group in the engine room—the offensive line coached by Joe Moore—that provided the foundation for success for those teams.

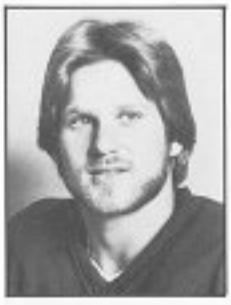
"There were games when my uniform never got dirty," said Marino. "There were games when I never hit the ground. That's incredible."

Marino's mammoth wall of protection in 1980 included tackles Jim Covert and Mark May, who won the Outland Trophy; guards Emil Boures, Rob Fada, Ron Sams, and Paul Dunn; and center Russ Grimm.

"I don't know if anybody'd ever had a line like that," said Moore. "They were mean. They were tough. They beat people up. Grimm was the leader. He was all business when he put on his helmet. He was a total football player."

And when future All-Pros Covert, May, and Grimm departed for the NFL, along with Sams, Fada, and Boures, there were some richly talented replacements waiting in the wings, including Jim Sweeney, a great lineman at Pitt who has gone on to have an outstanding career as a center for the New York Jets, and Bill Fralic, a three-time All-American who was one of the finest college linemen in the history of the game.

"I don't know if Pitt, or anybody else, will ever have that many great athletes at the same time," said Jackie Sherrill of his Pitt teams in the early 1980s. "We had a great player at every position on the field, offense and defense. We didn't have a weakness in those years."



Quarterback Rick Trocano was 23-5 as Pitt's starting quarterback in games from 1977-80.

Hugh Green: One of a Kind

Hugh Green was an amazing player, arguably, the most devastating defensive end in collegiate history. He started every game but one in his four-year career at Pitt. In his debut against Notre Dame as a freshman in 1977, he served notice of what was to come by racking up 11 tackles, a blocked punt, and two sacks against the eventual national champions.

His mere presence could control an entire game, something the pro scouts noticed. Said Tampa Bay Buccaneers scouting director Ken Herock: "He was used like the MX missile, rotating from standup defensive end to all four linebacker positions, waiting for the proper time to explode. They disguised him so he could make plays, they moved him around a lot so that when the other team came up to the line of scrimmage, they'd say, 'Where's Green?' "

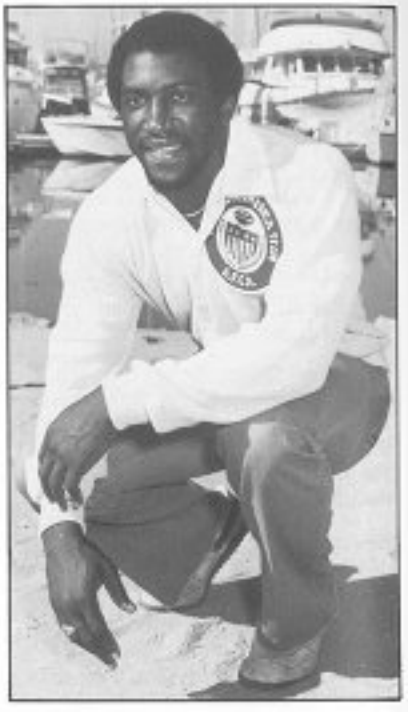
"People were petrified of Green," Sunseri said. "But they couldn't run away from him because we had Rickey Jackson on the other side of the line."

Even when teams did try to run away from Green, it was usually fruitless.

"I remember watching from the sidelines," said John Brown, a sophomore tight end on that 1980 team. "He'd be lined up on one side, and the other team would run a sweep wide to the opposite side. All of sudden Green would just fly across the field and the runner would just disappear in a big roll of dust, and then you'd see Green—with his eyes real wide—just standing over the guy. He was awesome."

The rest of the country agreed. Green, Pitt's all-time career quarterback sack leader with 53, won the 1980 Maxwell Award as college football's outstanding player and the Lombardi Award as the nation's outstanding lineman. He was the UPI Player of the Year, and was second to South Carolina's George Rogers in the Heisman Trophy balloting—the highest finish ever by a purely defensive player.

Green was a first-round draft pick by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 1981, and was traded to the Miami Dolphins in 1985. He has twice been selected to the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl.



Defensive end Rickey Jackson teamed with Hugh Green to give Pitt a sensational set of bookends.

Dan Marino: Hometown Kid Makes Good

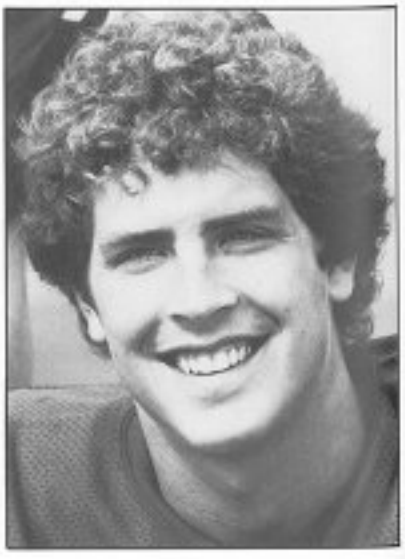
Of all the kudos directed at quarterback Dan Marino during his four-year career at Pitt from 1979-82, this one from Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden summed Marino up best: "He's a pro quarterback in college, really."

Marino, a hometown hero who attended Central Catholic High School in the shadow of the Pitt campus in Oakland, was one of the most eagerly sought high school athletes in the country, both for his immense football skills and his baseball ability. Marino was a bona fide Major League Baseball prospect, both as a pitcher and a shortstop, and was drafted in the fourth round in 1979 by the Kansas City Royals, who projected him as a third baseman or outfielder. But he decided to cast his lot with football, and with Pitt, and by the time he graduated in 1983, he had become Pitt's all-time passing leader with 8,597 yards and 79 touchdown passes.

"Dan Marino is the best quarterback I've ever coached against at the collegiate level," said Penn State Head Coach Joe Paterno.

The 6-4, 215-pound All-American had a rocket-launching right arm and a lightning release. Marino was a classic dropback quarterback. But his success as a quarterback, and as a leader, transcended his physical skills.

In 1979, Marino led the Panthers to a Fiesta Bowl victory after replacing injured Rick Trocano in the season's seventh game. He set a Pitt freshman record with 1,680 yards passing.



As a sophomore in 1980 he was one of the country's leading passers until he was sidelined with a knee injury, and replaced by Trocano. He still finished with 1,513 yards and 14 touchdowns.

But it was his magical junior season in 1981 that truly earmarked him for greatness, and put him on a path that one day surely will lead to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton.

Marino passed for 2,876 yards and 37 touchdowns that year, leading Pitt to its third consecutive 11-1 record. He enhanced his reputation for delivering in the clutch in the 1982 Sugar Bowl, when he fired a 33-yard touchdown pass to tight end John Brown with just 35 seconds remaining in the game to give Pitt a pulsating, come-from-behind 24-20 victory over Georgia.

That victory put the icing on the winningest three-year stretch in Pitt history—three consecutive 11-1 seasons for a combined record of 33-3. It was also the third consecutive bowl victory for the Panthers, who defeated Arizona 16-10 in the Fiesta Bowl to close the 1979 season and crushed South Carolina 37-9 in the 1980 Gator Bowl.

Marino closed out his career at Pitt in 1982 by passing for 2,432 yards and 17 touchdowns, as Pitt, under new Head Coach Foge Fazio, finished 9-3, including a loss to SMU in the Cotton Bowl.

A first-round draft pick by the Miami Dolphins in 1981, Marino has rewritten many of the NFL's passing records and has been selected to the Pro Bowl five times.

Pitt's NFL Pipeline

All five members of Pitt's starting offensive line in 1988 — Roman Matusz (62), Mark Stepnoski (77), Dean Caliguire (64), Chris Goetz (72), and Tom Ricketts (71) were drafted by NFL teams. Left, bottom: Mark May (left) and Bill Fralic (right) have continued to shine in the NFL.

Although Pitt has a well-deserved reputation for forwarding top offensive linemen to the NFL, the Panthers' defensive line has been a fertile source for the NFL recently as well. In four of the last eight drafts a Pitt defensive lineman has been chosen in the first round.

Bill Maas	Round 1	Kansas City Chiefs	1984
Chris Doleman	Round 1	Minnesota Vikings	1985
Bob Buczkowski	Round 1	Los Angeles Raiders	1986
Burt Grossman	Round 1	San Diego Chargers	1989

In the past 11 NFL drafts, 15 Pitt offensive linemen have been drafted, including four first-rounders, one in the second round, and two in the third round. The following is a breakdown of Pitt's decade-long offensive line pipeline to the NFL:

Mark May	Round 1	Washington Redskins	1981
Russ Grimm	Round 3	Washington Redskins	1981
Emil Boures	Round 7	Pittsburgh Steelers	1982
Jimbo Covert	Round 1	Chicago Bears	1983
Rob Fada	Round 9	Chicago Bears	1983
Ron Sams	Round 6	Green Bay Packers	1983
Jim Sweeney	Round 2	New York Jets	1984
Bill Fralic	Round 1	Atlanta Falcons	1985
Randy Dixon	Round 4	Indianapolis Colts	1987
Ed Miller	Round 11	San Diego Chargers	1988
Tom Ricketts	Round 1	Pittsburgh Steelers	1989
Mark Stepnoski	Round 3	Dallas Cowboys	1989
Dean Caliguire	Round 4	San Francisco 49ers	1990

"Dan Marino is the best quarterback I've ever coached against at the collegiate level."

— Joe Paterno, Head Coach, Penn State

The Torch Stays Lit

Mark Stepnoski was a consensus All-America guard in his senior season of 1988. An Outland Trophy finalist, Stepnoski also was recognized as a first-team Academic All-American, won a National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete Award, and was the recipient of an NCAA Top 6 Award.

Pitt's teams in the mid-to-late 1980s under both Foge Fazio (1982-85) and Mike Gottfried (1986-89) continued to produce great players who have made impacts in professional football. Among those players: quarterback John Congemi, who has gone on to play in the Canadian Football League; Tony Woods, a first-round pick of the Seattle Seahawks in 1987; tackle Randy Dixon, a key member of the Indianapolis Colts; Craig Heyward, a 1988 first-round pick by the New Orleans Saints; Burt Grossman, a first-round pick by the San Diego Chargers; Tom Ricketts, a first-round pick by the Pittsburgh Steelers; Mark Stepnoski, a third-round pick by the Dallas Cowboys, and Jerry Olsavsky, an 11th-round pick by the Steelers who made the All-Rookie team in 1989.

The Iron Age at Pitt

At 6 feet and various weights ranging from 270 to 290, he was the Charles Barkley of college football: an outrageous hybrid of sinew, speed, and raw, unbridled power . . . a revolutionary tailback. He was an optical illusion who could dart, spin, shift, and hurdle at high speeds through, over, and around defenses. When he broke loose in the secondary he was like a blowtorch in a wax museum.

He was the nation's second-leading rusher in 1987, and his 12-game total of 1,791 yards rushing was the second-highest single-season total in Pitt history. That year he also became the eighth back in NCAA history to rush for 100 yards or more in 11 regular-season games. (The names of the previous seven to accomplish that feat read like a Who's Who of great college running backs: Tony Dorsett, Archie Griffin, Terry Miller, Marcus Allen, George Rogers, Herschel Walker, and Mike Rozier.)

The Backyard Brawl

It is called "The Backyard Brawl," and for good reason. When Pitt and West Virginia, the Panthers' neighbor some 70 miles to the south in Morgantown, square off on the gridiron, players, coaches, and fans from both schools can count on 60 minutes of furious football.

The series began on October 26, 1895, when the team from Western University of Pennsylvania took a train to Morgantown to face West Virginia. The Mountaineers had the better of it that day, scoring a touchdown and a safety while holding Western scoreless for an 8-0 victory.

In the 96 years since that inaugural game, Pitt has dominated the series, holding a 54-25-3 advantage. And while upsets may not have been the rule in this series, there have been more than a few.

In 1955—half a century after the first meeting between the two teams—the Panthers hosted West Virginia at Pitt Stadium before a crowd of 57,996. Pitt was a slight underdog, and scouts from the Sugar Bowl and Gator Bowl were on hand to check out the Mountaineers. But after Pitt knocked off West Virginia 26-7, and followed that victory with a 20-0 whitewash of Penn State the next week, it was the Panthers (7-3) who were invited to the Sugar Bowl. West Virginia, despite an 8-2 record, went uninivited.

Ten years later, in a game played at Mountaineer Field, Pitt and West Virginia exploded for a combined total of 111 points—the greatest offensive display in the series.

West Virginia jumped out to a 21-0 lead, but Pitt roared back to knot the score at 28. It was tied again 42-42. The Mountaineers went ahead 49-42. Pitt then scored to make it 49-48, and had a chance to knot the score one more time, but instead opted for a two-point conversion, which would have given the Panthers a one-point lead. The conversion attempt failed, and West Virginia pulled away for a 63-48 win. Eric Crabtree had a phenomenal day for the Panthers, totalling 304 yards in rushing, receiving, and kick returns.

For sheer drama, the 1970 matchup might have been the greatest game in the history of the series.

"It was two games in one," said Jack Henry, a former Pittsburgh sportswriter. "West Virginia dominated the first half and Pitt the second. West Virginia was beating Pitt so bad at halftime that people were walking out.

"In the second half all West Virginia could do was hold on. If they got maybe one more first down, time would have run out on Pitt. But they couldn't do it, and Pitt could."

The Panthers were 3-1 heading into that game; West Virginia, a six-point favorite, was 4-1. The winner would emerge as the No. 1 team in the East.

West Virginia, with Ed Williams rushing for three touchdowns, spurted to a 21-0 lead early in the second quarter. No sooner had Pitt narrowed its deficit to 21-8 then West Virginia exploded for two more touchdowns to make it 35-8 at halftime.

Despite trailing by 27 points, Pitt came out in the second half determined to establish a running game. (Incredibly, despite trailing by big margins throughout the game, Pitt ran 97 plays, and only 16 were passes.)

No one paid much attention when Pitt tailback Dennis Ferris scored from one-yard out early in the third quarter, and quarterback Dave Havern completed a two-point conversion pass to Joel Klimek to make it 35-16. But after Dave Garnett's five-yard touchdown run and another two-point conversion pass from Havern to Klimek cut the Mountaineers' advantage to 35-24, Pitt fans began to dream of a miracle.

Things got even more interesting in the fourth quarter, when Tony Esposito scored from a yard out, and suddenly, Pitt only trailed 35-30.

"When Pitt got the ball for what was to be its final drive, there was no rush," wrote Bob Smizik of the Pittsburgh Press. "The Panthers marched 65 yards in 17 plays to the West Virginia 5 without throwing a pass. But on third and four, Havern surprised everyone by flipping to Bill Pilconis in the end zone with 55 seconds to go to put Pitt ahead."

West Virginia didn't quit, and quickly moved the ball to the Pitt 39. But the Panthers recovered a fumble and emerged with one of the most dramatic victories in its football history.

Two years ago, there was some deja vu in a classic game at Mountaineer Field.

With Pitt trailing 31-9 in the fourth quarter, Panther tailback Adam Walker scored on a two-yard run to make it 31-15. Pitt then converted a West Virginia fumble into a nine-yard touchdown pass from freshman quarterback Alex Van Pelt to split end Henry Tuten.

Pitt recovered the ensuing onside kick. Seven plays later West Virginia was penalized for roughing placekicker Ed Frazier during a field-goal attempt, and the Panthers converted the mistake into a six-yard touchdown run by Curvin Richards. The extra point made it 31-28 with 2:55 left to play.

After forcing a West Virginia punt, Pitt took over at its 40, and Van Pelt moved the team to the Mountaineer 25, where Frazier kicked a game-tying field goal as time expired to give Pitt a stunning 31-31 tie.

Dorsett Eclipses 6,000-Yard Mark, All-Time Record

By MARINO PARASCENZO

Pitt vs. Penn State. It is one of college football's storied rivalries, an annual Pennsylvania gridiron civil war that for nearly 100 years has pitted former high school teammates against one another . . . has arrayed brother vs. brother . . . has seen fathers play at one school, their sons at the other . . . has fired football emotions in all corners of the state to white heat intensity.

No matter the records, no matter the odds, this game has been an annual proving ground, a crucible for measuring other achievements.

"There is always a feeling," says former Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, "that you've got to beat Penn State, or your season is not complete—no matter what your record is going into that game—and I'm sure they feel the same way."

Foge Fazio, who faced Penn State as a Pitt player and coach, put it this way: "You play against guys in high school . . . some come with you to Pitt, some go to Penn State. The next thing you know, you have players at both schools who know one another pretty well. They are going to see each other over the summer, and each one wants to make sure they have the bragging rights."

A quick glance at the all-time series record—Penn State leads 45-41-4—would indicate a century of see-sawing between the two schools. Yet closer examination reveals several alternate stretches of domination by first one school, then the other.

For instance, Penn State won the first six games played between the two schools, and 12 of the first 15. Then Pitt won the next six games in a row to begin an incredible 20-1-2 run from 1913-1938. Neither team could put together more than a three-game winning streak until the 1960s and early 1970s, when Penn State won 15 of 17 games from 1960-1975. Since then, the teams have fairly evenly traded victories and defeats.

The Panthers and Nittany Lions have taken turns keeping each other from bowl games, ruining unbeaten seasons, and otherwise committing various sabotoges over the years.

Penn State's win in 1952, for instance, kept Pitt from receiving an invitation to the Orange Bowl.

Three years later, in 1955, Pitt spoiled Penn State's Centennial Celebration with a decisive 20-0 victory in six inches of snow at Beaver Field.

It all began in 1893. Penn State dedicated its new Beaver Field with a 32-0 win over visiting Pitt (then known as Western University). The game actually was delayed two days because of a fierce snowstorm, with Penn State fraternities housing the Western players until the weather cleared on Monday.

In the early days, the intrastate series apparently didn't stir much interest—at least not among the press. A reader needed a magnifying glass to find the results of Penn State's 10-4 win in 1896. The Pittsburgh Press lavished one paragraph on its account of the 1902 game, a 27-0 Penn State victory. This was the last game to be played at Penn State until 1931.

The rivalry really heated up during Pop Warner's reign at Pitt. Penn State's great coach, Hugh Bezdek, had no particular fondness for Warner. According to Tim Pannachio in Beast of the East, "The dislike for Warner was so strong, Bezdek used to pull the players' bench on to the field to disrupt play and rattle Warner. Warner outfoxed him by having the Forbes Field benches staked to the ground.

Warner was 6-1-2 against Penn State. His one loss to the Nittany Lions came in 1919, a 20-0 defeat.

"It can be said there was no bitterness over the defeat on Pitt's part," The Pittsburgh Press reported. "It had drunk heartily from the cup of victory at State's expense in seasons past, and it was ready and willing to drain the cup of defeat without even a grimace."

Jock Sutherland, who had never lost to Penn State as a player at Pitt, was a perfect 12-0 against the Nittany Lions as the Panthers' head coach.

Sutherland's first Pitt team in 1924 successfully concluded its season with a 24-3 victory on Thanksgiving Day. Sutherland had sequestered his squad in seclusion for a week in Ligonier prior to the game.

"The Panthers returned to Pittsburgh the morning of the game," according to one report, "with a new spirit and determination to do or die in their last contest."

The following season sophomore Gibby Welch's famous 80-yard touchdown run from scrimmage set the tone for a 23-7 Pitt victory.

Pitt All-American Octavius "Toby" Uansa took the opening kickoff of the 1928 Penn State game on his own goal line and returned it 100 yards for a touchdown, the longest runback in series history. He also scored on a 44-yard run later in the game, and was a standout at safety throughout the contest. Penn State never quite recovered from the shock of Uansa's opening kickoff return, and suffered a 26-0 defeat.

In 1938, Pitt's "Dream Backfield" put Penn State to sleep. With Dick Cassiano scoring three touchdowns, the Panthers romped to a 26-0 victory.

A 160-pound freshman halfback from Pitt named Bernie Sniscak fueled a 14-0 upset of Penn State in 1944 with a 93-yard kickoff return for a touchdown that gave Pitt all the points it needed.

Pitt's Toby Uansa took the opening kickoff of the 1928 game 100 yards for a touchdown. He also ran 44 yards for a score as Pitt won 26-0.

A pair of games in the late 1940s are worthy of mention. The first, Pitt's 7-0 upset of Penn State in 1948, was described this way in the New York Herald Tribune:

"Smashing, bone-bending, oldtime knockdown and drag-out football thrilled a crowd of 51,075 in Pitt Stadium today, and when it was all over, Pittsburgh had done the impossible, beaten heavily favored Penn State 7-0. The crowd couldn't believe its eyes. Even a tie would have been an upset.

"There was nothing razzle-dazzle about the game, just straight, hard-hitting football from two single-wing teams, and the lone score came in the last quarter on a twenty-three yard run-back of an intercepted pass by Nick Bolkovac, a sophomore tackle who added the extra point from placement and who was a standout on defense.

"The game completed a cycle. The Nittany Lions were shooting for their 18th straight victory without defeat and, as the fates would have it, the last time State lost it was to Pitt in the final game of the 1946 season, 14-7. Carrying the theme a bit further, the last previous shutout handed Penn State was at the hands of the Panthers, 7-0, in the final game of the 1945 season."

In a series that has inspired many great individual performances through the decades, the one by Pitt back Lou "Bimbo" Cecconi in 1949 ranks near the top.

Cecconi scored two touchdowns, passed for another, and short-circuited three Penn State scoring drives with interceptions as Pitt shut out Penn State 19-0 in Pittsburgh.

One of Pitt's most satisfying victories against Penn State came in six inches of snow at Beaver Field in 1955. In the three previous years, Penn State Head Coach Rip Engle's team had held Pitt scoreless in three victories. But on this day, the Panthers held the Nittany Lions' star running back, Lenny Moore, to 13 yards on 10 carries, and spoiled Penn State's Centennial Celebration.

Two years later Norton Seaman—whose son Eric is currently a tight end for the Panthers—kicked the deciding point in Pitt's 14-13 victory at Pitt Stadium.

Seaman, a reserve guard, had to kick it twice. His first attempt was good, but Pitt was offside. After the penalty was marked off, he drilled it through the uprights again for the winning margin, nullifying Penn State's chances for a Gator Bowl bid.

Fate intervened to delay the 1963 Pitt-Penn State game, which originally had been scheduled for November 23. That date was set aside, however, as the official day of mourning for President John F. Kennedy, who had been assassinated two days earlier. Instead, it was moved back to December 7 at Pitt Stadium.

Pitt quarterback Fred Mazurek, playing with a painful hip injury, sparked Pitt's 22-21 come-from-behind victory, rushing for 142 yards and passing for 108 more. He scored the winning touchdown on a 17-yard rollout to cap a thrilling 77-yard drive.

Ken Lucas, whose brother Richie had been a star quarterback at Penn State in the late 1950s, had hoped to follow his brother's footsteps at Penn State. But when he was snubbed by Penn State Coach Rip Engle, who was comfortable enough with his stable of quarterbacks, Kenny wound up at Pitt.

In 1965, Lucas engineered a thrilling upset of Penn State, shredding the Penn State secondary with 18 completions in 24 attempts for 228 yards. He directed an electrifying drive in the game's final minute that climaxed with Frank Clark's 18-yard field goal with three seconds left to snap a 27-27 tie and give Pitt a 30-27 victory.

Pitt had surged to a 20-0 lead in the first half, and led 27-7 entering the fourth quarter. But Penn State fought back valiantly, tying the score at 27 with just minutes to play.

Tony Dorsett had one of the toughest games in his career against Penn State as a freshman, when he struggled for 65 yards and one touchdown in a 31-10 loss at Three Rivers Stadium.

But as a senior in 1976, Dorsett exploded for 224 yards— operating as a fullback in the second half in a surprise strategy move—as Pitt ended a 10-game losing streak to Penn State with a 24-7 win.

Carlton Willamson's game-saving interception late in the fourth quarter of a frigid game at Penn State in 1980 preserved a 14-9 victory in what Hugh Green, Pitt's All-America defensive end, called a "double-Excedrin game. "There was lots of pounding, lots of limping, and lots of headaches afterwards," he said.

There were even more headaches for Pitt the following season, when the Panthers, 10-0 and ranked No. 1 in the country, squandered a 14-0 lead as the Nittany Lions exploded for a 48-14 victory.

In 1987, the two teams waged a taut thriller at Pitt Stadium. The Panthers were clinging to a precarious 3-0 lead in the waning moments of the game, but Penn State was on the march. The Nittany Lions were on the Pitt 36-yard line with 36 seconds left when strong safety Billy Owens intercepted a pass by Penn State's Matt Knizner and streaked 69 yards for a game-clinching touchdown.

The 1989 16-13 victory by Penn State was satisfying to Nittany Lion placekicker Ray Tarasi for two reasons: (1) his 20-yard field goal with 13 seconds left secured the outcome and broke a two-game losing streak to Pitt, and (2) it surely made his father Ray, a halfback at Pitt in the late 1950s, proud.

Last season, Pitt came close to achieving what would have been its finest hour of a disappointing season, but dropped a hard fought 22-17 decision at Beaver Stadium as the Lions came from behind in the fourth quarter.

Kenny Lucas (above) quarterbacked the Panthers during parts of the 1963-65 seasons. His older brother Rich had called signals for the Nittany Lions several years earlier.

Lou "Bimbo" Cecconi (above) was the star of Pitt's 1949 victory, while (left) Billy Owens raced 69 yards with the interception which sealed the Panthers' 10-0 victory against Penn State at Pitt Stadium in 1987, the first time since 1965 that Pitt beat Penn State on the Panthers' home turf.

Back-To-Back Bonanzas

A pair of Pitt All-Americans had back-to-back rushing bonanzas against Penn State in 1929 and 1930. In Pitt's 20-7 win in 1929, Tom Parkinson rushed for 182 yards, while the following year Warren Heller blistered the Nittany Lions with 200 yards rushing and two touchdowns, on runs of 31 and 80 yards.

The Abromitis Oddity

One of the oddities of the Pitt-Penn State series involved Bill Abromitis, a Pitt fullback who in 1943 was also a Naval trainee who found himself assigned to Penn State. In a weird twist of fate, he wound up playing for Penn State against Pitt in the 1943 game, and even scored a touchdown to help the Nittany Lions to a 14-0 win. Nevertheless, after the season, because Pitt had been the college of his choice, when it was time to award varsity letters, Abromitis received his letter from Pitt, not Penn State.

Pitt Hall of Famers

College Football Hall of Fame

Johnny Majors became the fifth former Pitt coach to be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame on June 10, 1988. Majors coached the Panthers from 1973-76, and guided them to their ninth national championship.

The team Majors inherited was 1-10 in 1972, but the turnaround was sudden. Pitt jumped to 6-5-1 in 1973 (including a trip to the Fiesta Bowl), 7-4 in 1974, 8-4 with a Sun Bowl victory in 1975, and the perfect 12-0 national championship season of 1976. That year, and Majors' Pitt career, was capped by a 27-3 Sugar Bowl win over Georgia. He compiled a 33-13-1 record at Pitt.

Majors, who coached at Iowa State before coming to Pitt, returned to coach his alma mater, Tennessee, after the 1976 season. As a player there, Majors finished second in the Heisman Trophy balloting to Paul Hornung in 1956.

Pro Football Hall of Fame

Mike Ditka received pro football's highest honor on July 30, 1988, when he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. He is the second Pitt football player to be enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, joining Joe Schmidt.

Ditka was an All-America tight end at Pitt in 1960, his senior season. He led the Panthers in receiving three consecutive years. Ditka was also an excellent linebacker and punter. He was the captain of the 1960 squad.

His pro football career included All-Pro honors, and Ditka was a member of the Chicago Bears' 1963 NFL Championship team, and the Dallas Cowboys' Super Bowl VI championship team. Ditka worked as an assistant coach at Dallas for nine seasons, including another Super Bowl title year.

This fall he begins his 10th year as head coach of the Bears, a team he has rebuilt into a perennial power. The Bears won Super Bowl XX under Ditka.

Ditka is Pitt's only alumnus to be enshrined in both the Pro and College Football Halls of Fame.

Schmidt, Pitt's other inductee in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, was an All-America linebacker at Pitt in 1952, his senior season. He followed that with a brilliant 13-year career with the Detroit Lions, and was a member of the Lions' two NFL Championship teams. He later coached the team for six seasons, and led Detroit to its only playoff appearance of the 1970s. He was inducted in 1973.

Pitt's first bowl trip resembled a politician's whistle-stop tour — wherever Pitt was at lunchtime during its trek west, it practiced. The routine was simple: deboard the train around 11:15; explore the day's town until noon; lunch at 12; walk lunch off, then practice; reboard the train. So it was that Pitt practiced in Dodge City, Albuquerque and Winslow, Arizona, on the way to Pasadena. The game had a sentimental storyline: the coach against his mentor. Panther Coach John B. "Jock" Sutherland had played for Stanford Coach Glenn "Pop" Warner when the latter was at Pitt. Amidst all that, the game, although close, was controlled by Stanford. Pitt grabbed a 6-0 third-quarter lead when Jimmy Hagan scooped up a Cardinal fumble and ran 20 yards for a touchdown. The extra point was missed. Stanford, which made several marches deep into Pitt territory, finally scored on an unusual play. On fourth-and-goal at the two, Stanford quarterback Biff Hoffman completed a pass to Bob Sims, but it was short of the goal line. Sims was hit and fumbled, but Frank Wilton picked up the loose ball and carried it in to tie the game. Hoffman's extra point won it, 7-6. Pitt, a slight favorite entering the game, mustered very little offense in its first of four Rose Bowl games.

If vintage football films give you the impression that the game of the 20s and 30s was run, run, and run again, think again. USC's Trojans bombed Pitt with an all-out passing attack. The game started on a bright note for "Jock" Sutherland's team when Toby Uansa rushed 68 yards on Pitt's first play. Pitt failed to score, then the walls caved in. Galus Shaver connected with Henry Edelson for a 55-yard touchdown. Later in the quarter, Shaver hit Ernest Pinckert for a 28-yard score, capitalizing on a Pitt fumble. Another fumble led to USC's third touchdown, a short run which opened the score to 19-0. Two Jesses set up the Trojans' next score when Jesse Mortensen and Jesse Hill teamed for a 51-yard pass play. Russell Saunders helped convert a USC interception into a 33-0 lead with his 13-yard scoring run. Pitt finally broke through in the third quarter when Uansa threw a 28-yard pass to William Wallinchus. Southern Cal sandwiched two more long touchdown passes (38 and 62 yards) around a Tom Parkinson-to-Paul Collins 36-yard TD pass for Pitt to arrive at the final score. In all, the Trojans scored the most points against Pitt since 1903. It would be Sutherland's second worst margin of defeat in his 15 seasons at Pitt; the worst would come three years later, also against USC in the Rose Bowl.

Pop Warner often said the toughest game any team of his ever played was the 1928 Rose Bowl: "I have seen many games," he said, "where one team or the other played itself to exhaustion, but in that contest, both sides fought with equal fury, and when the last whistle blew, every player on the field was well used up."

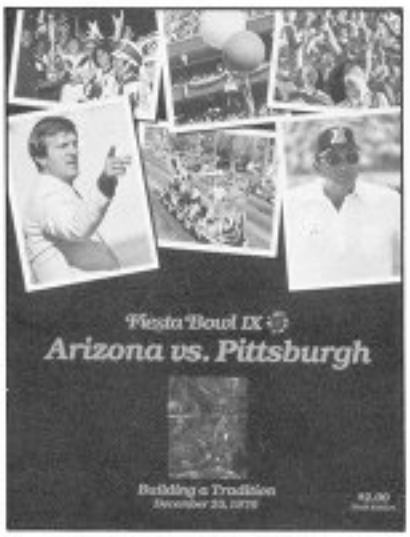
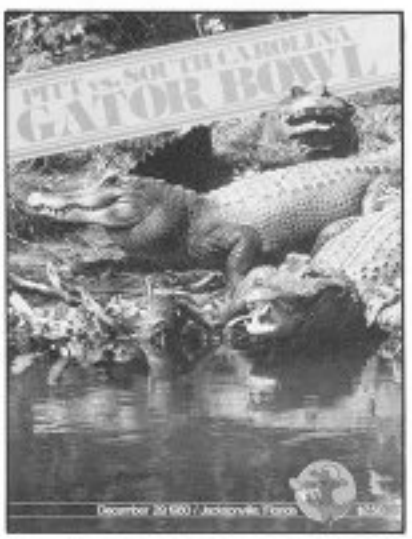
John Michelosen is the only man in Pitt history to play and coach in bowl games. He quarterbacked Pitt's 1936 Rose Bowl team and coached Pitt in the 1956 Sugar Bowl.





Tucson to practice for its first Rose Bowl win. Instead Sutherland suffered the worst loss in his Pitt career. It was the first time since 1928 that Pitt was shut out and actually lost the game; it had played four scoreless ties since a 6-0 loss to Carnegie Tech. With 83,000 in attendance, the Panthers stayed close until the fourth quarter before collapsing. USC's Homer Griffith threw, and later caught, a touchdown pass as the Trojans built a 14-0 lead through three quarters. After Irvine Warburton scored to make the score 21-0, Pitt fumbled the kickoff, and Warburton scored against shortly thereafter. A blocked punt set up the final touchdown. Several Panthers were singled out by the crowd with standing ovations: ends Ted Dailey and Joe Skladany, guard Charles Hartwig, and back Warren Heller, who rushed for 63 yards in the final game of his brilliant Pitt career.

"Jock" Sutherland was intent on winning the Rose Bowl in his fourth try. To that end, Pitt spent two weeks working out on the west coast, for Sutherland was not going to accept 0-4 in Rose Bowl play. His tactics worked, and captain Bobby LaRue led Pitt to a 21-0 victory. LaRue's running set up the first touchdown of the game, which, fittingly, he scored. LaRue's 50-yard run in the third quarter, which would have gone 75 yards for the touchdown if not for a diving tackle, set up Frank Patrick's touchdown. Pitt led, 14-0, after three quarters. The defense added a late touchdown, returning an interception. So elated was Sutherland that he substituted every player who made the trip, so each could forever relate the experience of playing in a Rose Bowl victory. After four tries, the coach had finally overcome one of the few obstacles in his brilliant career.

A controversial pass interference penalty against Pitt's Bobby Grier, the first black man ever to play in the Sugar Bowl, put Georgia Tech on the doorstep for the game's only touchdown. Pitt, under new Head Coach John Michelosen — the only man in Pitt history to play and coach in bowl games (he was a quarterback on the 1936 Rose Bowl team) — had several chances to tie the game but hit a wall of futility. Grier's penalty gave Tech the ball on the 1, from where Wade Mitchell snuck in for the score. A fumble killed a first-quarter drive, then quarterback Corny Salvaterra was stopped on a fourth-and-goal just before halftime. Pitt's Ray DiPasquale intercepted a pass to squelch a fourth quarter threat by Tech. In the final moments, Pitt made a furious attempt to tie the game. The Panthers, who were penalized twice on the last drive, were on Tech's 5-yard line when time ran out.

Coach John Michelosen's team had wanted a rematch with Georgia Tech, but the result was the same — a seven-point loss. Pitt outgained Tech by 106 yards, 313-207, but was plagued by turnovers. Georgia Tech converted an early interception into a touchdown and a 7-0 lead. Pitt was stopped on a goal-line stand at the start of the second quarter, and Tech increased its lead late in the quarter with a halfback-option TD pass. Pitt quarterback Corny Salvaterra hit Dick Bowen with a 36-yard scoring pass just before the

Celluloid Hero

The exchange of game films was not a regular practice in the 1930s, but some friends of Jock Sutherland saw to it that he was given films of his Rose Bowl opponent, the University of Washington, in action during the 1936 season. There were no questions asked concerning where they came from, or how they were obtained.

The Pitt team spent considerable time each night after dinner watching the films. They learned that one of the Huskies' favorite offensive weapons was a short lateral pass, pitched into the flat and over the head of an on-rushing end. One evening before the game, Bill Daddio, the Panthers' [All-America] end, approached Sutherland.

"Sooner or later, I'll grab one of those laterals and it'll be too bad for them," Daddio assured his coach.

Sure enough, in the fourth quarter, Washington quarterback By Haines, a southpaw, flipped a lateral. The alert Daddio, who was named the Rose Bowl MVP after the game, plucked it out of the air and rambled 71 yards into the end zone for Pitt's final touchdown in its 21-0 victory.

PITT	7	0	0	0	— 7

A new era in Pitt football was ushered in with the Panthers' first bowl appearance in 17 years. Coach-of-the-Year Johnny Majors had revived a struggling program and Pitt was 6-4-1 entering this game. Freshman Tony Dorsett was a big part of the turnaround, rushing for 1,686 yards. Pitt struck first, with Dorsett scoring two plays after Tom Perko recovered Arizona State quarterback Danny White's fumble on the first play of the game. But the Sun Devils, playing on their own field, proved too tough. Woody Green scored four plays after Dorsett's touchdown to tie the game. Arizona State scored three touchdowns in 6:04 of the fourth quarter, and although Pitt blocked all three extra points, the game ended one-sided after being tied at halftime. Dorsett rushed for 100 yards, but Pitt turned the ball over seven times. Both quarterbacks, White and Pitt's Billy Daniels, threw three interceptions, but White completed 14 of 19 for 269 yards. Daniels was 7-20 for just 57 yards.

A player rushing for 100 yards is impressive. Two players on the same team is remarkable. Three is unheard of, but that is how Pitt knocked off Kansas. Elliott Walker (11 carries for 123 yards, 11.2 average) got the ball rolling with a 60-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. Tony Dorsett (27-142) scored two touchdowns in the second quarter. Pitt had nearly 300 rushing yards at the intermission. Quarterback Robert Haygood ran the veer offense to perfection, rushing for 101 yards (14 carries) when he wasn't busy pitching out to Dorsett. Haygood also connected with Gordon Jones for a touchdown after Walker scored his second of the game. Jones set up his own touchdown with a 63-yard kickoff return. With eight wins, Pitt had its best season since 1963. Dorsett rushed for 1,686 yards on the season, matching his 1973 total.

The many remarkable accomplishments Tony Dorsett achieved in his four years at Pitt were punctuated by his role in this win, one that gave Pitt its first national championship in 39 years. Dorsett, quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, and a marauding defense just would not be denied in the first indoor Sugar Bowl game. Cavanaugh, named the game's MVP, scored from 6 yards out to give Pitt a 7-0 lead. The celebration of that touchdown became a Sports Illustrated cover that can be seen at several sites around Pitt's campus. The photo headline simply read: "PITT IS IT!" Gordon Jones turned a short pass into a 59-yard touchdown excursion in the second quarter. Dorsett's 10-yard score late in the half cemented the victory. He was far from through, however. After gaining 65 yards in the first half, the Heisman Trophy winner exploded in the second to finish with a Sugar Bowl record 202 yards rushing, including 67 on one run that set up one of Carson Long's two second-half field goals. The defense created six turnovers, and limited the Bulldogs to 181 yards. Pitt defenders actually caught more Georgia passes than did Georgia receivers (four interceptions, compared to three completions in 22 attempts). Vince Dooley, Georgia's head coach, said this about the 12-0 Panthers: "They proved today they are the best in the country. They have amazing balance; they are the best defensive team we've seen — I think that is obvious. They are also the best offensive team we've faced." Pitt coach Johnny Majors, who completed his four-year stint at Pitt with a 33-13-1 record (after a combined 13-29 mark in the previous four years) was named Coach-of-the-Year for the second time at Pitt.

Pitt set five Gator Bowl records for offensive proficiency in an astounding demolition of the highly regarded Clemson Tigers. Matt Cavanaugh completed 23 of 36 passes for 387 yards and four touchdowns as Pitt outgained Clemson, 566-268. Three scoring tosses went to fullback Elliott Walker, who joined Tony Dorsett as the second Pitt back ever to rush for 1,000 yards in a season. Gordon Jones scored the other Clemson's vaunted passing combination of Steve Fuller-to-Jerry Butler was rendered ineffective by a Pitt secondary which swooped in for four interceptions, two by senior safety Bob Jury. Cavanaugh, an All-American in 1977, missed part of the season after suffering a broken wrist against Notre Dame. "I shudder to think what he could have done had he stayed healthy," said Panther Coach Jackie Sherrill, who finished his first year at Pitt with a 9-2-1 mark.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE	7	10	3	10	— 30
PITT	0	0	3	14	— 17

The Panthers saved their worst performance of the season for this bowl outing with North Carolina State. Primarily a running team in 1978, Pitt attempted to open it up on this night, throwing 48 passes. Four were intercepted, however. The Wolfpack, led by star running back Ted Brown, rolled up a 23-3 fourth quarter lead before Pitt quarterback Rick Trocano tried to bring the Panthers back. An 18-play drive featured four fourth-down conversions, the last of which resulted in a Freddie Jacobs touchdown. Pitt moved to State's 34-yard line with just over five minutes remaining, but an interception settled the issue. Trocano was intercepted twice more before the game ended, but he also led Pitt to the game's final touchdown. "Execution on our part was our biggest problem," Coach Jackie Sherrill said. "We didn't play well . . . and the turnovers hurt us." Pitt finished 8-4.

Pitt finished the 1979 season with a ten-game winning streak, built in part around the arm of freshman quarterback Dan Marino. The season finale came on Christmas Day, with the Panthers rounding out an 11-1 campaign with a 16-10 win over Arizona. The Wildcats, coached by former Pitt radio commentator Tony Mason, threatened often but did not score a touchdown until the game's waning moments. Junior cornerback Terry White intercepted two passes. One set up the second of three Mark Schubert field goals; the other allowed Pitt to run out the clock. Two of Schubert's kicks were from 46 yards out. Pitt's only touchdown came after a 12-play drive, with Marino hitting Benjie Pryor from 12 yards out. The last three plays of the drive: Marino to Mike Dombrowski for 34 yards, Marino to Ralph Still for 24 yards, and the touchdown.

Pitt's defense wanted this game badly. Its leader for four years, Hugh Green, finished second in the Heisman Trophy voting behind South Carolina's George Rogers. With the chance to avenge that result, Pitt smothered the Gamecocks with a swarming defense and an efficient offense. Rick Trocano and Dan Marino split time at quarterback; each threw a touchdown pass and Trocano added a short TD run. Although Rogers gained 113 yards, his two fumbles were more of a factor in the game than his rushing output. Tom Flynn recovered Rogers' fumble on the first play of the game, leading to Trocano's score. Randy McMillan scored two touchdowns as Pitt rolled to a 37-3 lead. The defense was led by Rickey Jackson, who made 19 tackles (14 solos). Pitt finished the season 11-1.

One of the most dramatic finishes in Pitt football history gave Pitt its second Sugar Bowl win over Georgia. Pitt trailed, 20-17, with 42 seconds remaining. It faced a fourth-and-5 at the Bulldog 33. Coach Jackie Sherrill disdained the potential 50-yard field goal attempt. "With five minutes to go I said we were not here to tie, we were here to win," Sherrill said. Dan Marino wanted to throw a short pass to a running back to get the first down, but a Georgia blitz left tight end John Brown in single coverage down the middle. Marino was right on target for the touchdown, his third of the game. The Panther defense limited Herschel Walker to 84 yards on 25 carries.

The Panthers' season came to a dismal end as Pitt lost to Southern Methodist in the Mustangs' own backyard. Dan Marino, in his last game at Pitt, was plagued by dropped passes on the cold, rainy day. He completed 19 of 37 for 181 yards. Fumbles were the story of the first quarter. Joe McCall lost one at the SMU one-yard line, but Mustang QB Lance McIlhenny returned the favor with a fumble at the Pitt seven. Eric Schubert's missed field goal attempt left the game scoreless at the half. Marino completed five straight short passes to set up Schubert's 43-yard kick which gave Pitt its only points. SMU's "Pony Express" backfield (Eric Dickerson and Craig James) led an 80-yard drive, which McIlhenny capped off with a nine-yard run. Pitt's last chance ended when a Marino pass was tipped and intercepted in the end zone.

John Congemi completed a school-record 31 passes for 341 yards, but a late Ohio State touchdown pass spoiled Congemi's, and Pitt's, afternoon. Congemi's second-quarter touchdown pass to tight end Clint Wilson tied the score at 7-7, but the Buckeyes led, 14-7, entering the fourth quarter. Wilson fell on Joe McCall's fumble in the end zone to tie the score early in the fourth quarter. Ohio State's Keith Byars scored his second touchdown by returning the ensuing kickoff 99 yards. Congemi was six-for-six on Pitt's next touchdown drive, which culminated with an 11-yard pass to Dwight Collings. Congemi, who completed 19-of-27 in the second half, had his conversion pass broken up, and Pitt trailed, 21-20. A 17-play drive later in the quarter ended with Snuffy Everett's 37-yard field goal to put the Panthers on top. Quarterback Mike Tomczak led Ohio State back, ending an 89-yard drive with a 39-yard bomb to Thad Jemison, who scored with 39 seconds remaining. Head Coach Foge Fazio's Panthers drove to the Buckeye 24, but could get no further.

Despite late heroics from Larry Wanke, Pitt was grounded in this aerial circus, as Texas quarterback Brett Stafford and split end Tony Jones set Bluebonnet Bowl records. The New Year's Eve crowd was treated to an action-packed game from the start. Stafford connected with Jones for a 77-yard touchdown on the first play from scrimmage. Pitt retaliated quickly: Billy Owens returned the kickoff 45 yards, Billy Osborn hit Reggie Williams for 45 more yards on a trick play; then Craig Heyward tied the score with a four-yard burst. Six plays later, the Longhorns took the lead for good as Stafford hit Jones on a short pass and broke for a 60-yard touchdown. Stafford finished the first quarter with 202 yards passing on the way to a 368-yard night. Jones set records for receiving yards and longest receptions. Wanke replaced Darnell Dickerson early in the third quarter after Dickerson suffered a knee injury. Wanke completed 8 of 20 passes for 172 yards and three touchdowns, including two late in the fourth quarter that cut the Longhorns' lead to five. Craig Heyward rushed for 136 yards, winning his personal battle with Texas star Eric Metcalf, who finished with 95 yards rushing. Heyward ended the season with 1,791 yards, the second-best in Pitt history. The Panthers finished the year at 8-4, the most successful Pitt season since 1983.

TEXAS A&M	7	3	12	6	—	28

Led by bowl MVP Alex Van Pelt's 354 yards passing, Pitt parlayed a John Hancock Bowl-record 530 yards in offense into a 31-28 come-from-behind victory over Texas A&M. It was a day of firsts for the Panthers. Paul Hackett, named head coach moments before kickoff, won his first game as a head coach. It also was Pitt's first bowl win since the Panthers' 24-20 Sugar Bowl victory over Georgia in 1982. Van Pelt, who completed 20 of 40 passes and threw for two touchdowns, rallied the Panthers from a 28-24 deficit, when he connected with Henry Tuten on a 44-yard touchdown strike with just 2:19 remaining in the game, giving Pitt a 31-28 lead. Tailback Curvin Richards rushed for 156 yards on 23 carries and scored the first points of the game with a 12-yard TD. Texas A&M countered with a nine-yard touchdown run by quarterback Lance Pavlas, tying the score at 7-7 to end the first quarter. With the score tied at 10 late in the first half, Van Pelt threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to Ronald Redmon, giving Pitt a 17-10 halftime lead. Flanker Olanda Truitt completed his freshman season in stellar fashion, catching four passes for 124 yards, including a key 59-yard reception that set up Redmon's score. Carnel Smith finished the game with 10 tackles and Barry Threats had a game-ending interception, which ended Texas A&M's final drive and secured the Panthers' victory. The Hancock Bowl win marked the end of another decade in Pitt football history and the dawn of the Hackett coaching era. The Panthers finished the 1989 season with an 8-3-1 record.

John Congemi completed 31 passes for 341 yards during the 1984 Fiesta Bowl against Ohio State, including 19-27 in the second half.

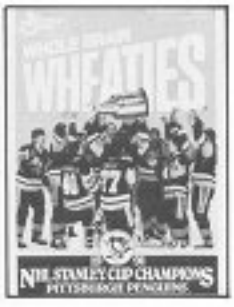
Wheaties: From Panthers to Penguins



Since 1933, Wheaties breakfast cereal has been known as "The Breakfast of Champions." Nine years after the cereal was first introduced the company jumped into its first venture in the sports arena by sponsoring the play-by-play of baseball radio broadcasts. In that same year, the popular slogan was created.

In 1934, Pitt All-America end Charles Hartwig graced a Wheaties box as one in a series of college football stars. Hartwig is the grandfather of former University of Miami quarterback Craig Erickson.

The company's turn to professional athletes was fueled by rulings by the NCAA on the limitations of college athletes.

Wheaties has honored many athletes since that time, such as Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner from 1977 to 1979, Olympic gold medal gymnast Mary Lou Retton from 1984 to 1986, Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton from 1986 until 1988, tennis great Chris Evert in 1987 and the Chicago Bulls' Michael Jordan since 1988.

1934 Pitt All-American Charles Hartwig

Beginning in the 1980s, Wheaties honored several superstars and national champion teams on regionally marketed packages. Such teams featured on these packages were the Minnesota Twins in 1987, the Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Lakers in 1988, the Detroit Pistons in 1989, the Cincinnati Reds in 1990 and the 1991 New York Giants.

Then, in 1991, 57 years after Hartwig appeared on the cereal box, other Pittsburgh athletes were honored by General Mills. The National Hockey League Champion Pittsburgh Penguins were featured on a regional cover of the cereal. The Penguins became the first hockey team to be honored with a championship package. More than 240,000 of the Wheaties/Penguins packages arrived on June 3 at supermarkets in the Greater Pittsburgh area.

The Panthers and Penguins have brought the "Breakfast of Champions" to the "City of Champions."

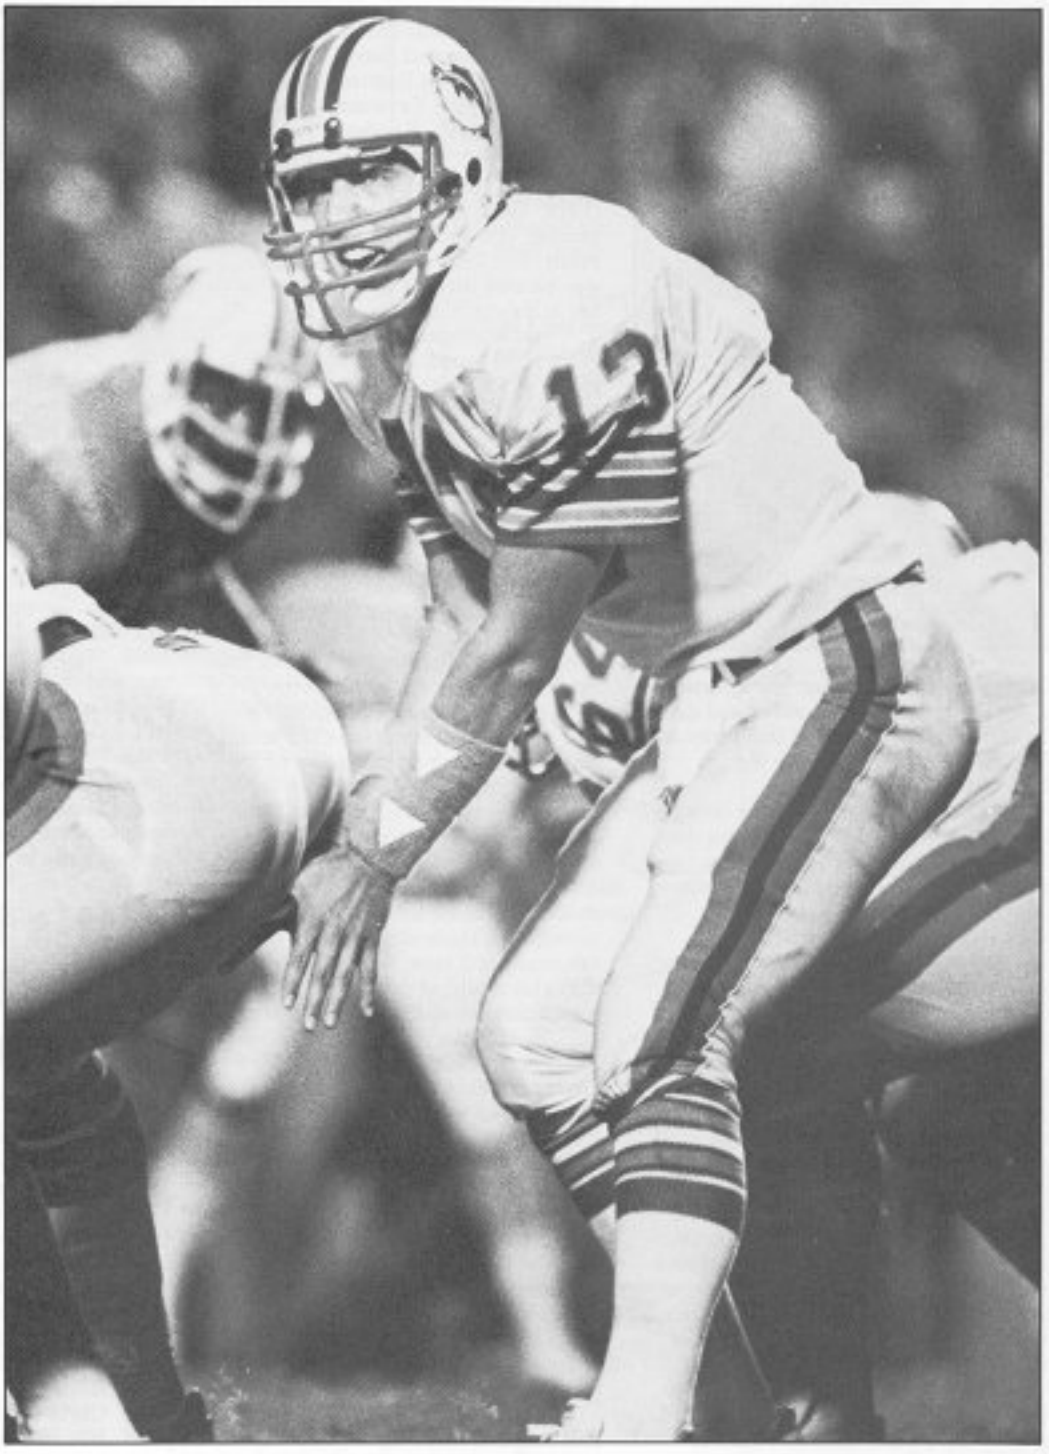
Dan Crossman

Crossman World Bowl MVP

Former Pitt fullback and strong safety Dan Crossman has the distinction of being the first Most Valuable Player in the World League of American Football's inaugural World Bowl championship game this past June.

Crossman, whose collegiate career began at Kansas, transferred to Pitt and lettered during the 1987-88-89 seasons.

Playing for the London Monarchs of the WLAF, Crossman intercepted three Barcelona Dragon passes (returning one 20 yards for a touchdown) as the Monarchs won the season finale, 21-0.



Pitt Players in the NFL

Tony Dorsett (above) is Pitt's all-time leading rusher. He was the Dallas Cowboys' No. 1 draft pick in 1977 and played 11 seasons with them before finishing his career with the Denver Broncos. Dorsett is No. 2 on the NFL's all-time rushing yardage list, behind Walter Payton.

During the past 15 years, few schools—if any—can match the number and quality quotient of players the University of Pittsburgh has forwarded to the National Football League.

Of course, Pitt through the decades has been a fertile talent source for the NFL, both for players and coaches. Standouts such as Marshall Goldberg, Jock Sutherland, Joe Schmidt, Joe Walton, Fred Cox, Marty Schottenheimer, and Mike Ditka are among the prominent names in a long roll call of Panthers who have gained fame in pro football.

But in the past 15 years, there has been a dramatic surge of top Pitt-bred talent in the NFL. Currently, two Pitt men are NFL head coaches: Ditka (Chicago Bears) and Schottenheimer (first with the Cleveland Browns, presently with the Kansas City Chiefs). And at the start of training camps this summer, there were 37 former Panthers on NFL rosters. That figure includes an impressive total of 12 Pitt players who have been chosen in the first round of the NFL college draft since 1981.

Probably no school can match the kind of instant impact Pitt's recent NFL players have made. Of Pitt's 14 first-round picks since 1981, 12 became starters as rookies—86 percent. Seven of those players eventually reached the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl.

The great Pitt teams of the late 1970s and early 1980s began providing this motherlode of impact talent to the NFL. Heisman Trophy running back Tony Dorsett started the stream when the Dallas Cowboys traded up with the Seattle Seahawks to select him with the second pick of the 1977 draft. A year later a pair of Dorsett's teammates on Pitt's 1976 national championship team, defensive end Randy Holloway (a Minnesota Vikings first-round pick) and quarterback Matt Cavanaugh (second round by the New England Patriots), joined Dorsett in the NFL.

Three consecutive 11-1 seasons (1979, 1980, and 1981) provided another rich haul of future professional talent. The 1980 squad, in particular, was blessed with an extraordinary number of future NFL stars.

Twelve players were drafted from Pitt's 1980 squad, including three first-round picks: defensive end Hugh Green (Tampa Bay Buccaneers), tackle Mark May (Washington Redskins), and running back Randy McMillan (Baltimore Colts). Defensive end Rickey Jackson (second round, New Orleans Saints), guard Russ Grimm (third round, Washington Redskins), safety Carlton Williamson (third round, San Francisco 49ers), defensive tackle Greg Meisner (third round, Los Angeles Rams), cornerback Lynn Thomas (fifth round, San Francisco 49ers), tight end Benjie Pryor (fifth round, Cincinnati Bengals), defensive tackle Jerry Boyarsky (fifth round, New Orleans Saints), defensive tackle Bill Neill (fifth round, New York Giants), and quarterback Rick Trocano (11th round, Pittsburgh Steelers) were the other draftees; seven additional seniors on the 1980 squad signed free agent contracts with NFL clubs.

Among the underclassmen on that fabulous 1980 team were three players who also would all become NFL first-round draftees in 1983—quarterback Dan Marino (Miami Dolphins), tackle Jim Covert (Chicago Bears), and defensive back Tim Lewis (Green Bay Packers)—as well as defensive tackle Bill Maas, whom the Kansas City Chiefs chose in the first round in 1984. Two other underclassmen in 1980, center Jim Sweeney and defensive back Tom Flynn, have gone on to have fine NFL careers.

The Pitt player pipeline to the NFL has continued throughout the rest of the 1980s. Subsequent first-round draft picks have included guard Bill Fralic (Atlanta Falcons) and defensive end Chris Doleman (Minnesota Vikings) in 1985; defensive end Bob Buczkowski (Los Angeles Raiders) in 1986; linebacker Tony Woods (Seattle Seahawks) in 1987, running back Craig Heyward (New Orleans Saints) in 1988; and defensive end Burt Grossman (San Diego Chargers) and offensive tackle Tom Ricketts (Pittsburgh Steelers) in 1989.

NFL talent scouts echo one another when they discuss Pitt prospects.

"Pitt players are a known commodity," says Les Miller, former college personnel director for the San Diego Chargers. "You hardly see any failures there. Not only do they make it, but they become the players everyone expects them to be. They all seem to have the right work ethic and a desire to be the best."

"There is no question the kids from Pitt come ready to play in the National Football League," says John Butler, the director of college scouting for the Buffalo Bills.

"I think it is probably true that the kids at Pitt are a little more adaptive to the NFL than kids from most other schools," says Joe Woolley, director of player personnel for the Philadelphia Eagles. "Pitt recruits outstanding athletes, then teaches them pro techniques and uses a lot of pro schemes."

According to a pair of former Pitt greats, hard work and skillful coaching are also part of the mix.

"At Pitt most of the players come from Western Pennsylvania and have that Western Pennsylvania work ethic," says Jim Covert, who was named the NFL Offensive Lineman of the Year in 1986. "You work as hard as you possibly can, and then you work a little harder."

Says Chris Doleman, selected the NFL's Defensive Lineman of the Year in 1988, "It seems like the coaching we got put us a step ahead of everybody else. I know the coaches (in Minnesota) have to teach rookies the things we learned early in our careers at Pitt."

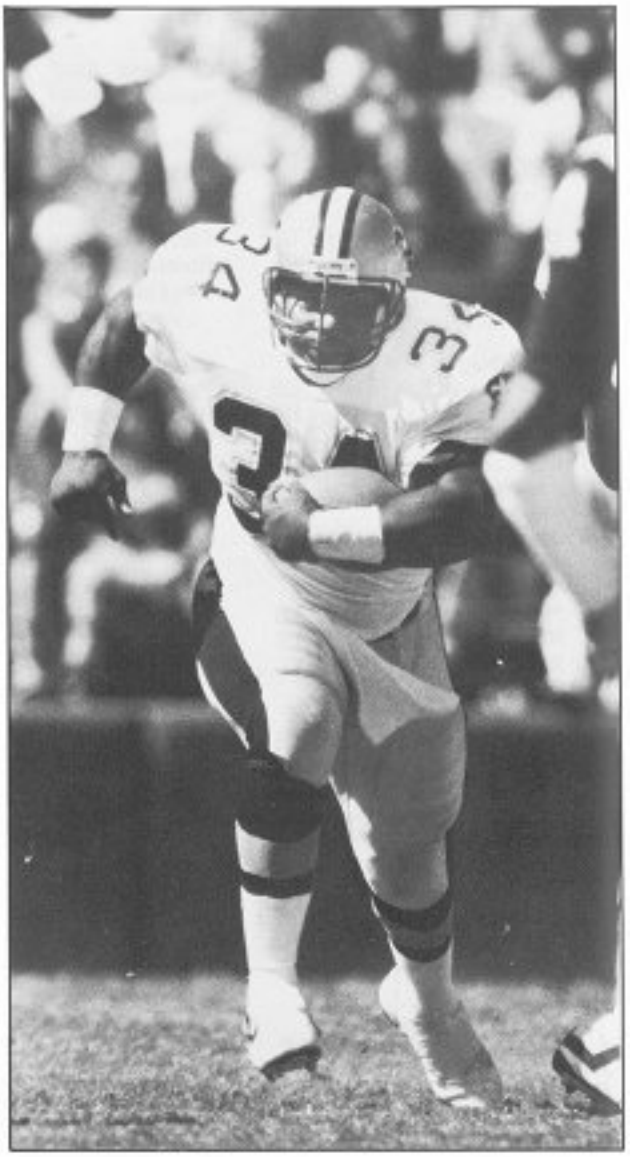
* In the 60's, the AFL established the same draft format as the NFL by drafting in an inverse order of finish. Each league had its own draft allowing for athletes to be drafted by the AFL and the NFL.

 Jack Durishan was drafted in 1943 by Pittsburgh. He served in the armed forces and after returning was drafted again in 1947 by the New York Yankees.

Steve Jastrzembski was drafted by Boston (AFL) in 1962 and Baltimore (NFL) in 1961.



Craig "Ironhead" Heyward (right) was one of the most unique running backs to play for Pitt. He is now a member of the New Orleans Saints.

Though he never played football at Pitt, Sam Clancy, Pitt's all-time leading rebounder in basketball, has enjoyed a fine career as a defensive end in the NFL. He is currently a member of the Indianapolis Colts.

Panthers in the Super Bowl

Fred Cox

Matt Cavanaugh

The Super Bowl is without a doubt the biggest annual one-day event in American sports. A number of former Pitt players have played (and coached) in the Super Bowl, and many wear the ring of victory; in fact, at least one Pitt alumnus has been associated with the winning team in each of the last nine Super Bowls.

Mike Ditka is the only Pitt man to win the Super Bowl as both a player and head coach. Ditka was a member of the Dallas Cowboys when they defeated Miami in Super Bowl VI. In 1986, Ditka coached the Chicago Bears to victory in Super Bowl XX over the New England Patriots. Among the Bears' starters that day was tackle Jim Covert, a former Pitt All-American.

Carlton Williamson added a third Super Bowl ring to his collection three years ago as a member of the NFL Champion San Francisco 49ers. The first Pitt alumnus to accomplish this feat, Williamson also earned rings in Super Bowls XVI and XIX. Only two other former Panthers, Russ Grimm and Mark May, have captured the coveted prize more than once. Grimm and May both received rings for the Washington Redskins' triumphs in Super Bowls XVIII and XXII.

No Pitt player was more fortunate to get to the Super Bowl than Tom Flynn, who began the 1986 season with Green Bay. The Packers released him, and late in the same season he signed with the New York Giants, who captured Super Bowl XXI.

On the flipside, Fred Cox, a star at Pitt in the late 1950s and early 1960s and a placekicker with the Minnesota Vikings, endured the agony of Super Bowl defeat four times. Dan Marino had arguably the best season ever for a pro quarterback in 1984, but his Dolphins lost to San Francisco in the Super Bowl.

The complete list of Pitt's Super Bowl participants:

Gary Burley, Cincinnati, XVI
Matt Cavanaugh, San Francisco, XIX, New York Giants, XXV

Pitt in the Polls

In December 1972, then Pitt Athletic Director Cas Myslinski (right) announced the hiring of John Majors as Pitt's new head football coach. When Pitt finished the 1975 season in AP's Top 20 Poll, it was the Panthers' first appearance in a season's final poll since 1963.

Football Lettermen(1890-1990)

The following list was compiled from various sources during the summer of 1981, and has been updated and corrected annually since then. Although all cautions were taken to avoid errors, we do realize that names were most likely omitted due to the immensity of the task. If you have additions, or find errors in the list, please contact the Sports Information Office.

Rich Dukovich, Pitt safety and special teams dynamo from the early '80s, is now a dentist.

All-Americans

A total of 64 players at the University of Pittsburgh have been honored as first-team All-Americans. The following describes each player's career in brief:

Robert Peck - 1914-16 - center
Robert Peck was Pitt's initial first-team All-American, being selected in 1914, 1915 and 1916. Pitt only lost one game in those three years. He was captain of the 1916 team that is rated among the greatest of all time, both at Pitt and in the nation. He was a roving center of the old variety and also an accurate passing center. After his graduation he moved to Culver Military Academy, where he was athletic director and head coach until his sudden death in 1934.

James Herron - 1916 - end
James Herron became a consensus All-America end in 1916 after earning his fourth letter playing football for Pitt. He was a hard-nosed player who was known for his aggressive play on both offense and defense. He spent one year in the NFL playing for the Cleveland Tigers.

Andy Hastings - 1916 - back
Andy Hastings became an All-American in 1916 after leading Pitt in scoring for the third consecutive year. He is in 15th place on Pitt's all-time rushing list with 1,527 yards. He led the Panthers in rushing in 1914 and 1915, and led the team in passing and interceptions in 1916.

Claude "Tiny" Thornhill - 1916 - guard
Claude "Tiny" Thornhill was an All-America guard in 1916. He was a smart and aggressive guard who was quick off the line. Thornhill was a four-year letterman from 1913-1916. He spent one season in the NFL playing for the Cleveland Tigers and the Buffalo All-Americans.

H.C. Carlson - 1917 - end
H.C. Carlson gained All-America honors in 1917 after being the captain of an undefeated team. He rates as one of the finest players Pitt has had. While at Pitt he earned four letters each in football, basketball and baseball, starring in each sport. In 1920, he earned his M.D. degree at the Pitt Medical School resulting in his nickname of "Doc." He won great fame as Pitt's basketball coach for 31 years. He won two national championships while compiling a 369-247 record, achievements which earned Carlson a spot in The Basketball Hall of Fame.

Dale Sies - 1917 - guard
Dale Sies was an All-America guard in 1917. He was one of the finest athletes on the Pitt squad and was also known as a fierce defender. After spending some time in the armed forces he returned to football where he became an NFL quarterback. He spent five years in the NFL playing for the Cleveland Tigers, Dayton Triangles, Rock Island Independents and the Kenosha Maroons.

Gibby Welch's famous 105-yard touchdown run against West Virginia in 1927.

Jock Sutherland - 1917 - guard
Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland was an All-America guard in 1917 and later became a great coach at Pitt. He entered Pitt a few years after leaving his native Scotland and was a regular on the teams of 1914-1917 that lost one game during the entire period. In 1924, he became head coach at Pitt and in the next 15 years he won five national titles and took his teams to four Rose Bowls. He left Pitt in 1939 to coach the NFL's Brooklyn Dodgers in 1940 and 1941. He later took over as head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers with much success until his very sudden death in the spring of 1948.

George McLaren - 1917-18 - fullback
George McLaren, who was an All-America fullback in 1917 and 1918, is regarded by many as Pitt's all-time finest fullback. He still holds the Pitt fullback rushing record for a season, with 782 yards, and has the record for the longest run from scrimmage. He scored 13 touchdowns in 1917 and was the team captain in 1918. McLaren's most amazing achievement: he was never stopped without a gain on a running play. He is Pitt's fifth all-time leading scorer with 183 points and 10th all-time rusher with 1,920 yards. He also spent two years apiece on the basketball and track teams.

Tom Davies - 1918, 1920 - back

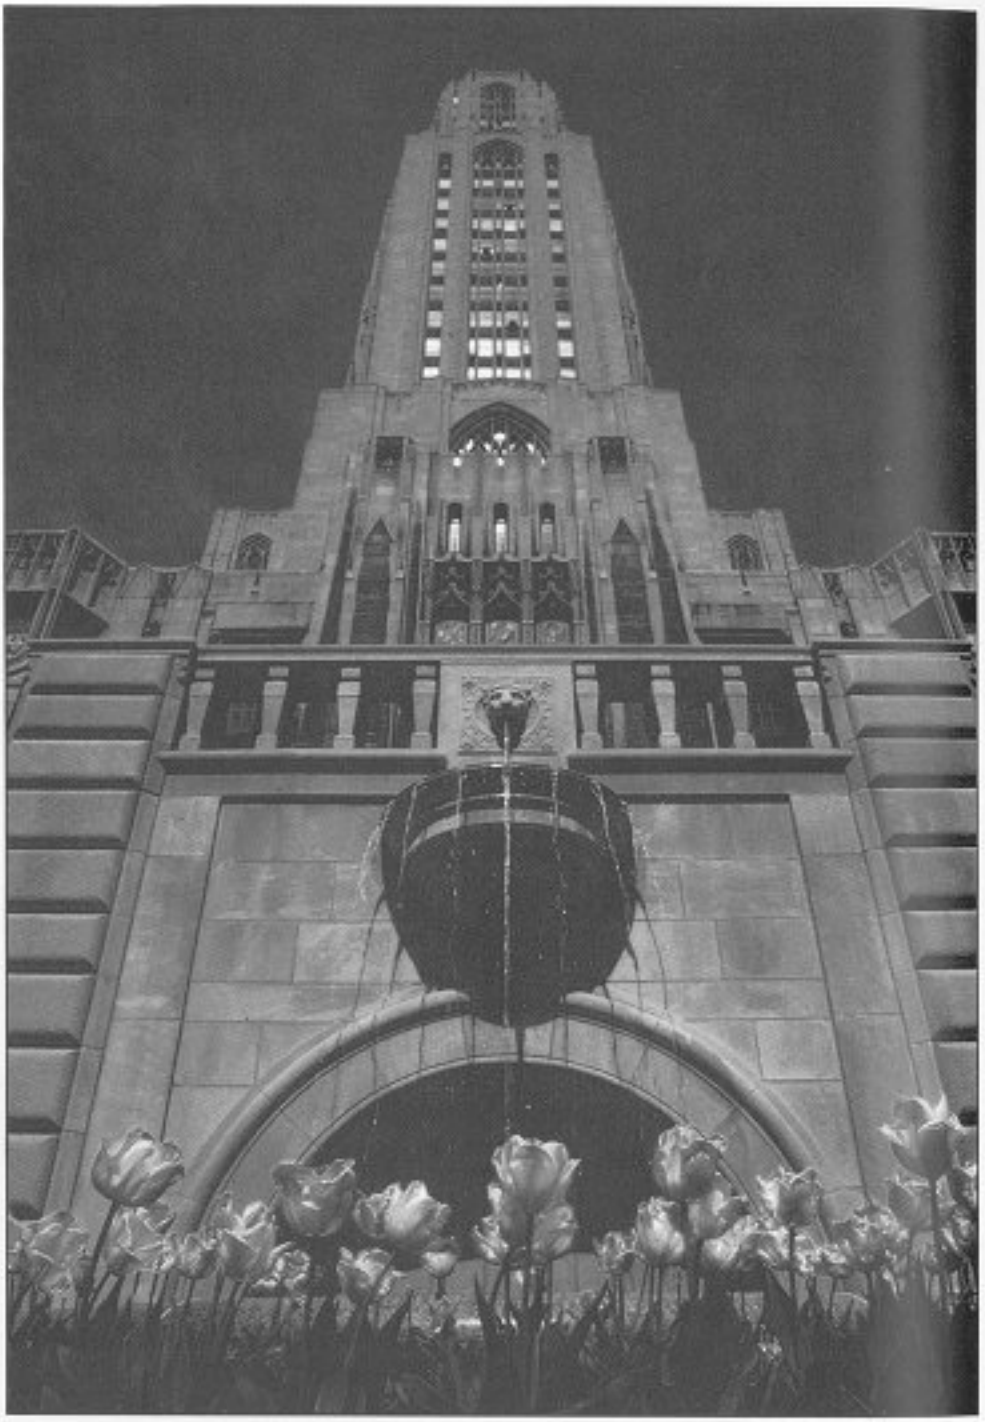
UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH

The University of Pittsburgh

The University of Pittsburgh was founded in a log cabin in 1787 and is among the oldest institutions of higher education in the United States. More than 200,000 graduates have emerged from Pitt's classrooms, whose accomplishments range from saving the lives of patients once thought beyond the hope of medical science to winning Olympic gold medals. From the University's laboratories have come Jonas Salk's polio vaccine, the discovery of Vitamin C, and the development of synthetic insulin. Today, this former frontier University is the prototype for tomorrow's fiber-optic-networked campuses and is a partner in one of the world's most advanced supercomputing centers. Pitt has proudly embarked upon its third century of "pioneering the future."



Campuses

The main campus of the University of Pittsburgh consists of 90 buildings on 132 acres and is located in the heart of Oakland, the city's educational center. Pitt also has four branch campuses in Bradford, Greensburg, Johnstown, and Titusville, Pennsylvania.

Enrollment

Approximately 34,686 students are enrolled at the University's five campuses. Of this total, 23,322 are full-time and 11,364 part-time; 25,129 are undergraduates and 9,557 are graduate students. President J. Dennis O'Connor

Dr. J. Dennis O'Connor, a nationally prominent biologist and formerly the highest-ranking academic officer at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, was named the 16th president of the University of Pittsburgh on May 1, 1991.

O'Connor, who assumed office on Aug. 1, succeeds Wesley W. Posvar, who served as Pitt's president since 1967.

Upon O'Connor's appointment to the presidency, Pitt's Board of Trustees chairman John C. Marous called O'Connor a dynamic administrator who "has proven himself as a first-rate scientist, as well as an energetic and caring teacher. He is committed to the mutual advancement of these dual qualities: combining the stimulation of the intellectual curiosity with the transmission of the knowledge that curiosity yields, which is the art of teaching. And we believe he will make far-reaching and exciting contributions to this University, the region of Western Pennsylvania, and to American higher education."

"I am honored to become Pitt's president, O'Connor said in accepting the appointment. "The University's strengths are highly impressive: an energetic and outstanding arts and sciences faculty as the cornerstone of the University; a comprehensive world-class health affairs center; top professional schools; four thriving regional campuses throughout Western Pennsylvania; and an active NCAA Division I athletic program. This is a major university with proven excellence in teaching, research and public service. I am very determined and optimistic about sustaining and enhancing such excellence at the University of Pittsburgh.

Prior to coming to Pitt, O'Connor served as vice chancellor of academic affairs and provost at the University of North Carolina (UNC) at Chapel Hill from 1988-1991. He was a member of the UNC faculty since 1987, where he served as vice chancellor of research and graduate studies, as well as dean of the graduate school from 1987-1988.

Before serving at UNC, O'Connor held a series of high ranking positions at the University of California-Los Angeles (UCLA). He began as an assistant professor of zoology from 1968-1973, served as associate professor of biology from 1973 to 1979, and professor of developmental biology from 1979 to 1987. O'Connor chaired the department of biology from 1979 to 1981 and then served as the dean of the division of life sciences until 1987.

In addition, O'Connor was a visiting professor of zoology at Monash University (Melbourne, Australia) in 1977, and visiting professor of genetics at the University of Nijmegen (Holland) in 1975 and 1976.

A native of Chicago, Illinois, O'Connor earned his bachelor of science degree from Loyola University in 1963, where he played basketball, and his master's degree from De Paul University in 1966. He was awarded his Ph.D. degree from Northwestern University in 1968.

Dr. J. Dennis O'Connor was named the 16th president of the University of Pittsburgh on May 1, 1991, and assumed office on August 1.

Throughout his career, O'Connor has continued as a working scientist, conducting research in developmental biology, participating as principal investigator for 15 funded research projects. He has also published more than 80 papers in leading scientific journals, in addition to lecturing around the world on a wide range of scientific, academic and policy issues.

During his tenure at North Carolina, O'Connor served as vice president of the Triangle Universities Center for Advanced Studies and a board member of both the North Carolina Biotechnology Center and the Research Triangle Institute.

From 1982 to 1984, O'Connor was a member of the 1984 Olympic Games Committee when UCLA hosted the Olympic Village. In 1986 he was an academic specialist in Yemen under the auspices of the United States Information Agency.

As president, O'Connor will oversee the setting and implementation of the academic and fiscal agendas for the University. Reporting to the president is the provost, who is the chief academic officer, and the senior vice president for health sciences, who administers the six health-related schools as well as the University's medical center. The operating budget for Pitt and its medical center totals more than $1 billion annually.

As a national academic leader at UCLA and North Carolina, O'Connor proved an articulate spokesman for the missions of America's premier research institutions. At Pitt he will continue to articulate what is uniquely important and distinctive about major research universities.

O'Connor has stated that "research is not contrary to education or to teaching; it is the heart and soul of higher education. It is the fuel with which the engine runs. You might say that research is to teaching as sin is to confession. If you don't do one, you have nothing to say in the other."

At Pitt he hopes "to facilitate the capacity for the faculty to ask important questions and train students to formulate approaches in how to answer them."

The new president explains that "the half-life of knowledge is very short now and is forever decreasing. Knowledge of speed of light is fine, but half-life has to do with insights and the relationship of those insights. What is really so important is that all those insights and relationships have to be placed within a context of values — what we as human beings deem to be important."

At the core of the University, O'Connor says, are the humanities: "They tell us what we human beings really are. And education places all that's new, all that's so absolutely astounding in the context of who we are."

In summarizing his academic philosophy, O'Connor says, "I think the most beautiful thing in the world is an informed and intelligent mind being given time to work with two attributes—information and intelligence. Put those two within a system of values that are other-centered, and you make an amazing place to work and learn and live. That is what higher education is all about, and that is what I will try to inspire here at Pitt."

O'Connor's wife, Anne, is a nationally recognized lecturer in oncology nursing. Their three children are Timothy, a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Michigan, Deirdre, a graduate student in social work at Loyola University, and Gavin, a senior at the University of Michigan.

"I sense in Pitt and its faculty, staff and students, a university on the ascent, eager for exhilarating and bold new things to happen," said O'Connor. "I see in Pittsburgh a beautiful city, rich in cultural and ethnic diversity, which has thoughtfully undertaken a remarkable economic and physical transformation. I could not be more delighted, nor more excited, about my new job and my new city."

He is also the Chairman of the Board and Executive Medical Director of the Giant Eagle City of Pittsburgh Marathon and 10K, Company Doctor for the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre, and Team Physician of Mt. Lebanon High School.

During his career Dr. Fu has published over three dozen manuscripts, books and articles and has prepared and delivered various film and slide presentations reaching audiences in Europe and Asia. In 1987, Dr. Fu made a slide presentation about Pitt football on a Hong Kong television show.

Dr. Fu is involved with several research projects, many of which examine the effects of various activities on ligaments and joints.

He also has a large involvement in the community. Dr. Fu is on the Board of Trustees of the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre, Board of Governors of The Rivers Club, Board of Directors of The University Club, and he is President of the Children's Festival Chorus of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Fu and his wife Hilda have two children, Gordon, 14, and Joyce, 10, and reside in Point Breeze.

Rick Burkholder begins his second year as assistant football trainer at Pitt. He will assist Head Football Trainer Robert Blanc in providing prevention, treatment, and rehabilitation of player injuries.

Burkholder graduated from Pitt in 1987, and earned a master's degree in athletic training in 1989 at the University of Arizona. He is a certified athletic trainer and a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association.

Before coming to Pitt, Burkholder served two years as a graduate assistant and one year as assistant athletic trainer at the University of Arizona.

As an undergraduate at Pitt, Burkholder was a member of the soccer team and worked as an intern for both Pitt Sports Information and the New England Patriots. In 1986, he was honored as recipient of the George I. Carson Award for outstanding contributions to the athletic department and for achievement in the classroom.

The City of Pittsburgh: It Will Embrace You

Pittsburgh is a city that embraces its inhabitants. It is known as the city with a small town attitude. The people are friendly and real, the scenery is lush and green, and the culture is as diverse and ethnic as its melting pot roots.

History

Pittsburgh is located in the foothills of the Allegheny Mountains of Western Pennsylvania, at the point where the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers meet to form the Ohio. Because of its river accessibility and its rich natural resources, the Pittsburgh area became a strategic military point for both the French and British armies during the 18th century.

In 1758, after regaining control of the land from the French, Great Britian erected the final fort to stand at the point of the three rivers. It was named Fort Pitt after Prime Minister William Pitt. In 1816 the city of Pittsburgh was born around the fort.

Economy

The Industrial Revolution brought rapid change to the region during the early 1800s. Pittsburgh became the leading industrial center supplying the world with half of its glass and iron and most of its oil.

Steel production became the staple of Pittsburgh's economy before WWII and continued to be the main industry until the collapse of the country's domestic steel industry in the early 1980s.

Pittsburgh's economy underwent a successful transition after the collapse of the domestic steel industry. Today only memories are left of the once smoky steel town and now Pittsburgh's diverse economy is fueled by light manufacturing, advanced technology, service industries, and one of the most prestigious centers for health care and education in the nation.

Corporations

A major strength in Pittsburgh, and a contributing factor to the region's turn around, is the concentration of corporations in the city. In 1991, Pittsburgh had the fourth largest number of Fortune 500 companies in the country. The region is also a major international center, with more than 170 foreign firms located in the area and almost 100 of them U.S. headquarters office.

The $690 million expansion of the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport in 1992 will add to this corporate diversity. It is predicted that Pittsburgh will become the nation's eighth busiest airport by the year 2000.

Education

Pittsburgh is recognized as an educational center with more than 100,000 students attending the 31 colleges and universities in the area. The cornerstones for the higher education system in the city are the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon University.

The University of Pittsburgh is an international leader as a medical research and teaching center. Carnegie Mellon University has long been an established leader in computer science, artificial intelligence and robotics.

Medicine

The Pittsburgh region is known internationally for excellence in the medical field. The city houses one of the top integrated medical complexes in the nation and is the world's leading center for organ transplantation.

Medical research is a speciality of the Pittsburgh region. Credited with the development of the world's first polio vaccine, synthetic insulin and the isolation of Vitimin C, Pittsburgh researchers now focus toward eliminating AIDS, cancer and Alzheimer's Disease.

Arts

Because of Pittsburgh's strong corporate and university infrastructure, a vibrant performing and visual arts community is an integral part of everyday life.

More than 200 nonprofit arts organizations reside in Pittsburgh, including the Pittsburgh Symphony, Pittsburgh Opera, Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre, Pittsburgh Public Theatre and the Pittsburgh Civic Light Opera.

The Pittsburgh area maintains approximately 100 art galleries, museums and landmarks. The Carnegie Museum of Natural History offers the the most complete dinosaur collection in the world and houses more than 10,000 objects from all fields of natural history and anthropology.

Every year the city hosts The Three Rivers Arts Festival, which is a 17-day event packed with free concerts, arts, crafts, and exhibits from around the world.

Recreation

Pittsburgh's moderate climate and diverse geographical makeup allows for endless possibilities for recreational fun and excitement.

Because of the abundnace of rivers and lakes in the area, water sports are very popular. Favorite activities which begin in spring and last through early fall include sailing, boating, fishing, water skiing, and white water rafting in the nearby mountains. Pittsburgh has one of the highest concentrations of pleasure boats in the country and hosts America's largest inland regatta each August.

Golf is also a popular activity in Pittsburgh. The region's more than 130 public and private courses throughout the area gives one of the highest ratios of golf courses to residents in the country.

Pittsburgh's recreation is just as vibrant during the winter months as in the summer. The nearby forests and mountains provide Pittsburghers with a winter playground. Downhill skiing and crosscountry skiing, snowmobiling, iceskating, and hockey are all activities that people enjoy during the winter months.

Sports

Known to many as the "City of Champions," Pittsburgh's professional and collegiate sports have brought much excitement and prestige to the region, including Pitt's 1976 national champions.

The Pittsburgh Steelers were the first team in the NFL to capture four Super Bowl titles. The Pirates have won five World Series during their long and distinguished history and, last season after 24 years, the Pittsburgh Penguins added their name to the most prestigious trophy in professional hockey — The Stanley Cup.

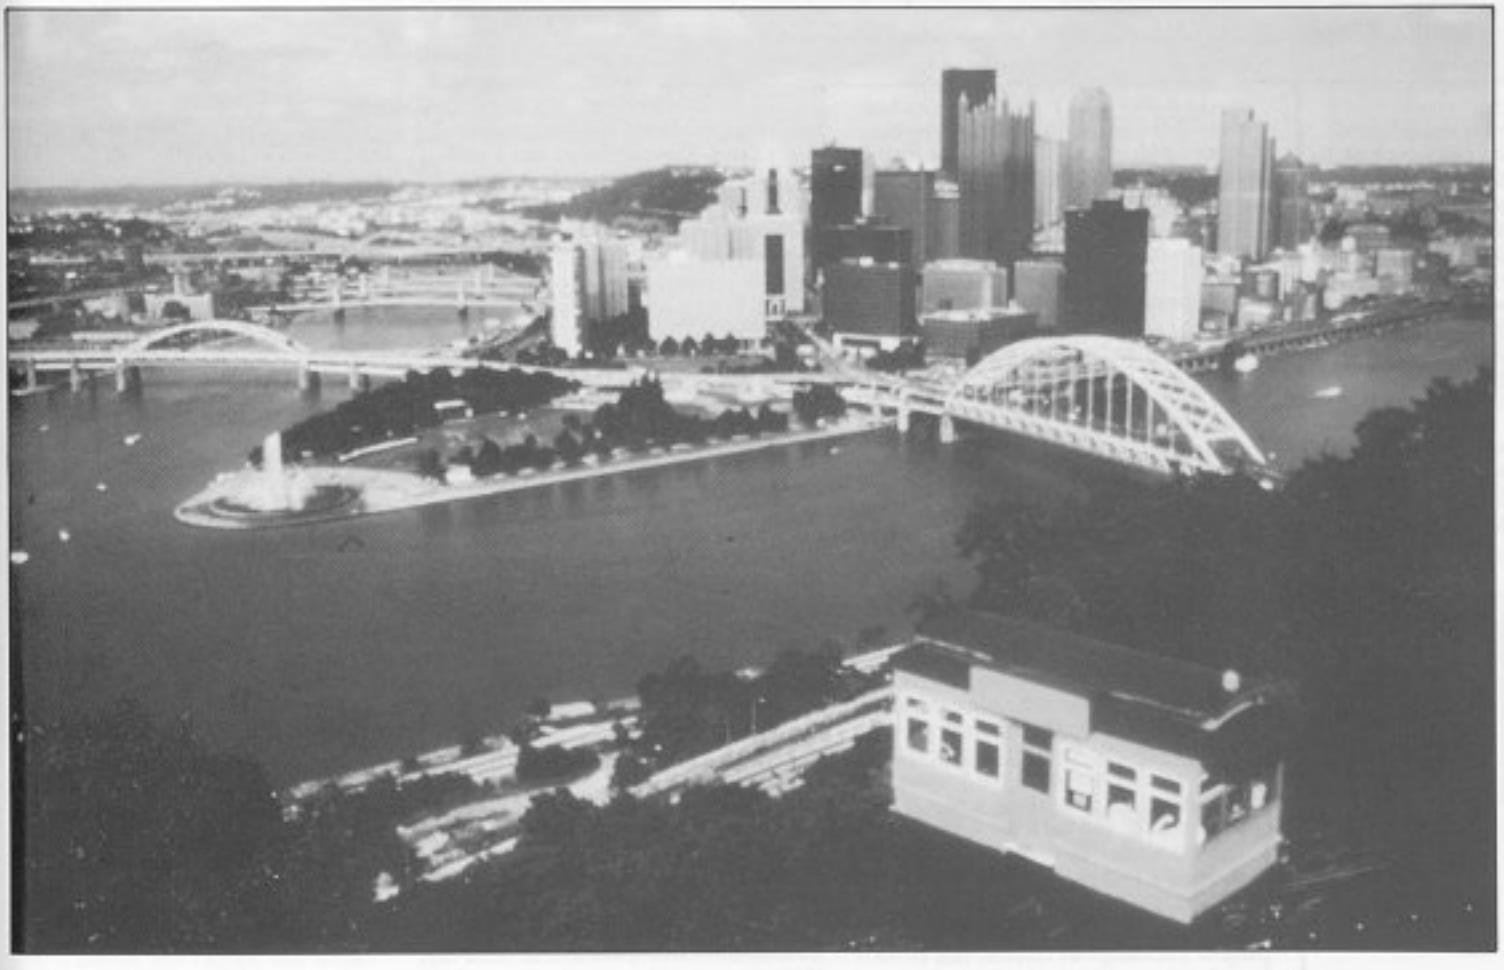
Quality of Life

One of Pittsburgh's most cherished assets is its high quality of life. The low cost of living, below average crime figures, quality educational intitutions, strong, growing economy, and diverse cultural community have all contributed to Pittsburgh's ranking as one of the nation's most livable cities by Places Rated Almanac.

Most Pittsburghers will tell you that it is the people who make Pittsburgh so special. They are friendly and caring. Often they will not only stop to give you directions but more than likely they will take you to your destination.

Families have lived along these three rivers for generations. No one can afford to be rude to one another because for some strange reason, in this city of 375,000, that person will probably have gone to high school with your father, played baseball with your cousin, or married your Aunt Bernice. It's not worth the embarassment. So remember, if you get lost in the city and someone is rude to you they are probably from out of town.

The Pittsburgh Steelers were the first professional football team to win four Super Bowls — all during the 1970s.



Pitt Stadium

Not until 1925 did Pitt football teams have a home to call their own.

From 1890 to 1908, Pitt (then known as Western University of Pennsylvania) played at various ballparks, including old Recreation Park and Exposition Park on Pittsburgh's North Side, in the general vicinity of Three Rivers Stadium.

From 1909-1924, Pitt teams played at Forbes Field, the old home of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Forbes Quadrangle (which houses University classrooms and several departments), bordered by Roberto Clemente Drive, now stands on the old Forbes Field site.

Because of great interest in Pitt football, Forbes Field's capacity of 32,000 grew to be inadequate in the early 1920s. The 11,000 alumni and 9,000 students, each of whom were entitled to two seats, left little space for the general public. This was especially true for the big games of the day against Washington & Jefferson, Carnegie Tech, Penn State, and West Virginia.

The vexing question of where to locate a new stadium was solved by the discovery of a perfectly practical land site, part of which belonged to the University, and the remainder of which lay immediately adjacent—nine acres of the Bailey Estate. In the summer of 1923, the Athletic Council bought this ground, turning it over to the Trustees of the University to become a part of the campus.

In November of 1924, the Trustees authorized a first mortgage bond issue of $2,100,000, the proceeds to be deposited with the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh as trustee, and to be used for the purchase of this site and erection of the stadium. The sale of the bonds, which carried with them ticket buying privileges, was conducted by volunteer solicitors, including Jock Sutherland. The campaign was a striking success, the entire issue being taken within nine days. At the end of that period oversubscriptions of more than a half million dollars had to be returned.

The original Stadium Committee appointed by the Boad of Trustees to oversee site selection, a bond sale, and construction included George H. Clapp, president; Homer D. Williams, chairman; K.E. Davis, secretary; A.R. Hamilton; A.J. Kelly, Jr.; C.W. Ridinger; C.L. Woolridge; C.D. Wettach; and Floyd Rose, committee members.

W.S. Hindman, an 1898 graduate of the University's School of Engineering, was the chief engineer and designer of the stadium.

Construction began on August 7, 1924 and was completed September 1, 1925, less than four weeks before Pitt played Washington & Jefferson in the first game at the new stadium.

Jock Sutherland, while he was still head coach at Lafayette, had purchased several thousand dollars worth of bonds two years before the stadium was built. After he succeeded Pop Warner as Pitt's head coach, he proceeded to sell bonds to former teammates from his own playing days under Warner. He also actively promoted the bonds to other people in the Pittsburgh community.

The Turner Construction Company, the same firm that had built Penn's Franklin Field and Cornell's Schoellkopf Stadium, was the general contractor. The John F. Casey Company did the excavating work; the McLintock-Marshall Company did the steel work, and the New England Foundation Company provided the foundations.

Pitt Stadium, which covers approximately nine acres, is 791 feet long and 617 feet wide. It was originally configured to hold a capacity of 69,400, and the design permitted future double-

Eiseman-Prussin Room

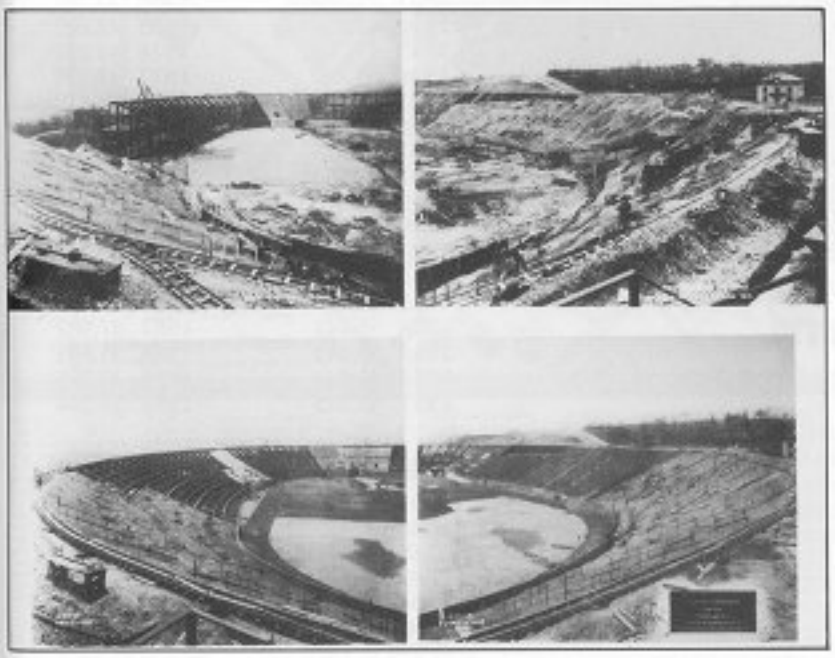
In 1968, Pitt dedicated a multipurpose room inside Gate 2 at the stadium as the Eiseman-Prussin Conference Room in memory of Edwin H. Eiseman, a 1967 Pitt graduate. George J. Prussin, who contributed $75,000 to the recently opened Cost Sports Center, wanted, in some way, "to honor and sustain the memory" of Eiseman.

A 1967 graduate and a member of Pitt's baseball team, Prussin became friendly with Eiseman through the Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity and through intramural sports. Eiseman died of Hodgkin's disease in 1969.

decking (allowing provisions for another 30,000 seats to be added if desired).

A total of 2,200 tons of structural steel was used in setting up the bowl, as well as 1,000 tons of reinforced steel, and 20,000 cubic yards of concrete.

Unlike many of its contemporaries in the 1920s, which had been built to accommodate one or two sports, Pitt Stadium at the time of its construction was a unique multi-faceted venue. It housed nearly all of the University's non-aquatic sports: football, basketball, baseball, track, rifle and gymnastics. The basketball court in the Stadium Pavilion (beneath the ramps inside Gate 2) served as Pitt's home from 1925 until 1951, when Fitzgerald Field House opened. While in use for home basketball games, it contained permanent seats at two ends and temporary bleachers on the sides, accommodating 4,500 people.



The Pittsburgh Steelers and Carnegie Tech (now Carnegie Mellon University), have used Pitt Stadium as their home fields at one time or another.

The stadium has undergone several significant changes, particularly within the past 20 years. In 1970, Astroturf became the playing surface, replacing natural grass. A Superturf surface replaced the Astroturf in 1984. During the summer of 1990, a new Astroturf surface was installed.

One improvement that hit close to home with Panther supporters in the late 1970s was a change in seating structures from wood to metal benches, eliminating the splintery discomfort caused by some 17 miles of wood that had been subjected to a half century of the elements.

The current scoreboard was installed prior to the 1977 season. A new computer system, featuring football animation software, was installed in the summer of 1989, vastly enhancing the capabilities of the message center. The auxiliary scoreboard was also modified in 1988, and now includes significant game data, including down and distance.

Pitt Stadium became a more efficient and more attractive edifice in 1978, when a new coaching complex was opened. The two-floor office, reception, conference room, and workout area now houses the entire football staff.

In addition, a brand new, spacious, and more efficient Ticket Office headquarters was opened at Gate 1 in 1979.

Improvements completed in 1990 include a video editing suite adjacent to the football administrative offices and the George Stewart Auditorium team meeting room directly above the weight room.

Lights were installed on a temporary per-game basis for night games in 1985 and 1986. Pitt's first night game ever in the stadium was a thrilling 31-30 win over Purdue on August 31, 1985. Permanent lights were installed before the 1987 season.

The current lights consist of six standards—four on the home side of the field and two on the visitor's side—and range from 110-to 180-feet tall. Each pole contains 50 1,500-watt metal halide lighting fixtures. The system is designed to reduce glare and augment television depth perception.

Pitt Stadium is now the home of the Panthers' football, soccer, and track teams.

Recent improvements at Pitt Stadium have included the addition of lights (above) and a new carpet of Astroturf (bottom), which was added in the summer of 1990 along with a state-of-the-art track.

Golden Panthers

As the Pitt Golden Panthers enter their third decade, they continue to promote interest, enthusiasm and support for the athletic programs of the University of Pittsburgh. Founded on December 1, 1970, alumni, faculty, staff and friends of Pitt have focused on fund raising both for annual giving and capital contributions.

The combination of a dedicated and competent professional staff headed by Mike O'Brien, Director of Development for Athletics, and Carol Petrocky and Walter Bielich, Assistant Directors for Athletics Development, and a dedicated and enthusiastic cadre of volunteers, provides the vitality necessary for a successful fund raising organization. The accomplishments and growth of Pitt's athletic programs in the past two decades have been due in substantial measure to the funds generated through the Golden Panther organization. Annual giving to the University through the Golden Panthers has absorbed much of the burden of financial aid for Pitt's athletes. This, in turn, has permitted the University to modernize substantially the athletic facilites and infrastructure needed for a top flight athletic program.

The Golden Panthers have raised more than $13 million, with most of these funds going toward providing scholarships for varsity athletes. These contributions also have enabled Pitt to improve facilities, augment the funding of non-revenue sports, and establish a tradition for continued success in all varsity sports. In addition, $2.5 million has been contributed toward endowed scholarships.

In 1990, through a most generous lead gift in excess of $1 million from Charles L. "Corky" Cost, individual Golden Panther contributions, and Golden Panther Chapter gifts, the $3.5 million Charles L. Cost Sports Center was dedicated. Also, this spring, the George W. Stewart Auditorium was completed. Dedicated in Mr. Stewart's memory, this theatre style auditorium has video and audio capabilities for team meetings and game film screening and seats approximately two hundred. It is also used for post-game press conferences.

All contributors to the Golden Panthers receive benefits based on their level of contribution. These benefits include attendance at special functions, ticket priority, special parking privileges, and the Golden Panther newsletter. Donors also receive credit in the University's annual giving fund and its giving clubs. The Golden Panthers invite not only Pitt alumni, but also "friends of Pitt" to become a part of their organization.

Head Cheerleading Coach

The 1991 University of Pittsburgh cheerleading squad is entertaining, talented and a motivating factor at Pitt football games. It is a colorful addition to the many peripheral festivities surrounding college football.

The Pitt cheerleaders are one of the largest squads in the country, as well as one of the most successful. They have competed in numerous national competitions in recent years and have been featured in many television cheerleading specials.

The Pitt cheerleaders have been coached for the past eight years by Theresa and Michael Nuzzo. The Nuzzos are owners of the Elite Cheerleading Organization, the largest personalized cheerleading instruction company in the USA. The organization annually instructs more than 20,000 cheerleaders in 38 states.

O'Neill Sanford has been Director of Bands at the University of Pittsburgh since 1985. Since becoming a music educator in 1965, he has held the following positions: Director of Bands, Sevier High School, Ferriday, Louisiana (1965-66); Marching Band Arranger and Trombone Instructor, Mississippi Valley State University (1966-71); Director of Bands, Mississippi State University (1972-73); Director of Bands, Virginia State University, Petersburg, Virginia (1973-76); Symphonic and Marching Band Director, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minnesota (1976-85).

Professional achievements and experiences include the following: Winner of the $10,000.00 first place award at the 1973 Braniff International Band Contest; Adjudicator of band festivals throughout the United States, Mexico, Spain, England, and Greece; Command Performance for the President of Mexico; Guest Conductor of the Youth All-America band throughout Spain, England, and Greece; Guest Conductor and Clinician at Regional and All-State Bands throughout the United States; Performance tours of Canada, Mexico, England, and southern Spain with the University of Minnesota Marching Band.

Sanford's works include a multitude of arrangements and compositions for marching band and jazz ensembles performed by high schools and colleges throughout the United States. In addition, he has written pieces for special occasions, notably the "Bicentennial Fanfare" which was composed for the Pitt Bicentennial celebration. In 1989, he added to the University of Pittsburgh's repertoire of school songs with "Pitt Is It!"

When O'Neill Sanford took over as Pitt's band director in 1985, there were 90 musicians—in the entire band. "It was definitely a problem," Sanford says, "especially for a stadium as big as ours."

Sanford went out and remedied the situation.

Over the past couple of years the band has steadily grown, from about 140 members in 1987 to over 200 this year. This growth is a positive indication about the direction in which the band is heading.

"We'll be a much better band," Sanford said. "This year's recruiting has been terrific."

The enlarged band this year will field nearly 225 members, including color guards and the Golden Girls.

The improvement in the band will be obvious not only on the football field and at Fitzgerald Field House for basketball games, but at various other University and community events with the concert band.

The music the band performs is as diverse as its individuals, from marches to classical, from contemporary to broadway. Both Sanford and associate director David Moy want to make certain that there is a song for everyone.

"We try to do a variety of music throughout the season," Sanford said, "in hopes that we can touch all our fans at some time or another."

David Moy
Associate Director of Bands

David Moy is in his seventh year as the Associate Director of Bands, coming to Pitt from the University of Minnesota with O'Neill Sanford. He was the assistant marching band director there for five years.

Moy's responsibilities at Pitt include the percussion section, writing drill maneuvers, and administration.

Support Services for Student Athletes

Dr. Ron Brown

Dave Pistolesi

Jan McMannis

In the 1970s, when the University of Pittsburgh committed itself to regaining its position as one of America's leading collegiate programs, the University also made a commitment of perhaps even greater significance — to excel in the education of its student athletes. From this commitment came the Support Service for Student Athletes, established in 1976. This Office had one major mission — the furthering of the academic goals of the men and women who make up Pitt's varsity athletic teams. In the 1990s, as Pitt football once again reaches for the top, the University has rededicated itself to its original commitment to see that these athletes get a quality and meaningful education. New offices, equipment and additional personnel are evidence that Pitt is continuing its tradition of placing academics at the top of its priorities for its athletes.

Since its beginning, the Support Service for Student Athletes office has offered several important services to Pitt's athletic community. Contact between the Office and the student athlete begins early, at University orientation, where Support Service personnel administer tests and assist in class scheduling. Learning skills and study habits are strengthened throughout the freshman year, through regular meetings with the office staff and organized study sessions. Tutors are provided for those who request them, and assigned to those the staff feels may need additional help. Class performance and attendance is monitored throughout the term. Academic and career counseling, as well as personal counseling, are all important parts of the program. The goal of the office is to build long-term skills to enable the athlete to be an independent and successful student, skills which will be carried on long after an athletic career has ended.

Since 1987, Support Services has been located in the remodeled 5th floor of Pitt Stadium. The office, which as an academic unit reports to the Provost, was originally housed in the William Pitt Union. But as more athletes took advantage of the unit's services and the staff grew in number, more space was needed. The new facilities in the stadium include a computer/learning lab, several areas for individual tutoring and study, as well as offices for the staff.

The staff of the Support Service office is currently made up of five full-time members, a graduate assistant, and numerous part-time tutors and clerical help. Since early this year, the office has been directed by Dr. Ron Brown. Dr. Brown comes to Pitt from Oklahoma State, where he headed that University's academic efforts to help athletes. At Pitt, he is reorganizing the Office to make it even more effective as it meets the challenges of the '90s. He is assisted by Jan McMannis and David Pistolesi. Additional personnel will be added to the staff as the Office continues its reorganization. All members of the Office are dedicated to assisting Pitt's student athletes in making the most of their college experience.

George W. Stewart Auditorium

One of the many features at Pitt Stadium used to improve the convenience of filmwork and media attention on gameday is the George W. Stewart Auditorium. The auditorium is named in the honor of George W. Stewart, a longtime benefactor of Pitt athletics and contributor of $150,000 toward the construction of the room. The auditorium was completed in the summer of 1990 and is used for team meetings, football post-game interviews and viewing game films.

The auditorium was dedicated on May 1, 1991, during a ceremony including retired Pitt President Wesley W. Posvar, retired Director of Athletics Ed Bozik, and Head Football Coach Paul Hackett, along with Stewart's son (George Stewart) and granddaughter (Cindy Stewart).

At the official dedication, Pitt's retired Director of Athletics, Ed Bozik, remarked: "How appropriate that today we are memorializing this facility in a stadium which lifespans the man who made this room possible."

Stewart's affection for the University began during his youth when, as a nine-year-old, he would carry water, clean uniforms and hand out towels to football players. In return, the athletes found ways to sneak Stewart into games and even let him sit on the bench.

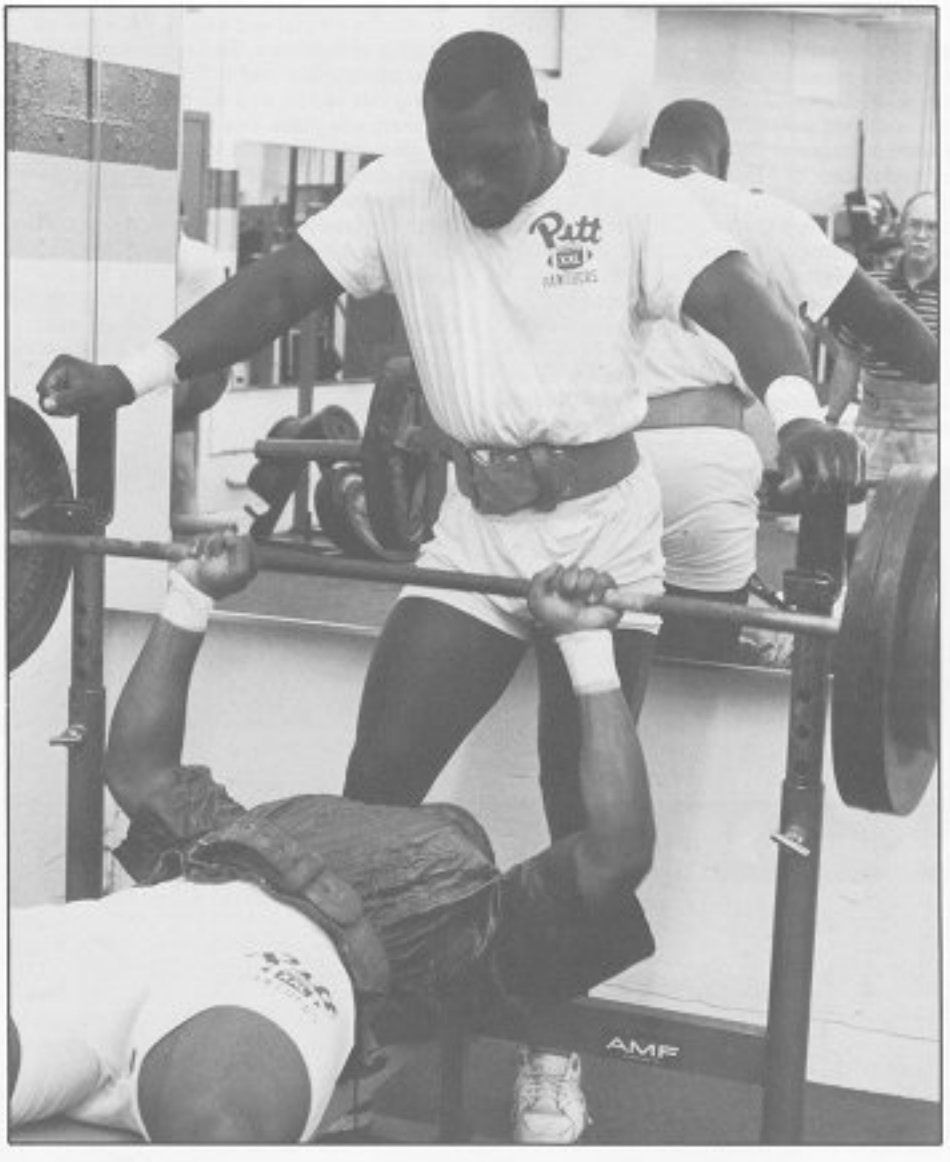
"Because my grandfather went to the University on a scholarship and never paid more than $5 in lab fees, he felt a real obligation to the University," Cindy Stewart said. "He would have been very proud of this room."

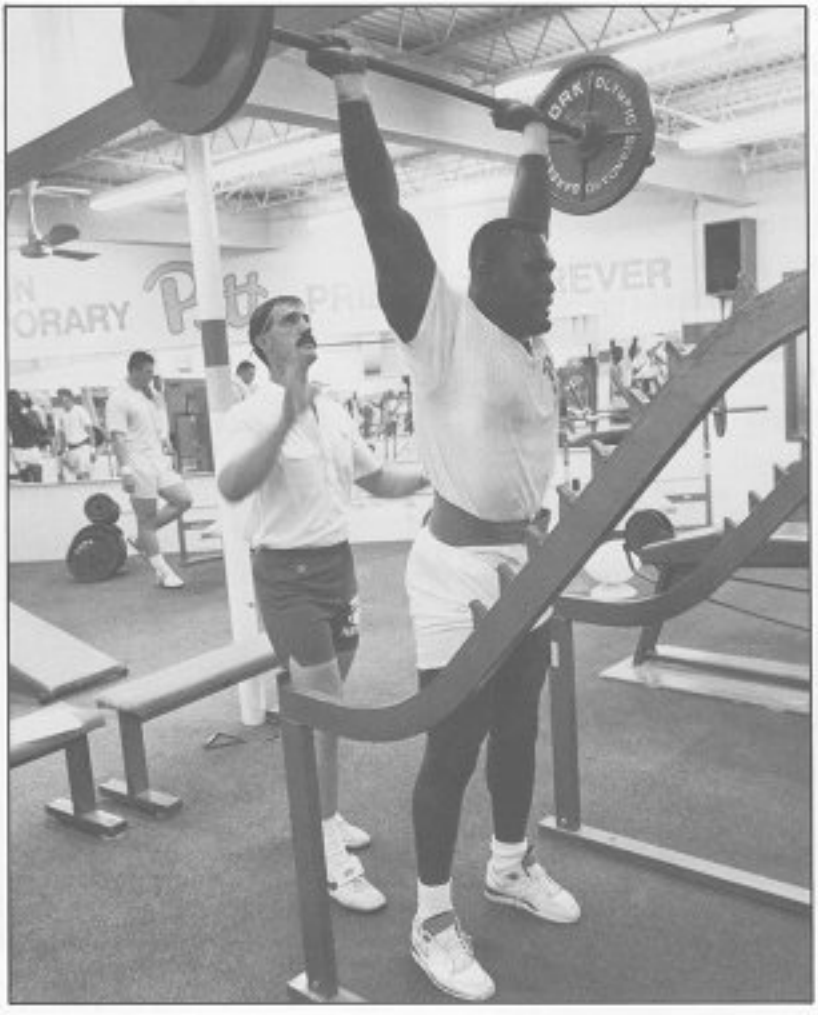
In addition to his contribution for construction of the auditorium, Stewart, a 1920 Pitt engineering graduate, established the Katherine and George W. Stewart Trust Fund in 1987.

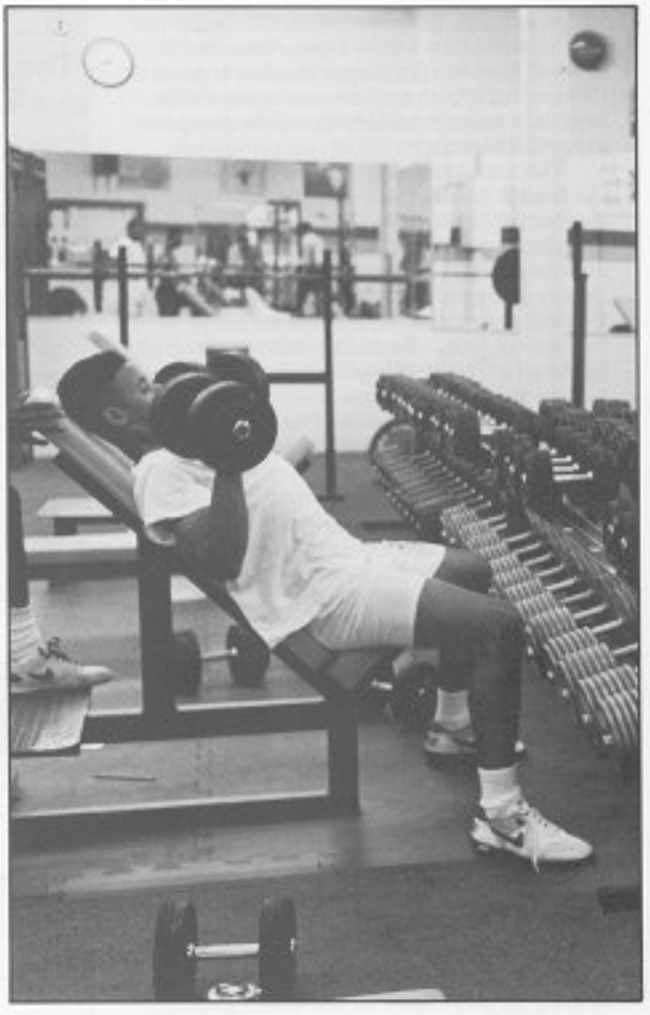
Stewart's support was not limited to athletics. He engineered the fund drive to construct Pitt's Alumni Hall and was a featured speaker at the building's groundbreaking on January 26, 1920. He also helped organize the University's Century Club in 1952. Additionally, he served as chairman of Pitt's Commission for the Third Century Medallion in 1989 in recognition of his distinguished career and service to Pitt and the community.

The "Pitt Iron Works"

Recently renovated and expanded to nearly double its original size, the Pitt football weight room, the "Pitt Iron Works," is one of the most modern and best-equipped facilities of its kind in the country. The renovations included the installation of new carpeting and several new pieces of Nautilus machines, and the addition of nearly 7,000 pounds of free weights to the more than 20,000 pounds of existing weights. Under the auspices of Pitt's first-year Strength Coach Tim Wilson, the "Iron Works" is active every day and is a showcase for the Pitt football program.







The Charles L. Cost Sports Center (right) provides the University of Pittsburgh with a state-of-the-art indoor athletic complex, and is used as an indoor workout site for the football team. Charles L. "Corky" Cost, a running back and three-sport athlete at Pitt in the mid-1950s, donated in excess of $1 million toward the construction of the complex, which sits on top of a seven-story parking garage (the Towerview Garage) on Robinson Street behind Trees Hall.

Big East Moves Into Football

On February 5, 1991 The BIG EAST Conference announced it would expand into the sport of football. The league that has enjoyed tremendous growth and success in the 1980s, especially through basketball, is now going to the gridiron as well.

The formation of the BIG EAST Football Conference quickly turned heads in the college football world. The football alignment includes current BIG EAST Division I football members Boston College, Pittsburgh and Syracuse. Miami, a full member as of the 1991-92 academic year, will also be a part of the football group. These four will be joined by Rutgers, Temple, Virginia Tech and West Virginia for football only.

BIG EAST Commissioner Michael Tranghese says the growth plans for BIG EAST football will follow those that were implemented for BIG EAST basketball a little over a decade ago.

"We'll be active and aggressive," said Tranghese. "We have an excellent group of institutions that are steeped in football success. Recent history has shown that our schools are often among the nation's elite."

At the time of the announcement of the football league, it was hoped that a conference schedule of at least five games could be in place by 1995. But the BIG EAST football coaches are so enthused about the potential of BIG EAST football, they made a commitment to play a full seven-game league schedule by 1993.

Like BIG EAST basketball, BIG EAST football will have plenty of television exposure. Over and above the times that BIG EAST teams will appear on network television and ESPN through an existing contract with the College Football Association, the BIG EAST is forming its own "Game of the Week" package that will air weekly throughout the season.

The BIG EAST also is actively pursuing a major bowl bid for its champion.

BIG EAST football teams have enjoyed plenty of success, especially in the past decade. Miami has captured national titles in 1983, 87 and 89. The Hurricanes have played on New Year's Day every year since 1984. Syracuse has played in bowl games in each of past four seasons, winning three and tieing one. Boston College played in four bowl games in the 80s and won the 1985 Cotton Bowl. Pittsburgh won the 1982 Sugar Bowl and has gone "bowling" eight times since 1978.

West Virginia competed for the national championship in the 1989 Fiesta Bowl and played in seven bowls since 1978. Virginia Tech is coming off a 6-5 season and won its last three games against bowl-bound teams. Temple was 7-4 last season and was the most improved team in the nation, increasing its victory total by six from the previous year. Rutgers showed marked improvement under first-year Coach Doug Graber who secured an outstanding first recruiting class.

"The Big East Football Conference is a very exciting development for us. This really represents a whole new era for Pitt football, and as players and coaches, we want to stake a claim for the Big East championship right away. It is a tangible, identifiable goal — and we want to be ready for the challenge."

THE BIG EAST CONFERENCE

Michael A. Tranghese, Commissioner

In his first year as commissioner of The BIG EAST Conference, Mike Tranghese has boldly led the league through probably the most crucial juncture in its 12-year history.

One concrete result of his leadership is The BIG EAST Football Conference. Faced with an unprecedented membership realignment among some major collegiate conferences, Tranghese responded by coordinating an expansion which included the University of Miami becoming a full member of the BIG EAST. Rutgers, Temple, Virginia Tech and West Virginia joined for football only.

The BIG EAST Football Conference has attracted the immediate attention of the college football world. Similar to the conditions that surrounded the birth of BIG EAST basketball, BIG EAST football members are a group of traditional rivals who decided the time was right to become a formal entity.

Tranghese, 47, succeeded Dave Gavitt as BIG EAST Conference commissioner June 21, assuming the reins of a league whose doors he opened back in 1979 as the first full-time employee.

BIG EAST athletic directors were unanimous in their decision to reward Tranghese's 11 years of impressive service, the last nine as associate commissioner. He aggressively plans to move The BIG EAST through its second decade while adhering to the principles which have marked the league's explosive rise to prominence: a cohesive structure, a "dare to be different" administrative approach, a staunch commitment to excellence in performance, and a continuing emphasis upon academic integrity.

Tranghese's career has flourished over the last two decades, coinciding with the focus upon Eastern college basketball and the proliferation of sports events on television. His first athletic department appointment was at American International College in his hometown of Springfield, Mass.

As Gavitt's sports information director at Providence College, he publicized the immensely successful Friar teams of the 1970s. Upon moving The BIG EAST in 1979 as assistant commissioner for public relations and marketing, he engineered the tremendous campaigns in radio and television which made the league — and its marquee coaches and players — household phrases.

Under his direction, The BIG EAST championship slate expanded from seven men's championships in 1979 to 18 men's and women's events in 1989. Now, with football, the total is 19.

Today, Tranghese is foremost among his peers in the area of television, including contract negotiation and technical production. The BIG EAST has secured lucrative long-term agreements with CBS Sports and ESPN. Additionally, the league's six-year-old self-syndicator, The BIG EAST Conference Television Network, has developed into a benchmark in collegiate athletics. His negotiating expertise also has resulted in an extended agreement with Madison Square Garden, host of The BIG EAST Basketball Championship since 1983.

Tranghese, who is single, is a 1965 graduate of St. Michael's College in Winooski, Vt.

Ted Robinson, Play-by-Play Announcer

Ted Robinson, whose broadcast resume includes college and pro football, major league baseball, college and pro basketball, and U.S. Open tennis, is the play-by-play voice for the BIG EAST Game of the Week.

Robinson currently works with Jim Kaat as the television team for the Minnesota Twins. He recently concluded a season of WLAF football for USA Network. He has also worked for USA Network for the past five years at the U.S. Open Tennis Championship. For seven years he has worked for the CBS Radio Network for Baseball's Game of the Week and NCAA Basketball Championship games.

For the past two football seasons he did Notre Dame football for SportsChannel America.

Among his other broadcast accomplishments are a four-year run on NBC Sports Major League Baseball Game of the Week, two years as the voice of the Golden State Warriors and San Francisco 49ers' preseason football.

A native of Rockville Centre, N.Y., he lives in Bloomington, Minn. with his wife, Mary, and their two children, Annie and Patrick. Ted and Mary are 1978 graduates of Notre Dame.

Todd Blackledge, Color Analyst

One of the nation's top college quarterbacks in the 1980s, Todd Blackledge will be the color analyst for the BIG EAST Game of the Week.

Last year Blackledge was host for Penn State's weekly football highlight show and was an analyst for national telecasts for Prime Network and Comsat.

A 1983 first round draft choice of the Kansas City Chiefs, Blackledge was an academic All-American at Penn State where he quarterbacked the Nittany Lions to three New Year's Day bowl wins. He was the MVP of the 1983 Sugar Bowl when he led Penn State past Georgia to a national championship. That team was the first national champion ever to pass for more yardage than it rushed. He also directed the Nittany Lions to wins in the 1982 and '81 Fiesta Bowls.

Blackledge played for Kansas City for five seasons before being traded to the Pittsburgh Steelers where he finished his playing career.

Names of former Pitt athletes who have excelled at the University of Pittsburgh through their athletic and academic achievements are engraved on the Varsity Walk.

On the University of Pittsburgh campus, between the Cathedral of Learning and Heinz Chapel, is a sidewalk known as the Varsity Walk. There, embedded in the stones, are the names of former Pitt athletes who have promoted the University through their athletic or academic achievements.

The Varsity Walk was conceived in 1950 as a way to honor athletes and remember their contributions to the University of Pittsburgh. New members are added each year. The distinctive hand-carved stones were first presented as the Athletic Committee Award and the Charles C. Hartwig Award. The Athletic Committee recognized the best athlete from any sport. The Charles Hartwig Award was given to the senior athlete who promoted and sponsored the best interests of Pitt athletics, in honor of the 1934 All-America tight end.

The Panther Award is presented to the graduating senior athlete who has promoted Pitt athletics through his/her outstanding athletic achievement.

An athlete receives the Blue-Gold Award when he/she represents the student-athlete ideal based on academic scholarship, athletic achievement, leadership qualities and citizenship.

The awards were expanded to include females in 1975.

"I believe our job as coaches is to create an atmosphere for young men to be successful on the field and in the classroom. For most players, athletics and football is a temporary thing. But education is what you take with you the rest of your life, the thing that drives your future."
